Budget 1987-88

Speech of

Shri Rajiv Gandhi
Prime Minister and Minister of Finance

28th February, 1987

PART A

Sir,

I rise to present the Budget for the year 1987-88.

2. Twenty nine years ago, presenting the country's budget, Jawaharlal Nehru told this House:

> "The times we live in and the problems that our country has to face do not permit a static or complacent approach or any avoidance of the burdens which inevitably accompany an attempt to advance with some speed.....
> We have to strive with all our strength for our planned development by conserving all our resources, increasing production and trying to ensure progressively a more equitable distribution, and thus to raise the standards of the great mass of our people."

These are our objectives today.

3. When we came into office, we were fortunate in inheriting from Indiraji an economy that was sound. After the devastation of 1979-80, the inflation rate was brought down sharply. The growth rate was stepped up, and the infrastructure restored to health. We have built on these successes and initiated a process of reform in areas requiring urgent attention. This, I believe, we have been able to accomplish in large measure.

4. Our principal objectives are the elimination of poverty and the building of a strong, modern, self-reliant, independent economy. In these two years we have sharpened the focus on poverty alleviation. Direct outlays on anti-poverty programmes were substantially increased in the last Budget. The 20-Point Programme (1986) was announced in August. Taking advantage of high stocks of food, rural employment programmes were expanded. Two million tonnes of cereals were made available in tribal areas at highly subsidised rates. We launched an important scheme to enlarge employment opportunities for the urban poor. I have extensively toured and seen the work being done in the most backward and remote villages of our country. Talking to the people face to face, I know how much more needs to be done. I am also convinced that we are making progress in our struggle against poverty.

5. Agriculture is the bedrock of our economy. Growth in this sector is also crucial for the removal of poverty. Our farmers, farm technologists and scientists have turned India from a net-importer of foodgrains living at the margin of survival to self-sufficiency. We are proud of them. We congratulate them.

6. We have reinforced the policies that have proved so successful. We are committed to providing remunerative prices, and increased availability of water, power, seeds, fertilizers and credit to our farmers. Foodgrain production will exceed 150 million tonnes despite a poor monsoon. We have increased incentives to our farmers to reduce our dependence on imports of sugar and edible oils. They have responded magnificently.

7. I am, however, concerned about the situation of agricultural labour. They are subject to exploitation. Government will appoint a National Commission on Rural Labour. It will look into the working conditions of this vulnerable section of our society and the implementation of social legislation for their protection .

8. Industry is forging ahead. Major initiatives for modernising industry and stimulating industrial investment were taken in the Sixth Plan. Our strategy in the Seventh Plan is to build on these initiatives to strengthen industrial performance. We are encouraging economies of scale in production, induction of modern technology and greater competition to increase production, reduce costs and improve quality. We have enhanced the incentives for small scale units. There is clear evidence now that these policies are having the expected impact on the economy.

9. Our industrial base has widened. New industries have developed . The small scale sector has expanded rapidly. A large number of new jobs has been created. In the three years beginning 1984-85, the growth rate in industry is expected to exceed 8 per cent per annum on average - this has not happened in the last twenty years.

10. We have given high priority to the important task of tax reform. Our tax laws and rules had become complex. There was widespread evasion. Reform was vital. Our reform of the fiscal system, undertaken in the past two years, has been thoroughgoing. We have made tax rates and the tax structure reasonable. We have simplified laws and procedures. We have enforced these laws vigorously without fear or favour. This has helped the honest tax payer, and yielded more revenue than ever.

11. The public sector is the core of our industrial economy. I am also convinced that our public sector enterprises can be made as efficient as any in the world. I am glad to say that the infrastructure industries in the public sector are showing distinctly better performance. There has been a significant improvement in productivity in coal, power and railways. The improvement in thermal power generation is particularly striking. The plant load factor in the current year is the highest since 1976-77. The improvement in the functioning of infrastructure has been brought about by a change in the management culture, and better performance on the shop floor.

12. Government will further improve the working of public sector enterprises. We will enhance their autonomy, and make them accountable for results. Government will bring before Parliament a White Paper on the public sector.

13. As a nation, we have good reason to be satisfied with our economic performance. During a period when growth rates in many developing countries have declined sharply, we have been able to accelerate growth and increase per capita incomes. We have avoided debt problems, and have kept inflation under control. Our food stocks and foreign exchange reserves are comfortable. These are important strengths. But we cannot afford to be complacent. The world environment, both political and economic, continues to be unfavourable. There are also important domestic problems that demand our attention.

14. The rapid growth in Government expenditure is exerting mounting pressures on our fiscal balance. In the recent period, we have been compelled to increase defence expenditure. We shall spare no effort nor shrink from any sacrifice where our national security is concerned. At the same time, there are pressing requirements for development. Any slackness in critical investments now will cost us heavily in the future. It is a social imperative to spend on programmes which directly benefit the poor and to provide food subsidy. We have had additional commitments arising out of implementation of the Pay Commission's Report. Higher relief and grants had to be provided to several States severely affected by drought and flood.

15. Even so, some hard choices have to be made to keep our expenditure within our means. Government is determined to make them. The situation requires a thoroughgoing review of our expenditure policy. Mere scratching the surface will not help. Ad hoc and across the board cuts of the past, while providing temporary relief, have not yielded enduring results. There is no room for waste, ostentation or unproductive expenditure. We have to pull together and work harder than ever before to realise national goals.

16. We have a good record in price management. However, it will be a mistake to take too complacent a view of the price situation. The demand and supply balance in a developing economy is always delicate. Any external or internal disturbance can create difficulties. It is essential, therefore, to keep a careful watch on the price situation.

17. The balance of payments has been under pressure. We had anticipated this and initiated a range of measures to curb the growth of imports and increase exports. These have yielded results. Exports increased by 17 per cent while imports increased by only about 2 per cent in the first nine months of the current year. The trade deficit is lower than last year by Rs. 1,000 crores. But there is much more to be done. Part of the improvement is due to the fall in oil prices and we cannot count on this. Government will remain fully vigilant on the external front.

18. The results of policies initiated in the last two years show that our direction is correct. I propose to use this year's Budget to provide a new thrust in selected areas which will strengthen the economy and further our Seventh Plan objectives. First among these is education.

19. The New Education Policy has been adopted by Parliament after extensive discussions.It has been evolved from a national consensus. It is a powerful weapon to fight poverty. It gives to the socially and economically weaker sections the means to realise equality of opportunity guaranteed by our Constitution. It will help us preserve our heritage and release the creative energy of our youth. It will bind together people speaking different languages, professing different faiths and belonging to diverse cultural traditions that are part of the composite culture of India. It aims at excellence in all fields - science, technology, the arts, humanities and philosophic thought.

20. To give a good start to the new Policy, I have allocated as much as Rs.800 crores for education as compared with Rs.352 crores in 1986-87. This massive increase is a measure of our resolve to bring about an educational transformation in our country.

21. State Governments have the primary responsibility for education. These resources will supplement the efforts of State Governments.

22. The momentum of anti-poverty programmes will be maintained. In 1985-86, one million tonnes of foodgrains was provided to States as grant for extending the coverage of the National Rural Employment Programme (NREP) and the Rural Landless Employment Guarantee Programme (RLEGP), resulting in the creation of 62 million mandays of additional employment. In 1986-87, the additional allocation was increased to two million tonnes, leading to additional employment of 128 million mandays. I propose to continue the Programme of allocating additional foodgrains for employment.

23. The Integrated Rural Development Programme will be strengthened further. This year, more than 3.2 million families are likely to benefit. In the coming year, an outlay of Rs.310 crores is being provided. Combined with matching allocations of States and credits from the banking sector, the total flow of funds under this Programme will be 4 to 5 times greater than this allocation. Total Plan outlay for the Department of Rural Development will exceed Rs.2,000 crores in 1987-88. This compares with the total Sixth Plan expenditure of about Rs. 3,600 crores.

24. Housing is high on our list of priorities. It is a basic need. It also generates employment. We propose to launch a comprehensive programme for housing development, particularly housing for economically weaker sections.

25. The Central Government has again earmarked Rs.125 crores in 1987-88 for the Indira Awaas Yojana. Under this scheme, one million houses will be built during the Seventh Plan period for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes. We have decided that State Governments would be free to use the amounts allocated to them under this Programme as seed capital for launching Indira Awaas Yojana Societies for housing loans for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes.

26. A new financial structure will be created to provide funds for housing. At the apex level, a new national housing bank will be set up by the Reserve Bank of India with an equity capital of Rs.100 crores. This bank will promote housing institutions at both local and regional levels. The Reserve Bank will be announcing the details separately.

27. The National Commission on Urbanisation, in its Interim Report, has suggested several changes in the laws affecting housing, including the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976. This important social legislation aimed at using surplus lands in urban areas for the common good. However, the results achieved have been disappointing. Although 10 years have passed, less than one half of one per cent of the land declared surplus has actually been used for construction. Meanwhile, scarcity of land has pushed up rents and speculative profits in urban areas. The worst sufferers have been the poor. This is not acceptable. I have asked the Ministry of Urban Development to work out suitable legislative proposals taking into account the recommendations of the Commission, and place these before the House for consideration.

28. The Commission has also recommended certain changes in the Rent Control Acts which would give protection to the economically weaker sections, while also providing sufficient incentive for new constructions. These changes should, over time, bring down rents by improving the availability of housing. The report of the Commission will be commended to State Governments.

29. Later, in my speech, I shall be announcing certain incentives for income tax payers in respect of housing loans taken from specified institutions.

30. In the last two years, Government has taken a number of measures for workers' welfare. These include legislative changes to protect workers' dues, introduction of a new stock option scheme for workers, increase in eligibility limit for bonus payments, increase in the rate of DA for public sector employees, tax concession for investment in workers' housing, increase in the interest rate on workers' Provident Funds and removal of ceiling of house-rent allowance for exemption from income-tax. As a further step, I propose to make certain legislative changes in the Income-tax Act to protect the dues of workers by way of Provident Fund, ESI and gratuity.

31. We have achieved remarkable success in mobilising small savings. An expert group, appointed by Government last year, has pointed out certain problems with the present scheme of tax incentives on personal savings. An important lacuna is that fiscal concessions are currently available for gross savings, with no penalty for dissaving. It has, therefore, recommended shifting to a system which gives incentives for net savings.

32. I propose to introduce a new savings scheme based on the net saving principle. To avoid any transitional problems, this scheme will be, for the present, in addition to the existing tax concessions available under Section 80C of the Income-tax Act for National Savings Certificates and other instruments. Under the new scheme, 50 per cent of deposits upto a maximum of Rs.20,000 will be eligible for deduction. However, in the year of withdrawal, 50 per cent of the amount withdrawn will be added to the taxable income . Receipts under the scheme will be shareable with States. The full details of the new savings scheme, which will be introduced in the next financial year, are being announced separately.

33. The capital markets in India have shown tremendous growth in the last few years. Approvals for capital issues have exceeded Rs.5,000 crores in 1986-87. They were only about Rs.500 crores in 1980-81. For a healthy growth of capital markets, investors' rights must be fully protected. Trading malpractices must be prevented. Government have decided to set up a separate Board for the regulation and orderly functioning of Stock Exchanges and the securities industry.

34. Last year, the UTI had set up a Mutual Fund for investment in equity to attract small investors. In order to widen their choice, the State Bank of India will set up a similar Mutual Fund. I shall also be announcing certain measures later which should contribute to the development of capital markets.

35. I have referred to the acceleration in industrial growth. Government's main thrust is to modernise India's industrial structure. Efficiency and productivity have to be increased. Existing technology has to be upgraded. New technology has to be absorbed and further developed indigenously. Costs must be reduced. All these objectives can only be realised in a medium term time frame.

36. Government have been carrying out an intensive review of individual industries. New policy measures have been announced in respect of several important industries, such as, textiles, jute, sugar, drugs, electronics and software. We have also set up the Textile Modernisation Fund and the Jute Modernisation Fund. These will facilitate modernisation of these traditional industries which provide substantial employment. Another special development fund is being set up for jute. This will benefit growers and workers and promote diversification and research and development.

37. Government will continue to undertake systematic reviews of the total policy framework for selected industries, and take necessary steps to stimulate growth and modernisation.

38. The capital goods industry is central to our efforts for achieving self reliance. It needs immediate attention. I propose to introduce a package of measures to further accelerate the growth of this industry. First, import duty rates for machinery, including general project imports, are being adjusted. Second, in order to reduce costs of domestic manufacture in certain critical sectors, such as, power, heavy equipment and textile machinery, cost of certain special types of imported steel is being reduced. I will have more to say on these proposals later.

39. Third, a special programme of technological upgradation for selected capital goods industries will be launched by financial institutions for the three year period upto the end of this Plan. This will cover in the first instance electrical machinery, including power equipment and electric motors, foundries and machine tools. The objective of this programme will be to induct the latest technology in these sectors, improve indigenous R & D facilities for constant upgradation, and reduce costs. The details will be announced separately by the Industrial Development Bank of India.

40. Industries linked to agriculture have a special role in our development. They provide markets for agricultural produce and generate higher incomes for our farmers. I have already referred to the measures taken for modernisation of two of the most important agro-based industries, namely, jute and textiles. Last year's budget had provided important tax incentives for use of certain indigenous oils in vanaspati. I shall be announcing certain proposals to encourage the food processing industries. This will benefit the farmer and the consumers. There are other proposals to benefit cotton and wool.

41. In the past year, Government have taken a number of measures to support export industries. New schemes of cash compensatory support and customs duty drawback have been introduced. Import duties on capital equipment for selected export industries have been reduced. Interest rates have been lowered. Specified raw materials are being provided at international prices. Fiscal incentives have also been extended. Exports are now doing better. In this Budget, I shall be proposing some further measures for increasing export production.

42. Mr. Speaker, Sir, these and other budget proposals will strengthen the productive forces in our society. The fundamental assumption of the Seventh Plan, as indeed of all our Five Year Plans, is that growth and development are the real antidotes to poverty. Direct measures for alleviation of poverty are indispensable in our society. However, such measures can be sustained only by rapid development. This was the message that Jawaharlal Nehru gave to the country while introducing the Second Five Year Plan in this House :

" We have, therefore, to lay great stress on equality, on the removal of disparities, and it has to be remembered always that socialism is not the spreading out of poverty. The essential thing is that there must be wealth and production.... "

43. We can grow faster only if we use modern technology. This is the only way to deal effectively with the problems of unemployment and poverty. Those wise men who decry the use of modern technology in the name of social justice would do well to listen to Panditji, who in the course of the same speech, said,

" Do not imagine that minus technological progress we are going to deal with the problem of unemployment.... If India is to advance, India must advance in science and technology, and India must use the latest techniques, always keeping in view, no doubt, that in doing so, the intervening period, which always occurs, must not cause unhappiness or misery. "

44. This then is our basic strategy - a framework of sustained growth on the basis of rapid modernisation of India's agriculture and industry. I am committed to planning for socialism in India, socialism which fits in with our genius but nevertheless socialism in its basic meaning of removing disparities and providing equality of opportunity. This is the yardstick by which I want to judge all policies and programmes.

45. Let me now turn to the Revised Estimates for 1986-87 and Budget Estimates for 1987-88.

REVISED ESTIMATES 1986-87

46. Budget Estimates 1986-87 provided for a total expenditure of Rs.52,883 crores. The expenditure in the current year is likely to exceed the original estimate by Rs.7,445 crores owing to a number of post-budget developments.

47. I do not propose to take the time of the House by going into details as they have been explained in the Budget documents. I shall only refer to certain major items.

48. Non Plan expenditure is expected to be higher by Rs.5,508 crores including expenditure arising from the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission. To reduce the cost of carrying the buffer stock, the Food Corporation of India is being provided loans of Rs.1,200 crores on soft terms. This will replace equivalent bank financing. For reasons well known to the House, we have increased defence expenditure by Rs.1,466 crores. Interest payments will be higher by Rs.800 crores.

49. Plan expenditure is likely to be Rs.1,937 crores higher than the original estimates. Budgetary support for the Central Plan is expected to increase from Rs.13,617 crores to Rs.14,792 crores. The increase of Rs.1,175 crores is mainly in Telecommunications, Railways, Petroleum, Mines, Textiles and Atomic Energy sectors. Central assistance for State and Union Territory Plans will be Rs.762 crores more mainly because of additional Rs.510 crores of advance Plan assistance to States affected by natural calamities. Taking Plan and Non-Plan together, natural calamities assistance to States will be Rs.640 crores higher than the Budget Estimate of Rs.150 crores.

50. Coming to receipts, net tax revenue is likely to increase by Rs.1,564 crores compared with the Budget Estimate of Rs.22,643 crores.This is a large increase, made possible by vigorous implementation of our tax laws. Non tax revenue and capital receipts including the contributions from the oil sector are estimated at Rs.27,836 crores against the Budget Estimate of Rs.26,537 crores. The total receipts are placed at Rs.52,043 crores and the total expenditure at Rs.60,328 crores. Inclusive of Rs.1,200 crores on account of replacement of bank credit for buffer stock by Government loans, the current year is expected to end with a Budgetary Deficit of Rs.8,285 crores.

51. The deficit is high and I do not like it. I have decided that the deficit in the Budget Estimates for 1987-88 shall not be exceeded. Some supplementary demands are unavoidable; I am instructing the Ministries and other Central Government organisations to ensure that additional demands are offset by equivalent savings or through measures to raise more resources. We will review the financial performance of public sector units to ensure that targets for internal resource generation are met. I am constituting a Cabinet Committee on Expenditure to monitor the implementation of these measures.

52. The overall economic situation is good. Our foodstocks and foreign exchange reserves are quite satisfactory. We have been able to keep the overall price situation under control through judicious demand and supply management. Along with expenditure control, we will continue to take anticipatory action to reduce excess liquidity and increase supply of sensitive commodities, particularly foodgrains, sugar and edible oils.

53. Following the report of the Committee on the working of the monetary system, in consultation with the Reserve Bank of India, it has been decided that henceforth the Budget documents should show the budgetary deficit as well as the net change in the Reserve Bank of India credit to Central Government. The latter presents a more accurate measure of the monetary impact of the Government's fiscal operations. According to the present information, it is estimated that the change in the net Reserve Bank of India credit to Central Government in 1986-87 will be Rs.7,250 crores, which is lower than the budgetary deficit.

BUDGET ESTIMATES 1987-88

54. For 1987-88, in the present situation, I have given the highest priority to maintaining the tempo of the Plan. I have provided an outlay of Rs. 24,622 crores for the Central Plan of 1987-88, of which Rs.14,923 crores will be provided as budgetary support. With this order of outlay, in the first three years of the Plan, we would have fulfilled about 63 per cent of the Seventh Plan outlay. This is a record.

55. However, we now have to make greater efforts to achieve more for every rupee of investment that we make. Achievement of physical targets is far more important than just spending the money. Government must be more cost effective. The cost of delivery of our programmes must be reduced.

56. The Government has, therefore, given a high priority to implementation of projects in time, avoidance of time and cost over-runs in projects, and the use of innovative methods and new technologies. A monitoring system has been set up for projects under implementation.

57. Revised accounting classification to bring about one to one correspondence between heads of accounts and heads of development used for Plan purposes is being introduced from 1.4.1987 in consultation with the Comptroller and Auditor General of India. This will strengthen the planning process and help better monitoring. Equally important is obtaining timely feed-back from grass root levels regarding implementation of programmes and flow of benefits therefrom.

58. In the Central Plan, a high priority has been given to programmes which have an impact on alleviation of poverty in the rural areas. As I mentioned earlier, particular emphasis has been given to education , the NREP, the IRDP, the RLEGP, rural water supply, and the use of food stocks for creation of additional employment opportunities in the rural areas.

59. Agricultural development has a major impact in alleviating poverty. In the Central Plan, the accent in the agricultural sector continues to be on increasing productivity by increasing the area under high yielding and improved varieties, accelerated transfer of new technology, increasing crop intensity, diversifying the cropping pattern and control of pests and diseases. Some of the important programmes under implementation are : Special Rice Production Programme, National Oil-seeds Project, National Watershed Development Programme and National Pulses Development Project. These projects are designed to solve specific agricultural problems, and are already making an impact in our rural areas.

60. Irrigation and fertilizers are two major components of programmes for increasing agricultural productivity. In irrigation, a high priority is being given to the completion of on-going projects and for bridging the gap between irrigation potential and its utilisation. Fertilizer production in the current year will increase to nearly 7 million tonnes from about 5.7 million tonnes last year. The fertilizer plant at Paradeep has commenced production during the year. In the next year, the fertilizer plants at Vijaipur and Aonla - each with a capacity of 7.2 lakh tonnes of urea are expected to be commissioned.

61. In terms of financial outlays, infrastructure sectors, namely, energy, transport and communications will account for more than 54 per cent of the total Central Plan . In 1987-88, taking the Centre and States together, we will be commissioning 4880 MW of additional power capacity. In coal, the output per man-shift has improved by 11 per cent. The target for coal production in 1987-88 is 183.5 million tonnes as against 165 million tonnes in 1985-86.

62. In the Sixth Plan, we were able to increase our crude oil production nearly three-fold. In the current Plan, production is likely to show a slower increase and it is necessary to accelerate investment in exploration and development of new oil fields. The total outlay for the petroleum sector as a whole is Rs.3,265 crores next year.

63. In order to save the time of the House, I have mentioned only a few of the highlights of the Central Plan for 1987-88. In several other areas, such as, women and child development, health and family welfare, youth affairs and sports, art and culture, science and technology, environment, social forestry and information and broadcasting, this Government has taken several new initiatives to make the Plan more meaningful to our people. These programmes are being strengthened. Necessary provisions have also been made for industrial projects, including those in heavy industry, steel and mines.

64. I am also happy to inform the House that the total Plan outlay of States and Union Territories for 1987-88 has been fixed at Rs.19,537 crores representing an increase of 17 per cent over the current year. We have taken care of the requirements of Arunachal Pradesh and Mizoram on being elevated to Statehood. A provision of Rs.8,754 crores has been made next year for Central assistance for State and Union Territory Plans as against Rs.8,140 crores in the current year's Revised Estimates.

65. The Budget Estimate for defence is Rs.12,512 crores in 1987-88. This has naturally cast a heavy burden on our budgetary resources, but the House will agree with me that no compromise is possible where country's defence is concerned. The strength and morale of our Armed Forces are high. On behalf of this House, I assure our Jawans of the unstinted support of the entire nation.

66. Interest payments next year are estimated at Rs.10,650 crores against Rs.9,550 crores in the current year. Food and fertilizer subsidies including arrears, are placed at Rs.3,910 crores as against Rs.3,893 crores in the current year. Next year's Budget includes a lump provision of Rs.500 crores to cover likely increases in additional dearness allowance to Government employees and also the increases in pensionary charges arising out of the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission. This Government - ever sensitive to the difficulties of pensioners- has decided to increase the minimum pension and minimum family pension to Rs.375 per month. This will benefit nearly six lakh pensioners.

67. The total Non Plan expenditure in 1987-88 is estimated at Rs.39,266 crores. Tax revenue next year net of States' share is estimated at Rs.25,689 crores against Rs.24,207 crores in the current year. Non tax revenue and capital receipts are placed at Rs.31,243 crores against Rs.27,836 crores in the current year. The total receipts at existing rates of taxation thus amount to Rs.56,932 crores against the total expenditure of Rs.62,942 crores, leaving a gap of Rs.6,010 crores.

68. I shall now turn to my tax proposals.

Budget 1987-88

Speech of

Shri Rajiv Gandhi
Prime Minister and Minister of Finance

PART B

69. In the 1985-86 Budget, we initiated a process of major tax reform. The broad direction and strategy for this reform was set out in the Long Term Fiscal Policy (LTFP). We will be introducing a detailed Amendment Bill on Direct Taxes separately in the Budget Session. This Bill will implement wide ranging changes aimed at simplification and rationalisation.

70. The basic thrust of my few Direct Tax proposals is to provide incentives for savings to promote investment and to support housing. I propose to strengthen some welfare measures. I have also included some measures to enhance revenue.

71. I do not propose any changes in the rate structure for Personal and Corporate Taxes. This is in line with the Long Term Fiscal Policy.

72. In order to conserve foreign exchange and to raise revenue, I propose to levy a modest tax of 15% on foreign exchange released in India for foreign travel. Foreign exchange released for medical treatment and education abroad will be excluded. This tax will be applicable for travel from a date to be notified. The revenue yield from this measure is expected to be Rs. 60 crores.

73. Those who can afford to patronize high class hotels should also be afforded the further pleasure of contributing to the national exchequer. A separate legislation will be brought forward for levy of a tax on expenditure in expensive hotels. This tax, to be levied at 10% of expenditure, will not apply to payments made in foreign exchange. It will become effective after passage of the necessary legislation.

74. I have already mentioned the decision to introduce a new National Savings Scheme based on net savings. Necessary legislative changes are being included in the Finance Bill.

75. I propose to provide a fiscal incentive for channelising savings into the housing sector. Repayment of loans and payments made to the extent of Rs.10,000 in a year towards the cost of any new residential property will qualify for deduction on the same lines as life insurance premia or contribution to provident fund under Section 80C of the Income-tax Act. This exemption will be within the existing limit of Rs.40,000.

76. Capital gains arising from the sale of a residential house are exempted in case such gains are utilised for acquiring another house. This was hitherto applicable only to individuals. It is now being extended to Hindu Undivided Families.

77. I understand that for the purpose of taxation of income from houses, our tax laws make a distinction between a real owner who is not a legal owner and a legal owner who is not a real owner. Following the well-established revenue tradition, when it comes to taxing, we tax both the real owner who is not a legal owner and the legal owner who is not a real owner. Concessions available to a house owner are, however, given only to a real owner who is also a legal owner. I propose to simplify the law by clarifying that the real owner, even if he is not the legal owner, will pay the tax and avail of the concessions available to the legal owner. I hope this proposal is abundantly clear to the Hon'ble Members.

78. In cases where the compensation for acquisition of a property is enhanced, or where a new residential house is not acquired within the specified time after selling the old house, the completed tax cases for the past years have to be modified to tax the capital gains accrued earlier. Certain procedural changes are being made in the law to remove this complication.

79. Several important changes have been introduced in the corporate tax structure in the last two years. With effect from April, 1987, a liberalised set of depreciation rules is being introduced. Depreciation will be allowed in respect of blocks of assets instead of the present system linked to individual assets. There will be only three rates of depreciation for plant and machinery, namely, 100%, 50% and 33-1/3%. Apart from simplifying assessment, this will enable industry to replace and modernise capital equipment faster.

80. It is only fair and proper that the prosperous should pay at least some tax. The phenomenon of so-called "zero-tax" highly profitable companies deserves attention. In 1983, a new Section 80VVA was inserted in the Act so that all profitable companies pay some tax. This does not seem to have helped and is being withdrawn. I now propose to introduce a provision whereby every company will have to pay a "minimum corporate tax" on the profits declared by it in its own accounts. Under this new provision, a company will pay tax on at least 30% of its book profit. In other words, a domestic widely held company will pay tax of at least 15% of its book profit. This measure will yield a revenue gain of approximately Rs.75 crores.

81. The capital markets have shown remarkable buoyancy. I propose to make some changes in the Tax Laws which will support healthy development of the capital markets. The existing provision of allowing deduction in respect of investment in equity shares of certain categories of new companies was to be withdrawn with effect from 1st April, 1987. In view of the need to continue support for issues of new companies, I propose to extend this concession for 3 more years. I also propose to reduce the holding period of these shares from 5 years to 3 years.

82. At present shares have to be held for a period of 36 months before capital gains on their transfer qualify for the concessional treatment allowed for long term capital gains. It is proposed to reduce the holding period to 12 months. This will provide greater flexibility to investors and also improve the mobility of capital invested in shares.

83. Concentration of industries in many of our urban areas poses serious problems of congestion, pollution and hazards. In order to encourage industries to shift out of such areas, I propose to exempt capital gains made on the sale of land and buildings in such areas provided these are reinvested in approved relocation schemes.

84. The provisions regarding additional income-tax on undistributed profits of closely held companies have lost their relevance after the reduction in tax rates effected in 1985-86 Budget. These are being deleted. Because of some court decisions, the capital gains on transfer of goodwill of a concern or transfer of assets from a firm to a partner and vice-versa escape the tax net. Such gains will be explicitly taxable.

85. A tax holiday to newly established undertakings in Free Trade Zones has been provided. It is being clarified that this will also extend to units which develop software as also those which assemble or process components for exports.

86. A tax concession is available to the Indian companies earning income from a foreign Government or a foreign enterprise for imparting technical knowhow. This tax concession will now be available only if the foreign exchange earned is repatriated to India. It is also being clarified that an Indian resident cannot be treated as a foreign enterprise for this purpose.

87. It is proposed to exclude computers and machines for transmission and reception of messages from the list given in the Eleventh Schedule of the Income-tax Act as these industries are no longer non-priority.

88. At present Indian citizens earning remuneration in foreign currency for services rendered abroad are allowed 50% exemption under Section 80 RRA of the Income-tax Act subject to certain conditions. This is being further liberalised. The exemption will now be allowed to the extent of 50% of the remuneration, or 75% of the remuneration repatriated in convertible foreign exchange, whichever is higher.

89. In order to improve coverage and prevent tax evasion, it is proposed that tax at specified rates should be deducted at source in respect of all payments beyond certain prescribed amounts of fees for professional and technical services, royalty, rent, commission or brokerage and payments for goods supplied to Government, etc. This will apply to payments made by all persons, excepting individuals and Hindu Undivided Families.

90. Let me now come to measures for the welfare of workers, members of armed forces and the handicapped. There are a number of cases where the employers do not credit their own contributions nor those of the employees to the Provident Fund and the State Insurance Fund. It is also unfortunate that a separate fund is not being kept by some employers in respect of gratuity of workers. To prevent this anti-labour practice, we propose to penalise such delinquent employers by providing that the contributions of the employees to these funds will be taxed as the income of the employer and allowed as a deduction only when they are made over to the separate accounts relating to these funds within the time allowed under the statute.

91. Any compensation received by a workman at the time of his retrenchment is exempt from tax. Similar exemption is being extended to payments made under voluntary retirement schemes for public sector employees.

92. Regimental Funds or Non-public Funds are utilised for purposes such as providing assistance to widows of armed personnel killed in action, as also to disabled soldiers. The contributions will enjoy similar tax concessions as other funds of national importance like the National Defence Fund.

93. I am increasing the special deduction allowed to the physically handicapped persons and the totally blind from Rs.10,000 to Rs.15,000.

94. There are other procedural proposals in the area of Direct Taxes including those to ensure better functioning of the Settlement Commission which are in the Bill.

95. For the Members of Parliament, I propose to introduce a general exemption in respect of Constituency Allowance without reference to any monetary ceiling.

96. The above proposals will give a net revenue gain of Rs.145 crores.

97. Let me now turn to Indirect Taxes. The tariff regime for capital goods will be restructured and rationalised. I propose to extend MODVAT to most of the remaining areas. Excise and Customs duties for certain industries are being adjusted to stimulate growth. There is a package of reliefs for the common man.

98. As I mentioned earlier, the capital goods industry needs special support.

99. At present, there are two tariff rates for import of machinery: 101% for import of general machinery and a concessional rate of 55% when machinery is imported for a new project. The low duty rates for project imports have provided a strong encouragement for unnecessary imports. The differential between the general rate and the project rate also discriminates against modernisation of existing units, and favours sickness. These anomalies must be corrected.

100. I propose to equalise the two rates at 85%. The rate of duty applicable for components will be 15% below the applicable tariff rate.

101. At present, fertilizers, power and electronics are allowed concessional import duty on their capital goods imports. These rates are being adjusted upwards. The duty on import of equipment for the electronics industry is being raised from 25% to 30% and for fertilizer plants, it is being increased from zero percent to 15%. In the case of power, plants of above 50 MW capacity will continue to be imported at 25%. Plants of 50 MW and below will pay a higher duty of 35%.

102. Further concessions are needed to encourage upgradation of technology in specified capital goods sectors.

(i) At present, domestic capital goods manufacturers have to pay very high import duties on import of special steels. The duty rate is being reduced to 85% on steels such as boilers-pressure-vessels-quality plates, sheets or coils, turbine blade flats and stainless steel plates.

(ii) The textile machinery industry will be allowed supply of imported stainless steel at concessional duty of 65% instead of the prescribed rate of 245% at present.

(iii) In order to encourage modernisation of foundries, import duty on specified capital goods is being reduced from 101% to 55%.

(iv) Caustic soda plants presently based on mercury-cell technology should be encouraged to convert into membrane-cell technology. The new technology saves energy and reduces pollution. Specified equipment required for this conversion will be allowed imports at concessional duty of 35% instead of the present 101%.

103. The MODVAT introduced in the 1986-87 Budget was a major innovation. We covered 38 chapters of the Excise Tariff last year. I now propose to extend MODVAT to all the remaining chapters except those relating to textiles, tobacco and the petroleum sectors. MODVAT will now be extended to cover food products, mineral products, leather and travel goods, footwear, paper and paper-board, wood and cork products, asbestos cement products and precious metals.

104. Last year, in order to ensure revenue neutrality, the introduction of MODVAT was accompanied by an increase in the duty on the final product to balance the set-off being given of the duty paid on inputs. This year, keeping in view the nature of products, the duty on the final product is not being increased except in a few items. This will reduce the effective duty on a large number of items.

105. In the case of food products, for example, the total number of items coverd by MODVAT will be over 100. The duty increase for revenue neutrality is being done only in case of cheese, malt preparations and aerated soft drink. The effective rate of taxation on other food products, such as biscuits, skimmed milk powder, butter, jams and jellies, and confectionery will be significantly reduced. Farmers and horticulturists are benefited by the expansion of the market of value-added food products.

106. Some increase in the final duty is necessary in five of the items which were covered last year where we have found that set-off given last year was very much larger than initially estimated. These are zinc-oxide, adhesives based on synthetic resin, organic surface-active agents, electric motors and primary batteries.

107. A number of important procedural changes are also being introduced to simplify the operation of MODVAT. Some of the concessions are:

(1) Refund in cash of input duty credit if the final product is exported by the manufacturer in certain circumstances.

(2) Availability of credit of duties in respect of inputs lying in stock.

(3) Adjustment of input duty credit if additional duty is demanded from input manufacturers in case of change in classification of inputs.

(4) Receipt of inputs directly by the job-workers will be permitted for all items under the MODVAT scheme.

108. With these measures, we will have successfully eliminated the cascading effect of excise duty and given a measure of excise relief.

109. Our comprehensive policy package has made electronics one of the fastest-growing industries. It has generated substantial employment. I propose to make certain changes which will strengthen the basic design of the existing policy.

110. For computers, the following reliefs and rationalisations are being carried out:–

(i) Import duty on electronic sub-assemblies is being reduced from 308% to 150%.

(ii) The list of peripherals is being enlarged and a uniform rate of import duty of 60% is being specified.

(iii) Import duty on specified data-communication equipment is being reduced from 140% to 100%. Duty on mechanical parts of data-communication equipment is being reduced from 140% to 55%.

(iv) The present notification regarding exemption of import duty on computer peripherals for Research Institutes is being extended by 3 years.

(v) Duty on computer systems imported under OGL is being reduced from 150% to 140% (basic and auxiliary).

(vi) Import duty on specified electronic parts of computers is being increased from 25% to 75% in order to give appropriate protection for indigenous production. The import duty on mechanical parts of computer peripherals is also being increased from 5% to 75%; and this is being extended to mechanical parts of CNC system.

111. The Indian computer industry achieved a turnover of Rs.225 crores last year. It has passed its infancy and is healthy and vigorous. Now that the industry has arrived, can the tax-collector be far behind? It is proposed to levy an excise duty of 10% on computers and peripherals. With MODVAT, the effective incidence of duty will be much lower.

112. The research and development base of the electronics industry is crucial for its long-term success. I, therefore, propose to reduce the duty on specified equipments required for R&D from 140% to 55%.

113. We must also encourage domestic production of capital goods required for the electronics industry. At present, mechanical components required for manufacture of such capital goods attract a duty of 140%. I propose to reduce this duty to 45% in the case of components required for nearly 300 specified machines.

114. In the field of general electronics, a concessional duty structure of 30%, 45% and 75% is allowed for imports of raw materials, piece-parts and components, respectively. We are expanding the coverage of this concessional duty structure by adding some more items.

115. I propose to abolish the excise duty on the production of poly-silicon in all forms as a measure of support for the domestic industry. The customs duty for the import of silicon, solar cells and photo-voltaic systems is being fixed at 30%, 45% and 75%, respectively. I propose to increase the duty on the import of poly-silicon to 75% for electronics industry in the interest of domestic production.

116. Production of television sets has increased rapidly in line with targets. A thriving and competitive industry has been set up. I propose to make two changes:

(i) As an anti-avoidance measure, it is proposed to impose an excise duty or countervailing duty of Rs.150 on black and white tubes meant for sets of size above 36 cms. and to impose an excise duty or countervailing duty of Rs.600 on all colour television tubes. Under MODVAT, this input duty would be fully rebated to duty-paying manufacturers with no additional duty burden on the consumer. It will, however, help to check unlicensed production.

(ii) The excise duty on colour television sets exceeding 36 cms. size is presently Rs.1,500 irrespective of the value of the set. I propose to increase the duty on costlier sets to Rs.1,750 per set. This will apply to sets cleared at assessable value higher than Rs.5,000 which corresponds to a retail price of about Rs.7,500. The excise duty for sets cleared at assessable value of Rs.5,000 or below will remain at Rs.1,500. The costlier sets can bear the extra duty.

117. These proposals relating to the electronics industry will involve a net loss of revenue of Rs.19.30 crores. There will be a revenue gain of Rs.40 crores in excise duty and a loss of Rs.59.30 crores in customs duty.

118. Important developments have taken place in the automobile industry in the past few years. New technology has been introduced, production has increased and indigenisation is taking place. Government have been reviewing these and other developments and will be announcing a comprehensive policy. For the present, I have the following tax proposals for automobiles:

(i) At present, a concessional rate of customs duty of 50% is allowed for imported sub-components required for the manufacture of components for fuel-efficient trucks, cars, and two-wheelers. I propose to enlarge the list of components eligible for concessional import of sub-components. This will encourage indigenisation.

(ii) Excise duty on fuel-efficient motor vehicles with engine capacity not exceeding 1000 c.c. is proposed to be increased from 20% to 25%. This sector can bear the additional duty and it will still benefit from a lower rate than the rest of the industry.

(iii) For handicapped individuals, I propose to provide for total exemption from customs duty in respect of automatic transmission and other special equipment to be fitted into fuel-efficient cars of engine capacity not exceeding 1000 c.c.

(iv) The rate of duty on import of spares for meeting the after-sales or warranty of fuel-efficient motor vehicles is being increased from 50% to 75%.

(v) Excise duty on tractors will now be fixed on engine capacity instead of Power-Take-off-Horse-Power . This is an anti-avoidance measure with no revenue implication.

119. Plastics are widely used by the common man. They also have a tremendous potential for use in farms and factories. Our plastic prices are high. Government propose to initiate measures to reduce costs in this important area.

120. I propose to reduce the basic customs duty on PVC resin (general-purpose suspension-grade) from Rs.10,500 per metric tonne to Rs.7,500 per metric tonne. These resins are used in the manufacture of cheap footwear, pipes for agricultural application and as insulation for wires and cables.

121. I also propose to reduce the basic customs duty on Low-Density -Polyethylene (LDPE) from 100% to 75%. LDPE is used as a base for production of a wide range of packaging materials. LDPE film has a big potential use in the lining of canals and farms and field-channels.

122. The excise duty on products of regenerated cellulose, which includes the cheap packaging material-cellophane, is being reduced from 40% to 20%. Excise duty is being similarly reduced on cellulose acetate moulding granules which is used for spectacle-frames, umbrella handles, tooth-brushes and on sodium carboxy-methyl cellulose which is used in oil-drilling, textiles processing and detergents.

123. Excise duty on certain varieties of industrial plastics i.e., acrylic and vinyl resin emulsions is being reduced from 40% to 20%.

124. Over the past year, we have taken a number of steps to strengthen our export performance through fiscal and other means. I propose to give the following additional incentives.

(a) For the gem and jewellery industry, customs duty on 46 additional items of tools, machinery, etc. is being reduced to 35%.

(b) For the marine products industry , 3 additional items will be allowed concessional import duty of 40% (basic and auxiliary).

(c) For the leather industry -

  (i) 31 additional items of machinery required for leather industry will be allowed concessional duty of 35%.

  (ii) polyurethane film/foil used for improving finished leather will have lower countervailing duty of 40%.

  (iii) polyurethane leather required for the manufacture of football for exports will be exempted from duty.

(d) The import duty on tyre moulds required for export production is being reduced to 25%.

(e) Export duty on mica products is being abolished except for mica waste and scrap.

(f) Import duty on flax and ramie fibres is being reduced from 80% to 40%.

125. I also propose to make some adjustments which will further benefit the common man:–

(1) In August 1985, Government introduced a scheme of fiscal relief for the manufacture of inexpensive blended fabrics -Sulabh fabrics. Under this scheme, NTC mills are supplied raw material free of excise duty for the manufacture of suitings of value upto Rs.45 per metre and shirting of value upto Rs.20 per metre. This scheme has made a good start. It is now proposed to have a similar scheme for manufacture of Sulabh sarees. This will make available good-quality sarees at reasonable prices.

(2) At present, footwear of Rs. 45 per pair is exempt from excise duty. I propose to raise the limit to Rs.60 per pair of assessable value which corresponds to footwear retailing at about Rs.100 per pair. To off-set the revenue loss, excise on footwear exceeding this assessable value is being increased to 15% for leather footwear and 20% on footwear of synthetic resins.

(3) Janata soaps of value not exceeding Rs.10,000 per metric tonne bear a lower rate of excise duty of 5%. I propose to raise the value limit to Rs.12,000 per metric tonne. This should reduce the cost of cheaper toilet and laundry soaps. Soaps of value between Rs.12,000 per metric tonne and Rs.25,000 per metric tonne will continue to pay duty at 15% but expensive soaps, whose value exceeds Rs.25,000 per metric tonne, will be charged 25%.

(4) Complete exemption from excise duty is available in respect of shoddy wollen fabrics of assessable value not exceeding Rs.40 per sq. mtr. I propose to raise this limit to Rs.60 per sq. mtr. Shoddy blankets are already fully exempt from excise duty.

(5) Excise duty on fluorescent tubes is being reduced to the specific rate of Rs. 2 per tube. The other fittings and parts of such tubes will also pay reduced excise duty at the rate of 10%.

(6) I also propose to exempt, from excise duty, bio-gas appliances such as stoves, hot plates and lights. This would encourage greater use of bio-gas.

(7) Specified life-saving equipment is presently fully exempt from customs duty but import of spares needed for such equipment attracts duty. This is an unnecessary burden on our hospitals and clinics. I propose full exemption also for spares and accessories of such life-saving equipments.

(8) Items like note-books, letter-pads, blotting pads, registers, account books, file covers are being exempted from excise duty altogether.

126. I have two proposals for cotton textiles:–

(i) I propose to liberalise the Small-Scale Scheme for hand-processed fabrics by increasing the full exemption limit from 36 lakh sq. mtrs. to 50 lakh sq. mtrs. in case of hand-processed cotton fabrics.

(ii) The excise duty structure on cotton fabrics in the power-processing sector is being rationalised. Specific rates of excise duty are being provided in respect of fabrics of value upto Rs.25 per sq. mtr. This will involve a revenue loss of Rs. 15 crores.

127. I propose to remove excise duty on wool tops altogether. However, I propose to increase the customs duty on raw wool, woollen rags and wool waste from 20% to 30% and reduce the customs duty on synthetic rags from 80% to 30%. Excise duty on polyester-wool-blended yarn is also proposed to be reduced from Rs.30 per kg. to Rs. 15 per kg. This will benefit cheaper varieties of woollen textiles.

128. The present rates of duty on viscose staple fibre and viscose filament yarn have not been revised for a number of years. As a revenue measure, I propose to increase the excise duty on viscose staple fibre from Rs. 5 per kg. to Rs. 7 per kg. Similarly, excise duty on viscose filament yarn is also being increased by about 12.5% of the existing rates. These measures together will give us an additional revenue of Rs. 29 crores.

129. As the House is aware, there is a scheme which has replaced sales-tax on sugar, tobacco and textiles by an Additional Excise Duty (AED). The proceeds of AED go entirely to the State Governments. The AED is required to be raised to reach the agreed level of tax incidence. The rate of duty on costlier fabrics of assessable value exceeding Rs.100 per sq. mtr. is being increased to 20%. The total revenue gain of AED will be Rs. 40 crores and will be passed on wholly to State Governments.

130. I now propose to deal with some other industries which require relief:–

(1) As a result of recent policies, cement production has grown rapidly benefiting the consumer and converting a sellers market into a buyers market. The newer units in the industry need some support in view of their high capital costs. I, therefore, propose a rebate of excise duty at the rate of Rs.50 per metric tonne in respect of portland cement manufactured by units commencing production of such cement on or after 1.4.1986. This rebate will be available for a period of three years from 1.3.1987. The levy quota in respect of such units is also being reduced from the existing 30% to 15%. The excise concession will be available only to those units whose aggregate production is not less than 30% of the licensed capacity.

(2) I propose to allow imports of specified machinery for improvement in productivity and quality of solvent-extracted oils and oilmeals at concessional duty rate of 55%. Last year, we introduced a system of rebate in excise duties for vanaspati and soap linked to larger use of minor oils. This has had the desired effect and production of rice-bran oil as well as its use in vanaspati and soap have increased considerably. The rebate scheme is being continued this year. There are some procedural changes and the ad valorem duty on vanaspati is being changed to a specific duty.

(3) Better food-packaging and food-processing can contribute greatly to raise the income of our farmers. I have already made some proposals in plastics which will help. I further propose to reduce the import duty on specified items of machinery and aseptic packaging from 101% to 50%.

(4) I propose to exempt 36 more drug intermediates used either exclusively or predominantly in the manufacture of drugs from additional duty of customs. In addtion, I propose to lower the customs duty to 70% on two specified drug intermediates required for the manufacture of pyrazinamide, an anti-TB drug.

(5) Customs duty on specified raw materials for refractories is being reduced.

(6) It is proposed to reduce excise duty on unwrought aluminium of CG-grade from 13% to 11%.

(7) I propose to reduce excise duty on feature films, including dubbed feature films by about 10% of the existing duty leviable.

(8) Denatured-ethyl-alcohol of specified strength, when imported for use exclusively for industrial purposes, is being exempted from customs duty in excess of 60% ad valorem.

(9) It is proposed to merge the two existing SSI schemes for the refrigeration and air-conditioning appliances and machinery industry into one and to liberalise it. Full exemption from excise duty will now be available for clearance upto Rs. 5 lakhs. Thereafter, 50% of the excise duty leviable will be applicable for clearance between Rs. 5 lakhs and Rs. 15 lakhs. Subsequently, the unit will pay the normal duty but eligibility limit for retaining exemption and concessions for the unit will be Rs. 40 lakhs.

(10) I propose to extend the concessional rate of customs duty of 20% in respect of HBI (Hot Briquetted Iron)/ sponge iron and melting scrap of steel available to electric arc furnace units to induction furnace units also.

(11) Customs duty on fluorspar (natural calcium fluoride) used for manufacture of aluminium fluoride is being reduced from 110% to 75%.

(12) I also propose to reduce customs duty to 25% for plant and equipment needed for manufacture of family-planning apparatus and appliances and also of equipment using non-conventional energy sources. The same low-duty rate is being applied for certain specified sophisticated fire-fighting equipment for fire-fighting services administered by Central/State/U.T. Governments and local bodies.

131. In looking for more revenue, I have to fall back on the ever dependable and reliable friend of Finance Ministers and the certified enemy of Health Ministers. Lately, I am told, the friendly relationship has been marred by disputes and litigation. I now propose to restore amity between the two by moving over to a new and more rational system of levying excise duties.

132. The existing scheme of excise duty on cigarettes is based on the printed retail price. I propose to move over to an entirely new scheme of specific excise duty based on the length of the cigarette. This is the system prevalent in many countries. It ensures unambiguous determination of the excise duty, avoiding all problems of determining either assessable value or sale value.

133. It is proposed that for non-filter cigarettes of size upto 70mm, the excise duty would be Rs.150 per 1000 cigarettes. In case of filter cigarettes, the excise duty will be in four slabs namely, upto 70 mm, over 70 upto 75 mm, over 75 upto 85mm, over 85 upto 100mm. The rates of duty per 1000 filter cigarettes in these slabs will be Rs.200, Rs.300, Rs.400 and Rs.600, respectively. The tariff rate for cigarettes is Rs.700 and, therefore, non-filter cigarettes beyond 70 mm length and filter cigarettes beyond 100 mm length will pay the tariff rate.

134. This scheme will be a major simplification and rationalisation measure. Incidentally, it will also yield additional revenue to Government of Rs.200 crores!

135. I will now mention some other measures largely of rationalisation:–

(1) Denudation of our forests is causing serious damage to our environment. The tax structure must also make a contribution towards preservation of our forest wealth. With this objective in view, we have rationalised the duty structure on wood products. I propose to levy a uniform rate of excise duty of 20% on wood products based on waste wood such as particle-board, insulation and hard-boards and fibre-boards. A higher rate of 30% will be levied on all plywoods made from prime timber. I invite suggestions from Members and other conservationists and I am prepared to take further measures which would implement this policy objective.

(2) Excise duty on snuff and chewing tobacco or products containing chewing tobacco is being imposed at the rate of 25% .

(3) A large number of exemption notifications in customs have the effect of lowering the rate of duty below 25% for many items. In order to prevent invoicing malpractices, rates of duty should not be below 25% except in very special circumstances. Accordingly, duty rates are being raised to 25% for 7 items. In a few other cases, the duty rates have been reviewed and increased.

(4) The concessional rate of 25% (basic) in respect of soda ash will continue until 31st March, 1988.

(5) The 70% concessional duty on 13 specified parts of mechanical and quartz analogue wrist watches will continue for another year with certain modifications. The rate of duty is being enhanced to 100% for three specified parts. The concessional rate in respect of certain other parts of wrist watches is being withdrawn altogether.

(6) The excise duty on aerated soft drink is being increased by 20 paise per bottle and in the case of soda, by 15 paise per bottle. Soda and soft drinks in packagings other than bottles will have a duty of 60% and 75%, respectively. MODVAT benefits will now be available to these items. Hence, the effective incidence will be considerably lower.

(7) Processed foods of various types are charged 15% excise duty. The list of such processed and relatively expensive packaged foods is being extended to noodles, spaghetti, macaroni, vermicelli, flakes of cereals, ready-to-cook food- mixes, etc. put up for sale in unit containers.

(8) Basic customs duty on unwrought aluminium is proposed to be raised from 20% ad valorem to 35% plus the normal additional duty. This is necessitated by the upward revision of domestic aluminium prices to equate the landed cost of imported metal with the statutory price per tonne.

(9) I propose to raise the excise duty on steel ingots made by mini-steel plants from Rs.315 per tonne to Rs.365 per tonne so as to equate the duty with steel ingots produced by the integrated steel plants. Even at the revised rate, the ad valorem incidence of excise duty will be lower than on the steel produced by integrated plants because of substantial MODVAT credit and higher prices.

136. I am also taking this opportunity to bring the surplus of the Oil Pool Account into the tax-net. This will have no effect on consumer prices. This surplus presently accrues to Government as non-tax receipts. I now propose to raise the customs duty on imported crude petroleum by Rs.500 per tonne. I also propose to increase the ceiling limits upto which excise duty by way of cess for the development of oil industry may be levied on crude oil and natural gas produced in India. The limits are proposed to be raised from Rs.300 per tonne to Rs.1000 per tonne on crude oil and from Rs.50 to Rs.300 per thousand cubic metres on natural gas. The effective rate of cess on crude oil is proposed to be raised from 1st March, 1987 from Rs.300 to Rs.600 per tonne. The proposals are expected to yield Rs.800 crores by way of customs duty and Rs.900 crores by way of cess with an equivalent reduction in non-tax receipts. These increases will be absorbed fully by the Pool Account and will not affect prices paid by the consumer in any way.

137. Apart from the above proposals, I have proposed certain amendments in the Finance Bill seeking to effect changes in the excise and customs tariffs. These amendments are merely enabling provisions and have no revenue significance. Besides, there are several proposals for amendments in existing notifications, excise rules which have merely procedural significance. In order to save the time of the House, I do not propose to recount them. Provision in the Finance Bill is also being made for continuation of the levy of auxiliary duty of customs and Special Excise duty.

138. Copies of notifications giving effect to the changes in customs and excise duties effective from 1st March, 1987, will be laid on the table of the House in due course.

139. My proposals in respect of Customs and Central Excise duties outlined above are likely to yield additional revenue of Rs.531.73 crores from Customs duties and Rs.431.80 crores from Excise duties. The concessions and reliefs aggregate Rs.464.81 crores on the Customs side and Rs.130.00 crores on the Excise side. The net additional revenue from Customs duties thus would be Rs.66.92 crores and that from Excise duties, Rs.301.80 crores. In Excise duties, the Centre's share would be Rs.109.48 crores and that of States, Rs.192.32 crores. Out of the total net additional yield of Rs.368.72 crores, Centre's share would be Rs.176.40 crores and that of the States, Rs.192.32 crores.

140. I had earlier mentioned that the Budget deficit at the existing rates of taxes would be Rs.6,010 crores. The proposed tax measures, taken together with reliefs, are estimated to yield net additional revenue of Rs.322 crores to the Centre. This will leave an uncovered deficit of Rs.5,688 crores. This is significantly lower than the deficit for the current year. As mentioned earlier, I have decided that this shall not be exceeded. I have set in motion measures to implement this decision.

141. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am conscious of the enormous challenges that confront our economy. Some are inherent in the process of planned development in a democracy. But some are in the nature of a price that we have to pay for pursuing an independent foreign policy. The people of India have asserted their independence and willingly accepted these burdens. Their heroic exertions, their sacrifices, and their unshakable confidence in their capacity to build the India of their dreams are a source of strength, inspiration and direction to me. Let us move forward with determination.

142. I commend the Budget to the House.

बजट का सार BUDGET AT A GLANCE

व्याख्यात्मक टिप्पणी Explanatory Note

इस वर्ष बजट अनुमानों का संकलन संशोधित लेखा वर्गीकरण के अधीन किया गया है, जो वर्ष 1987-88 से प्रभावी है। इसका निर्धारण भारत के नियंत्रक और महालेखा परीक्षक के परामर्श से राष्ट्रपति द्वारा किया गया है। नए वर्गीकरण के अन्तर्गत ऊर्जा, वैज्ञानिक अनुसंधान और पर्यावरण जैसे वर्तमान महत्वपूर्ण क्षेत्रों पर जोर दिया गया है और इसमें मुख्य लेखा शीर्षों और आयोजनाओं में विकास के शीर्षों के बीच परस्पर सादृश्य कायम किया गया है। इसका अभिप्राय न केवल खर्च का पुनः वर्गीकरण करना है बल्कि इसके अन्तर्गत राजस्व और पूंजी के बीच कुछ लेन-देनों का पुनर्वर्गीकरण भी किया गया है। उदाहरणार्थ, रक्षा सेवाओं के कुछ लेन-देनों को राजस्व से पूंजी के अन्तर्गत अन्तरित कर दिया गया है और आयातित उर्वरकों पर सब्सिडी को पूंजी से राजस्व के अन्तर्गत अन्तरित कर दिया गया है। जहां तक संभव हो सका है, 1986-87 से संबंधित लेन-देनों का नए वर्गीकरण के अनुरूप पुनर्समूहीकरण किया गया है।

आयोजना व्यय में वर्तमान विकास और साथ ही निवेश परिव्यय शामिल है। सातवीं आयोजना दस्तावेज से अपनाए गए अनुमानों का, इस दस्तावेज में अनुमानों के प्रस्तुतीकरण को दृष्टिगत रखते हुए, पुनर्समूहीकरण/समायोजन कर दिया गया है

The Budget estimates have been compiled this year under the revised accounting classification, effective from the year 1987-88, prescribed by the President on the advice of the Comptroller and Auditor General of India. The new classification emphasises current areas of concern like energy, scientific research and environment, and brings about one to correspondence between major heads of account and heads of development in the Plans. This has meant not only regrouping of expenditures but also reclassification of certain transactions between revenue and capital. For example, while certain transactions of defence services have been transferred from revenue to capital, subsidy on imported fertilisers has been transferred from capital to revenue. To the extent possible, transactions relating to 1986-87 have been regrouped to correspond to the new classification.

The expenditures of commercial departments have been taken net of their receipts so that increase in the volume of transactions does not inflate the figures on both sides. Similarly, short-term loans and advances given to the States and recovered during the same year have been netted. Certain transactions which do not involve cash outgo and are matched by receipts e.g. supscription to International Monetary Fund have been excluded so that focus is on real items of expenditure. External assistance received whether in the form of grants or loans has been brought together. Estimates relating to defence services have been shown at one place.

Plan expenditure comprises current development as well as investment outlays. The estimates adopted from the Seventh Plan document have been regrouped/adjusted to conform to the presentation of estimates in this document.

THE ECONOMIC SITUATION IN 1986-87

There is strong evidence that the Indian economy is now on a new growth path. In the eighties, the average annual rate of growth has been 5 per cent which is much higher than the historical trend rate of growth. The industrial growth rate is increasing and, despite three successive weak monsoons the food situation remains comfortable. Inflation is under control and, in the current year, the trade deficit has also been reduced significantly. These are substantial achievements, made possible by a sound and responsive macro-economic policy environment.

1.2 Despite a poor monsoon, the growth in Gross National Product in 1986-87 may reach five per cent, which is close to the Seventh Plan target. The index of industrial production (base 1980-81 = 100) provides confirmation that industrial growth in recent years has been higher than previously recorded. This index reflects the present composition of industry better than the current index (base 1970 = 100) and includes more comprehensive information on the small scale sector. The manufacturing sector, in particular, has shown a much healthier growth rate. There have been fewer bottlenecks to industrial growth as the infrastructure sector also performed well for the third year running with the growth in electricity generation, railway movement and coal production being the most impressive.

5. April-November 1986 over the same period of 1985.
6. January 31, 1987

Note : Index of Industrial Producrion from the year 1983-84 is based on CSO's re-distributed weights. The growth rates based on the revised series of industrial production (base 1980-81) are given in parenthesis.

1.3 Major reforms, which gave a new direction to fiscal policy over the last two years, not only provided a sizeable increase of over 22 per cent in revenues from major Central Government taxes in 1985-86 (Revised Estimates) but a continued high growth of around 17 per cent in 1986-87 (April—December). However, trends in growth of non-Plan expenditure are disturbingly high and the Government has initiated a number of measures to reduce costs and expenditure in order to curb further escalation.

1.4 The 1986 monsoon was below average for the third consecutive year. Although the widespread drought conditions of 1982 did not prevail because rainfall was more uniform this year, nevertheless, a decline of about two million tonnes in kharif foodgrain production is expected as a result of insufficient rain. Rabi production, however, is likely to increase and as a consequence overall foodgrain output is anticipated to be about one million tonnes higher than last year. The wholesale price index has shown a moderate inflation rate of about six per cent but consumer prices have registered a higher increase. This is a matter of concern. The price situation would need to be kept under careful surveillance.

1.5 The overall balance of payments situation, remains difficult. Although the trade position improved this year with exports increasing by an impressive 17.3 per cent (April—November) and imports remaining well under control with a growth of only 1.4 per cent (April—November), this should not induce any sense of complacency. The strength of economic policy in the trade sector has been the anticipation of possible problems and the implementation of policies well in advance of the developing situation. Further corrective measures need to be taken now in order to ensure a more comfortable balance of payments scenario over the next few years.

Gross National Product, Savings and Investment

1.6 In 1985-86, the first year of the Seventh Five Year Plan, GNP growth was 5.1 per cent, as against 3.7 per cent in the preceding year. The acceleration in GNP growth in 1985-86 was mainly on account of the recovery in agricultural production which, in terms of gross value added, registered an increase of 1.3 per cent in contrast to a decline of 0.8 per cent in 1984-85. The manufacturing sector, both registered and unregistered, also recorded a higher growth rate in 1985-86. These GNP growth rates are based on the current index of industrial production, which understates the growth in the manufacturing sector, and consequently in the overall GNP (see Chapter 4—Industrial Performance). If, however, allowance is made for the growth recorded by the new index of industrial production (base 1980-81=100), the GNP growth in 1985-86 would be around 5.5 per cent (instead of 5.1 per cent), and about 4.0 per cent (instead of 3.7 per cent) in 1984-85. On the basis of available indications, the growth of GNP anticipated in the current year is between 4.5 to 5.0 per cent. So far, despite a setback in agricultural output, the Plan target for aggregate economic growth is likely to be achieved, aided by good growth in industrial output.

1.7 The rate of gross domestic capital formation in the economy is estimated to have increased from 23.5 per cent of GDP at current market prices in 1983-84 to 24.4 per cent in 1984-85, and further to 24.6 per cent in 1985-86. The rate of gross domestic savings was 22.8 per cent in 1985-86 as compared with 22.9 per cent in 1984-85. Reliance on the inflow of capital from abroad has increased from 1.5 per cent of GDP in 1984-85 to 1.8 per cent in 1985-86.

1.8 The share of the public sector in GDP has increased from 25 per cent in 1984-85 to 26 per cent in 1985-86. Its performance in terms of gross savings was also somewhat better, with its share recording an increase from 13.1 per cent to 13.5 per cent in these two years. However, there is still a significant gap in relation to the Seventh Plan targets for resource generation in the public sector.

Agricultural Production

1.9 The monsoon in 1986-87 was below average for the third consecutive year and was considerably worse than in 1985-86 (see Chapter 2). An expected increase of about 4 per cent in rabi production, however, will more than compensate for the decline of 2.3 per cent in kharif output, and overall foodgrain production should be over 151 million tonnes, which is higher than last year but still below the peak production achieved in 1983-84.

1.10 In spite of the markedly adverse weather conditions, agricultural production in the eighties has maintained a steady growth path. This is encouraging indication of the substantial degree of resilience which has been attained in the agricultural sector as a result of large scale investment in irrigation. Stocks of foodgrains remained at a high level of 23.6 million tonnes (December 1986) which is a reflection of the longer term growth in foodgrains production and the self-sufficiency achieved in this sector.

1.11 The year 1986-87 also saw the successful implementation of certain major Government policies in agriculture which were aimed at boosting domestic production of sugarcane and oilseeds and reducing imports. After last year's two-year sugar policy, which provided a stable environment to farmers, sugarcane production increased substantially and the value of sugar imports fell sharply in the current year. Government policy on edible oils aimed at providing remunerative prices for edible oilseed to farmers in order to increase domestic production and reduce imports. This was followed by a marked reduction in imports of edible oils. These policies contributed to a substantial saving to the nation in foreign exchange.

1.12 Given the high level of foodstocks, the Government was able to expand a number of schemes which offer food for work and direct subsidized food to the unemployed and low income groups. In addition to providing foodgrains at highly concessional rates to Tribal Development Project Areas and Nutritional Programmes, the allocation of wheat and rice was much higher for the National Rural Employment Programme (NREP) and the Rural Labour Employment Guarantee Programme (RLEGP).

Infrastructure

1.13 The current year will be the third consecutive high growth year in the infrastructure sector, recording an increase of around 9-10 per cent. The high growth rate over the last three years, particularly in key sectors such as electricity, coal and rail traffic, would tend to ease the bottlenecks in the economy and enhance the growth process in other industries. The improved response of this sector is significant as the Government has accorded particular importance to better management and performance in infrastructure industries in view of their crucial role in the economy.

1.14 Foremost among the infrastructure sectors showing impressive performance is the power sector which grew by 10.3 per cent in April—December, 1986 compared to the same period of 1985. This sharp increase comes on top of two previous relatively high growth years: 8.6 per cent in 1985-86 and 11.6 per cent in 1984-85. Perhaps the most important indicators of better performance in this sector are: (i) the record levels of PLF (Plant Load Factor) achieved over the last two years, with the PLF in 1986-87 (April—December) being the highest for comparable periods over the last seven years; and (ii) the high growth rates achieved in generation from the thermal power plants—the annual growth rate in thermal power generation has been between 13 and 15 per cent over the last three years.

1.15 The performance of the railways has also been strong with a growth in revenue earning goods traffic of 6.6 per cent in April—December 1986 over the same period last year. This is particularly creditable as it follows a high 9.4 per cent growth in 1985-86. An important aspect of this year's growth has been the excellent performance of the railways in transportation of two key commodities; movement in foodgrains increased by 19.7 per cent and iron ore for exports increased by 13.6 per cent during April—December 1986, compared to the same period of 1985. Another core industry showing an improvement this year is the Coal sector. The growth in coal production in 1986-87 (April—December)—at 8.7 per cent—has been the highest in the last five years.

Industrial Performance

1.16 Preliminary results of the comprehensive exercise to revise the index of industrial production from a base year of 1970 to 1980-81, indicate that the actual industrial growth rate over the last two years may be significantly higher than recorded by the existing index (see Table). The revised index of industrial production (IIP Base 1980-81=100) shows a growth rate for the years 1984-85 and 1985-86 of around 8 to 9 per cent per year. Although full details are not yet available for all industries for the current year tentative information based on a large proportion of the industries in the index suggests a growth of around 7-8 per cent in April—October in the current financial year.

TABLE 1.2

(Average Annual Growth rates)

Year	Revised Series (1980-81 =100)	Existing Series (1970 =100)
1981-82, 1982-83 & 1983-84 . . .	6.4	6.3
1984-85 & 1985-86	8.7	6.5

1.17 This tends to corroborate the Annual Survey of Industries (ASI) figures which have always suggested that the 1970-based index tends to under-estimate industrial growth, particularly in the latter years. The ASI which has a much wider coverage in the manufacturing sector of industry than the IIP and does not suffer from the 'base' problems associated with an index, has consistently tended to show a higher growth than the IIP : for the period 1974-75 to 1982-83 the compound annual growth rate according to the ASI was 8.0 per cent, while according to the IIP it was only 4.4 per cent.

1.18 Of the three main components of overall industrial performance, the manufacturing sector has shown the most significant acceleration. The main increase in the growth rate of the manufacturing sector has occurred during the last two years, while in the mining sector the index (1980-81) shows a higher growth rate for most of the eighties, averaging a compound annual growth rate of 11.0 per cent (compared to 10.1 per cent according to the current index). The differential growth rates of the manufacturing sector in the two indices arise from the higher growth rates recorded by several new industries that emerged in the seventies, after the current index was constructed. Another important source of growth better captured by the 1980-81 index is production from small scale industries which has been a dynamic sector of economy and a major employment generator.

1.19 A number of industrial policy initiatives were taken during the year which were in continuation of the basic trend over the last few years of simplifying procedures and removing bottlenecks to capacity expansion and technology upgradation. The basic thrust of industrial policy has been growth oriented in order to boost production and generate employment with particular focus on small scale industry and the manufacturing sector. Schemes of broad-banding and capacity re-endorsement were introduced to increase output and improve capacity utilisation. Several other policy measures were taken to encourage investment and expansion of existing units to levels that ensure economies of scale.

Prices

1.20 Based on present trends, it is likely that 1986-87 will end with an inflation rate of around 6.5 per cent according to the Wholesale Price Index (WPI). This is considerably below the average annual price increase of about 8 per cent over the last decade and suggests that the overall price situation in the economy is within control. However, the rise in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) (for industrial workers) of 7.8 per cent between March and December, 1986 was once again higher than for the WPI. The higher increase in the CPI is due to the different weighting patterns, time-lags in transmittal of changes from wholesale to retail levels, and higher increase in prices of certain items not included in the WPI, such as housing and personal services. The downward pressure on CPI which begins only after November each year also occurred this year with a drop of 4 points in December and it is to be hoped that the CPI will come closer in alignment with the WPI by the end of 1986-87.

1.21 Prices of food articles in 1986-87 have been far more stable than in 1985-86, increasing at an underlying rate of about four per cent compared to around 6.5 per cent last year. On the other hand, prices of agricultural commercial crops have increased sharply. In the previous year there was over-production and excess supply conditions existed in a number of fibre and commercial crops, causing their prices to fall sharply : jute prices fell 72 per cent; raw cotton fell 16 per cent; tea fell 11 per cent; condiments and spices fell 16 per cent and oilseeds fell by 1 per cent. The production of many of these commercial crops have stabilized at lower levels this year and their prices have risen to more normal levels.

1.22 The impact of these sharp changes in the supply and prices of this group of items was to cut about 3 per cent off the inflation rate last year, and to add an extra 2 per cent to the current inflation rate as the prices of these crops increased from the extremely low levels reached last year. If this unusual volatility in prices of this group of commercial crops is averaged over the last two years, the inflation rate for both the years centres around 4—5 per cent per year which is a more accurate reflection of the underlying inflation rate in 1985-86 and 1986-87, the first two years of the Seventh Plan.

1.23 The sharp increase in prices of edible oils and oilseeds this year contributed to the rise in the price indices. The current year's price increase, however, should be seen in the context of the falling prices of these items over the last two years. Considered over a three-year period, the average rise in prices of oilseeds was about 5 per cent per year. The Government's policy is to boost domestic production of edible oils and reduce imports in order to save foreign exchange. Consequently, the falling price trends of oilseeds and edible oils over the last two years needed to be reversed if farmers are to receive remunerative prices for growing oilseeds. The rise in prices this year counteracts this declining trend and attempts at redressing the balance between the farmer and the consumer.

Fiscal and Monetary Policy

1.24 The year 1986-87 witnessed far-reaching reforms in fiscal policy which carried forward the process initiated in the previous year. Steps were taken to implement most of the key proposals in the Long Term Fiscal Policy (LTFP). The principal objectives guilding the reforms have been to simplify the tax structure, establish a regime of reasonable tax rates combined with better administration and enforcement to improve compliance and raise revenues, foster a stable and predictable tax policy environment, usher in a more open approach to budget making and make the tax structure more conducive to growth and equity.

1.25 The Centre's revenues from major taxes, which increased by over 22 per cent in 1985-86 (RE), showed a further increase of around 17 per cent in April—December 1986, according to provisional data. Of particular interest is the buoyancy in direct tax collections, which increased by about 23 per cent in 1985-86 (RE). Income and Corporation taxes (excluding from the oil sector) are estimated to have increased by a further 26 per cent in April—December 1986. The rapid increase in tax revenues after 1984-85 tends to confirm the soundness of the Government's approach.

1.26 Despite the enviable record in raising revenues, the Government's resource position continued to be under heavy pressure because of the rapid increase in expenditure commitments, especially on non-Plan account. In 1985-86 (Revised Estimates) defence, interest payments and major subsidies, accounted for 67 per cent of the Centre's total non-Plan expenditures. In 1986-87 (Budget Estimates) the proportion rose to 70 per cent. The problem of growing claims on the Government's resources was compounded during the year by the measures taken to implement the Pay Commission's recommendations.

1.27 The pressures on the Government's fiscal position found reflection in monetary developments. In 1985-86 the growth in overall liquidity in the economy (M3) had been contained at 15.9 per cent as compared with an annual average increase of 18.5 per cent in the preceding two years. The growth of M3 in the current year has been faster, with an increase of 15.7 per cent in the first nine months (upto January 2, 1987), as compared to a rise of 13.3 per cent in the same period of 1985-86. Of particular concern is the marked increase of Rs. 5,048 crores (upto January 2, 1987) in net RBI credit to the Government, as compared to a rise of Rs. 3,186 crores in the same period last year.

1.28 The current year also saw the implementation of some of the major recommendations of the Committee to Review the Working of the Monetary System, including the introduction of monetary targeting, on an experimental basis, the decision to modify the presentation of information relating to the Government's budgetary deficit, the introduciion of new 182 days Treasury Bills with flexible rates determined on the basis of monthly auctions and increased yields on long-term Government securities together with reduction of the maximum maturity period.

1.29 Highlights of the fiscal policy initiatives undertaken during the year include an overhaul of the excise tax structure through the introduction of modified value added tax (MODVAT); the launching of a simpler and more growth-oriented scheme of excise duty concessions for small scale units; the implementation of revised classifications and nomenclatures for the excise and customs tariffs; simplification and rationalization of taxation provisions relating to gifts and capital gains; introduction of the new Investment Deposit Account Scheme with a view to replace the existing scheme of Investment Allowance; simplification of depreciation provisions under the Income Tax Act, the enhancement of income tax concessions to exporters; a revamping of the Duty Drawback Scheme for exports; the publication of a Discussion Paper on "Simplification and Rationalisation of Direct Tax Laws" to elicit public opinion on the matter, the establishment of the new Customs and Excise Revenues Appellate Tribunal; systematic steps to curb tax evasion including, for example, the empowering of Government with a pre-emptive right to purchase properties above a certain value, the introduction of a series of new financial instruments to help mobilize resources for the public sector and measures to improve control over expenditures.

Balance of Payments

1.30 In anticipation of the emerging pressure on the balance of payments, the Government undertook a series of corrective measures, during the course of 1985-86 and 1986-87 to boost the growth of exports and curb the increase in imports. A wide range of export enhancing initiatives were launched during this period. On the import side, the focus was on measures to encourage indigenous production of key bulk import items such as sugar, edible oils and fertilizers. These measures, together with the sharp fall in international prices of crude oil contributed to the healthy increase of 17.3 per cent in exports, in rupee terms, in April—November, 1986 over April—November, 1985 and the curbing of import expansion to only 1.4 per cent over the same period. Excluding crude oil, exports increased by 19.6 per cent. As a result, the trade deficit in April—November, 1986 showed a decline of 18.3 per cent or Rs. 1,001 crores as compared to the value attained in April—November, 1985.

1.31 These recent trends in the country's external trade account are clearly welcome, but they should not induce any complacency. The balance of payments continued to be under pressure from the bunching of repayment obligations on past borrowings from the IMF and other sources, protectionist tendencies in international trade, the deceleration in indigenous oil production and the unfavourable climate for concessional assistance. The adverse factors exerting strain on the balance of payments can be expected to persist throughout the rest of the decade and into the 1990s. Full balance of payments data are not available beyond 1984-85, but the available information suggests significant balance of payments pressure in the current year despite the improvements on trade account. Overall foreign exchange reserves, movements in which reflect the net result of all transactions in the external sector of the economy, recorded a decline of Rs. 160 crores by the end of January, 1987 as compared to increases of Rs. 1271 crores and Rs. 577 crores in 1984-85 and 1985-86 respectively. However, the overall foreign exchange reserves position continues to be comfortable with holdings equivalent to over four months' import requirements.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION

The rainfall this year, both during the monsoon and post-monsoon months, was far below normal and considerably worse than 1985-86. However, despite these poor weather conditions, no significant decline is foreseen in Kharif foodgrains production and some growth in Rabi output is expected. This may be an encouraging indication of a certain degree of resilience developing in Indian agriculture. Overall foodgrains output is anticipated to be around 151.5 million tonnes, about one million tonnes higher than last year.

2.2 Sugarcane production is expected to recover following the stable environment provided to farmers by the two-year sugar policy and the domestic availability of sugar which increased sharply last year, should show a further rise. As a result, imports of sugar will be considerably lower than last year. This year's outlook for production of oilseeds, however, is once again uncertain with rainfall falling for the second year in succession in some of the major oilseed growing regions. A number of policies have been initiated to boost domestic oilseed production and the medium and long term trends are likely to show considerable improvement. Cotton, jute and mesta production this year will not reach the exceptionally high levels—which led to excess supply conditions in 1985-86, but a reasonably good fibre crop is expected. Production of pulses is likely to remain around the level attained in 1985-86.

2.3 After the exceptionally good monsoon in 1983-84, there have been three consecutive years of poor rainfall. The failure of the moonsoon in 1984-85 caused a sharp fall in foodgrain production but, thereafter, production has stablished at higher levels. The apparent levelling-off of agricultural output over the last three years is a direct consequence of an extended period of unfavourable weather conditions. Agricultural production during the last five years has broadly maintained a healthy longer term 3.5 per cent per annum trend growth rate (see graph).

2.4 A weighted index of rainfall during the monsoon months (see charts) shows that the overall level of precipitation this year has been considerably below 1985-86, which in itself was a moderately bad year with below normal rainfall. However, the month-wise distribution of rainfall this year shows a fairly uniform pattern and is unlike the erratic nature of major drought years. So far as prospects for the Rabi crops are concerned, with three quarters of the area under wheat being irrigated, an increase of about 4.5 per cent can be expected in wheat production and a growth of just under 4.0 per cent for Rabi crops as a whole. Kharif output, on the other hand, is likely to be lower by two million tonnes at about 84 million tonnes.

2.5 Stocks of foodgrains with public agencies remain at a comfortably high level of 23.6 million tonnes (December 1986, see graph), reflecting the high growth rate and self-sufficiency achieved in the production of the major cereals, wheat and rice. Large food stocks are an important factor in lowering inflationary expectations on food prices and combating speculation in private foodgrains trade. Nevertheless, there are financial costs associated with large stock holdings and excess stocks of wheat combined with an inadequate production of oilseeds and some other crops are also an indication of certain supply and demand imbalances in Indian agriculture.

2.6 On the demand side, the Government has initiated a number of policies to ensure that foodgrains reach the poorer sections at highly subsidized rates. In addition, to overcome the problem of effective demand among the unemployed and low income groups, there has been substantial expansion of schemes which offer food for employment. Some of the more important policy measures implemented during the year are :

i—additional allocation of rice and wheat to states for public distribution;

ii—open market sales/auctions of wheat;

iii—additional allocation of rice and wheat at concessional rates to Integrated Tribal Development Projects and Nutritional Programmes;

iv—higher allocation of wheat and rice for the National Rural Employment Programme (NREP) and the Rural Labour Employment Guarantee Programme (RLEGP).

In order to reduce the level of stocks held by the Food Corporation of India (FCI), wheat prices were adjusted so that Roller Flour Mills (RFMs) had to buy their wheat directly from the open market instead of the FCI first procuring the wheat and then supplying it to the RFM's. The policy was particularly successful during the harvesting season when the RFM's purchased only a fraction of their requirements from the FCI and obtained the bulk of their supplies from the open market.

2.7 In order to boost domestic production of oilseeds, the Government initiated three major economic policies to provide more remunerative prices for oilseed farmers and encourage edible oil production. First, edible oil imports were cut back in order to conserve foreign exchange as well as provide a stimulous to domestic oilseed prices and production. The policy was successful as in 1985-86 imports were reduced by 55 per cent in value terms and over 15 per cent in quantity terms—substantial reductions for a single year. The vanaspati industry's use of indigenous oils increased from 35 per cent to over 50 per cent. Second, in order to reduce the intra-year price fluctuations and raise the harvest price for farmers, the policy on releasing imported edible oils for the open market was changed to a contra-seasonal pattern : less edible oil is released during the harvest season to keep prices buoyant for farmers, and greater quantities are released during the lean season to reduce prices and combat speculative trade. The third important policy measure involved a package of fiscal incentives which has been successful in ensuring that a greater quantity of minor oilseeds and rice bran are processed into edible oils and used in vanaspati production. In the 1986-87 Budget, substantial excise duty relief was provided for vanaspati units that utilize minor oils in the production of vanaspati. The minor oils included rice bran oil, mahuwa oil, watermelon seed oil, sal seed oil and mango kernel oil. Excise duty relief was also provided to encourage greater use of cotton seed oil in vanaspati production as well as minor oils in soap manufacture.

2.8 Major policy initiatives have also been taken to stimulate sugarcane and sugar production. The thrust of the new two-year sugar policy is to provide sugarcane farmers with more remunerative prices and to provide a more stable environment by announcing the following year's Statutory Minimum Price of sugarcane well before the sowing of cane begins i.e. prices are announced over a year in advance. Moreover, the diversion of sugarcane to khandsari units had increased substantially—less than 35 per cent of sugarcane was used for sugar production in 1984-85. The sugar policy, therefore, aimed at improving the competitiveness of sugar mills vis-a-vis khandsari units, by making the former more viable. In the process the increased competition for cane improved price and credit terms received by sugarcane farmers. As a result of the policy, sugar production increased by almost one million tonne in 1985-86 and is expected to increase further in 1986-87.

2.9 Finally, in an effort to provide a more secure and certain return to farmers, the Agricultural Price Policy presented to Parliament this year (see Chapter 5) recognised the importance of announcing support prices of crops well in advance of the sowing of the crop. The policy document presents a time table in which a deadline is set for the announcement by the Government of the minimum support price for each crop (see Table). This helps the farmer to make a rational decision on which crop to grow on the basis of an assured minimum price, thus reducing uncertainty considerably.

Performance in 1985-86

2.10 The overall production of foodgrains in 1985-86 at 150.5 million tonnes, though not upto the record level of 152.4 million tonnes achieved in 1983-84, nevertheless, marked a significant recovery from the 1984-85 level of 145.5 million tonnes and was a remarkable achievement in the face of a decline of 4.7 million tonnes in the production of coarse cereals. Production of pulses at 13 million tonnes in 1985-86 marked an increase of 1 million tonne over the preceding season's crop and reached the highest level achieved in the past 10 years. New records were set in the production of fibre crops, cotton and jute-mesta—the latter at 12.7 million bales surpassed by over 50 per cent the previous best of 8.4 million bales achieved in 1981-82.

2.11 Following a comparatively good rainfall in the 1983 monsoon season, the kharif foodgrains production in 1983-84 reached a record level of 89.23 million tonnes. The next two years were marked by comparatively poor rainfall. Kharif foodgrains production declined to 84.52 million tonnes in 1984-85 and recovered only slightly (by 1.74 per cent) in 1985-86 due in part to higher levels of input application. Recovery in rabi foodgrains production in 1985-86 was fairly sharp—an increase of 5.67 per cent to 64.48 million tonnes—setting a new record for rabi foodgrains.

2.12 Kharif foodgrains output for 1985-86 was affected by the delayed onset of South-West monsoon over the Central and Northern States. The delay was particularly pronounced in Gujarat and the monsoon during the season was erratic over many states. The seasonal rainfall was deficient in Karnataka, parts of Maharashtra, Gujarat and Rajasthan. As a result, the production of kharif coarse grains and oilseeds was affected. The performance of crops in irrigated areas and areas unaffected by drought conditions was good, whereas production of groundnut suffered a serious set back, particularly in Gujarat and Maharashtra. Production of coarse cereals declined by over 15 per cent to 26.47 million tonnes in 1985-86, as coarse grains are grown mostly under rainfed conditions.

2.13 Rice production reached an all-time record level of 64.2 million tonnes, which is 4.1 million tonnes (6.7 per cent) higher than the earlier peak of 60.1 million tonnes reached in 1983-84 and 5.8 million tonnes (10 per cent) higher than the level reached in 1984-85. This increase is fully due to increased yield rates, the area under rice during 1985-86 actually decreased by 0.6 per cent. All the major rice producing states, except Karnataka, Gujarat, West Bengal and Kerala recorded increases in production. The increase in rice production was particularly noteworthy in Andhra Pradesh, Tamilnadu and Uttar Pradesh where despite a fall in area or with no change in area, large increases in production were noticed. The increase in Andhra Pradesh was from 6.91 million tonnes to 7.66 million tonnes, in Tamilnadu from 5.36 million tonnes to 5.60 million tonnes and in Uttar Pradesh from 7.16 million tonnes to 8.20 million tonnes.

2.14 There was a record production of wheat during 1985-86 at 46.9 million tonnes as against the 1984-85 production level of 44.1 million tonnes and the previous record of 45.5 million tonnes achieved in 1983-84. The increase in production was recorded mainly in Rajasthan, Haryana, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh and Madhya Pradesh and attributable to higher yield rates during 1985-86 as compared to 1984-85. The major wheat growing states are Uttar Pradesh and Punjab. In Uttar Pradesh production increased by 0.81 million tonnes to 16.48 million tonnes and in Punjab it increased by as much as 0.82 million tonnes to 10.99 million tonnes. Gujarat, Maharashtra and West Bengal, however, recorded decreases in production.

2.15 Production of gram increased by 24.6 per cent during 1985-86 to 5.68 million tonnes. This increase was recorded mainly by the major producing states of Rajasthan, Haryana, Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh and was partly due to the increase in area and partly due to higher yield rates. In Uttar Pradesh it was due to an increase of 0.16 million hectares in area compared to 1984-85. The decline in production was, however, noticed in Maharashtra, Gujarat and Karnataka in 1985-86.

2.16 Production of Tur (Arhar) declined by 6.1 per cent to 2.43 million tonnes during 1985-86 after reaching a record level of 2.59 million tonnes in 1984-85. Lower production was recorded mainly by Uttar Pradesh, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Gujarat and Rajasthan. The decrease in production in Uttar Pradesh was due to lower yield rates whereas in the other states, it was partly due to shrinkage in area and partly due to lower yield rates.

2.17 Production of pulses in 1985-86 estimated at 12.97 million tonnes was higher than the production levels achieved during the previous few years. The share of kharif pulses (other than tur) in this was 2.02 million tonnes and that of rabi pulses (other than gram) 2.84 million tonnes. The production of kharif pulses (other than Tur) declined by 7.5 per cent whereas rabi pulses (other than gram) increased by 7.7 per cent. Lower production of kharif pulses was reported mainly by Karnataka, Rajasthan and Gujarat, due to drought conditions during the growth period of the crops in these States. Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh and Tamilnadu, however. reported some increases in production. The increase in the rabi pulses is reported mainly by Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal and Madhya Pradesh, and was due partly to increases in area and partly to higher yield rates.

2.18 There was a sharp decrease of 13.8 per cent in the production of groundnut during 1985-86 over the previous year. This was despite the increase of 2 per cent in the area under the crop. The decrease in production was reported mainly by Gujarat, Maharashtra and Rajasthan due to severe drought conditions in these states during 1985-86. Production in Gujarat declined from 1.57 million tonnes to 0.45 million tonnes, in Maharashtra from 0.73 million tonnes to 0.58 million tonnes and in Rajasthan from 0.17 million tonnes to 0.15 million tonnes. Increase in production was reported by Karnataka, Tamilnadu, Andhra Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh.

2.19 Production of rapeseed and mustard fell by 14 per cent to 2.64 million tonnes during 1985-86 after reaching a peak at 3.07 million tonnes in 1984-85. The decrease in production was largely due to the decline in yield rates, though the area under the crop also declined by about 5 per cent during the year. The decrease in production was reported by all the major rapeseed and mustard growing states except Orissa and Assam. The biggest decrease of 0.28 million tonnes to 0.59 million tonnes was registered in Rajasthan, which was mainly due to a decline in area under the crop from 1.08 million hectares to 0.81 million hectares.

2.20 Production of sugarcane showed a marginal improvement of 0.8 per cent over the previous year from 170.32 million tonnes in 1984-85 to 171.68 million tonnes in 1985-86. This was despite the shrinkage of area under the crop by 3.1 per cent to 2.86 million hectares. The increase in production was reported mainly by Tamilnadu, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, West Bengal and Madhya Pradesh and is due to the favourable weather conditions prevalent at the sowing time. The states showing large increases were Tamilnadu and Uttar Pradesh, from 17.59 million tonnes to 22.17 million tonnes and from 70.89 million tonnes to 73.06 million tonnes respectively. Decline in production was reported from Maharashtra, Gujarat, Karnataka, Assam, Andhra Pradesh and Rajasthan.

2.21 The production of cotton reached a level of 8.61 million bales in 1985-86, exceeding the previous peak level of 8.51 million bales, achieved in the preceding season, 1984-85. The increase in production was recorded mainly in Maharashtra, Punjab, Haryana and Rajasthan. Maharashtra showing an increase of 29.2 per cent to 1.89 million bales, Punjab showing an increase of 13 per cent to 1.40 million bales, Haryana an increase of 22 per cent to 0.75 million bales. The increase in production, however, was offset to some extent by the decline reported in Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, Gujarat and Tamilnadu.

2.22 The production of jute and mesta (taken together) in 1985-86 was estimated at a record level of 12.73 million bales showing an increase of 63.5 per cent over the 1984-85 level. The high market prices of fibre prevailing during 1984-85 led to an increase in area under the crop in 1985-86, while favourable weather conditions during the sowing/growth period of the crop led to increased yield rates. The production of jute was 10.95 million bales in 1985-86 as against 6.53 million bales in 1984-85. The production of mesta crop was higher at 1.78 million bales, compared with 1.26 million bales in 1984-85.

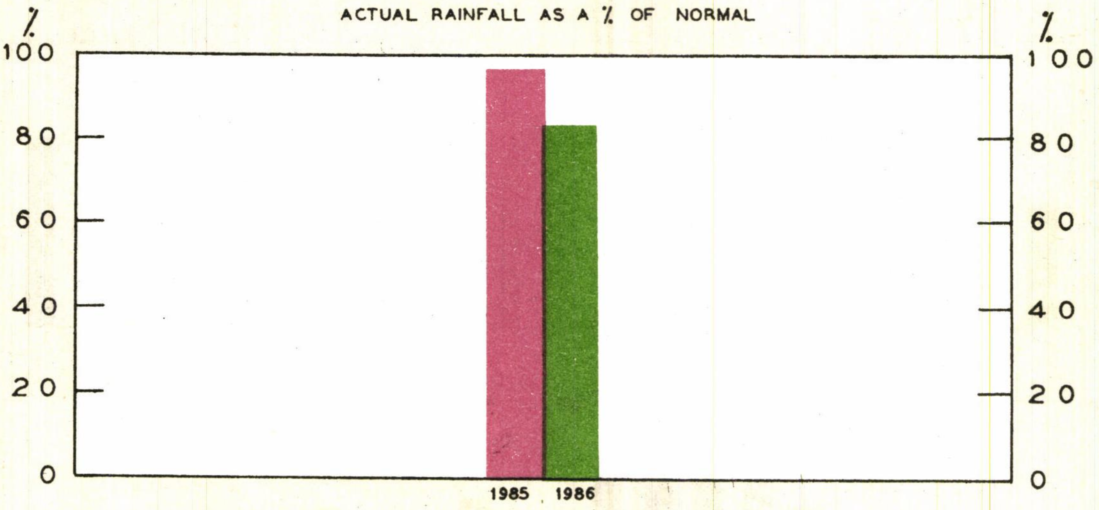
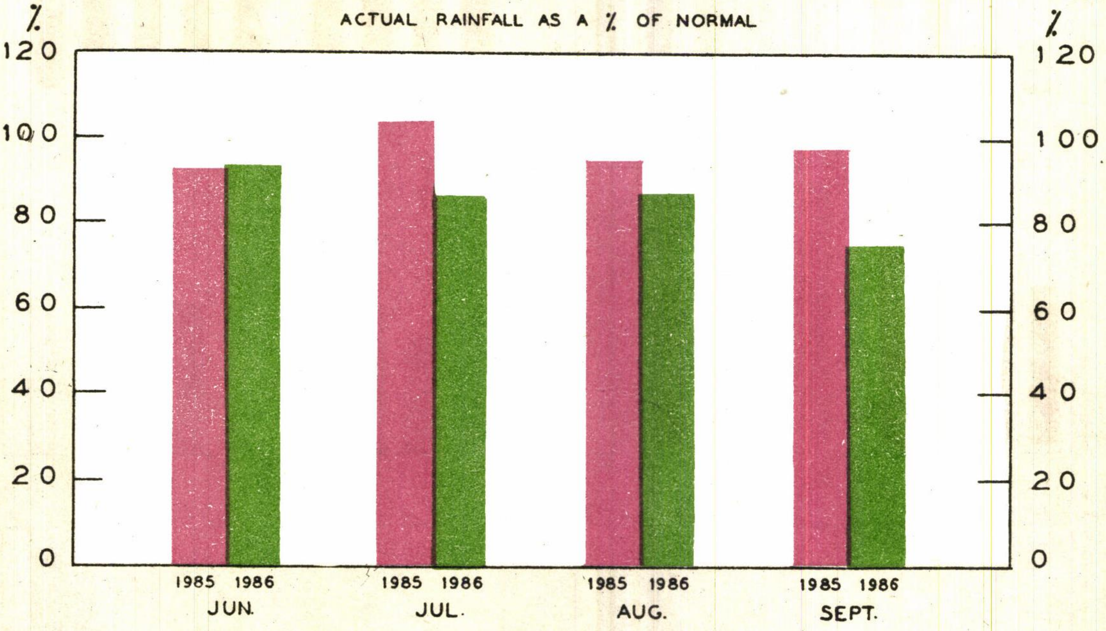
COMPARISON OF 1985 AND 1986 MONSOONS



MONTH-WISE COMPARISON OF '85 AND '86 RAIN



In order to monitor the impact of rainfall on production, an all-India weighted rainfall index was constructed at the Economic Division of the Ministry of Finance. In the construction of the all-India rainfall index, the following steps were carried out to derive the regional weighting pattern: (i) the districts contained in each of the 35 meteorological zones of the country were identified; (ii) the average area under kharif rice in each district for the triennium 1980-81 to 1982-83 was computed and aggregated to the meteorological zone leveal; (iii) the weights were computed for each meteorological zone by dividing the average area in each zone by the total area in all the zones; (iv) actual and normal rainfall data in each zone was extracted from the weekly weather reports issued by the Meteorological office (normal rainfall is calculated as the average rainfall in the zone over the last fifty years); (v) a weighted index of "actual" and "normal" rainfall was computed for each year incorporating all the meterological zones. The above graphs show the actual rainfall as a percentage of the normal rainfall computed in the manner described above.

2.23 Experience of recent years underlines the growing resilience of agricultural production. Foodgrains production has been maintained at a high level despite failure of monsoon during 1984-85 and 1985-86. According to present indications, foodgrains production in 1986-87 is expected to be close to the peak level of 152 million tonnes reached in 1983-84. This vindicates the strategy adopted for increasing production with emphasis on increased utilisation of irrigation potential and popularising use of modern inputs/practices and high yielding varieties of seeds. The substantial addition to irrigation potential which has been maintained at more than 2 million hectares per year alongwith increased use of fertilisers have to an appreciable extent, insulated the agricultural economy from the vageries of monsoon.

Prospects for 1986-87

Monsoon Rainfall

2.24 The South west monsoon in 1986 was worse than the monsoon in the previous few years. This is indicated by calculating the All-India weighted average of rainfall for each meteorological sub-division, using the area under paddy in each sub-division as the weight. No doubt, a single All-India average for a vast and climatically highly diverse country may not be a wholly reliable indicator. However, a comparison of the actual average rainfall in each meteorological sub-division with its 'normal' average for the past few years also shows that the monsoon rainfall in 1986 was the poorest for the past few years :

Deficient/ Scanty	7	11	3	8	9	14
Total	35	35	35	35	35	35

The deficient sub-divisions in 1986 cover Gujarat, West Rajasthan, Marathwada, Haryana, Plains of West Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Kerala and the North-Eastern States.

2.25 The monsoon advanced over Kerala well in time on 4th June 1986. After a relative lull in the next two weeks of June, the monsoon made brisk progress and by end-June, it covered almost the entire country except parts of West Rajasthan. Fairly good rains occurred in most of the states, including those which were severely affected by drought during the previous year such as Gujarat, Maharashtra, Karnataka, Madhya Pradesh and parts of Rajasthan. But in the month of July, the rainfall activity was highly subdued. Fairly widespread rains occurred in the central and southern states in the first fortnight of August, but subsequently break monsoon conditions again set in, and August rains were insignificant in many parts of the country. Towards the end of September, however, there was revival of monsoon which broke the long dry spell prevailing in the North since the middle of August. Significantly deficient regions included Gujarat, West Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and parts of Maharashtra.

2.26 Production of kharif paddy has been affected because of delays in transplantation in Bihar, Assam and West Bengal, due to belated onset of monsoon, and floods in the coastal districts of Andhra Pradesh and in parts of Bihar and Kerala, as also because of an appreciable fall in the coverage under the crop in Tamilnadu due to non-availability of irrigation in the Cauvery Delta. Paddy production has also been adversely affected in Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh and Haryana. The coverage of area under pulses this year is estimated to be more than the 10.5 million hectares in kharif 1985. There are reports of crop shifts from cotton to kharif pulses in Maharashtra. The production of coarse grains is expected to be more than last year's level of 22 million tonnes.

2.27 The total production of kharif oilseeds in 1986-87 may be significantly better than 6.24 million tonnes of last kharif. Production of groundnut is expected to be better than last year's level of 4.09 million tonnes, although the crop has been adversely affected by a dry spell at the harvest stage in Gujarat, Tamilnadu, Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh. The area under soybean has continued to expand and the production this year is expected to be much better than last year.

2.28 Due to the below normal behaviour of the monsoon, a shortfall in 1986-87 kharif paddy production is apprehended. Coarse cereals, however, are likely to perform better, and may, somewhat offset the loss of output of kharif paddy. Prduction of kharif pulses and oilseeds may also increase. In the case of jute and cotton, production is expected to come down from the record levels achieved in the last year. A decline in production of these fibres may help stabilise the jute and cotton prices which had declined precipitously, affecting the interests of the growers.

Post-Monsoon Rainfall

2.29 Twenty three Meteorological Sub-divisions have had excess/normal rains in the post-monsoon season (October to December) as compared to 28 in the corresponding period in 1985. In 1986 the temporal distribution of rainfall was, however, more evenly spaced, whereas in 1985 much of the rainfall had occurred in October. The States|Sub-divisions of Rajasthan, Gujarat, Maharashtra (excluding Vidarbha), Tamilnadu, Kerala and Rayalaseema, however, ended up with seasonal deficiencies in post-monsoon rainfall, Rabi/summer crops are not predominant in some of these areas. The inadequacy of rainfall in Rajasthan, Gujarat and Maharashtra would have affected rabi sowings in the rainfed areas. However, the rains which were received in the second fortnight of December, particularly in West Madhya Pradesh and parts of Maharashtra have been immensely beneficial to coarse cereals, pulses and oilseeds. The favourable turn in the monsoon continued during the month of January, 1987 and winter rains have been quite extensive. The live storage available in the major reservoirs has been, on the whole, better this year than in the preceding year. To that extent, there would be greater availability of water in the canals fed by major reservoirs.

2.30 A certain amount of resilience in agricultural production, despite a poor monsoon, may be partly attributable to continued emphasis on increases in the area under high yielding and improved seed varieties, and the promotion of the use of chemical fertilisers through its efficient movement and timely delivery. Additional irrigation coverage through the creation of fresh capacity and optimum utilisation of the facilities already available would, it is expected, help to some extent in countering the adverse impact of poor monsoon.

2.31 High priority has been accorded to the production of pulses and oilseeds particularly edible oilseeds. A new National Pulses Development Project is proposed to be launched to integrate the various on-going Centrally-sponsored pulses development programmes, so as to propagate crop-specific and location-specific technologies for achieving a sustained growth in pulses. Similarly, the National Oilseeds project is being recast so as to strengthen the key institutions responsible for providing various services such as inputs, extension, credit etc. to the farmers. Effective price support operations are very important for generating and sustaining the growth in oilseeds production. Support prices of oilseeds are being raised from year to year and the National Agricultural cooperative Marketing Federation has been entrusted with the responsibility at the field level to ensure that the growers actually receive at least the prescribed support prices.

Agricultural Inputs

Seeds

2.32 A major component of the strategy for the agricultural production is the expansion of area under HYV, which increased from 54.1 million hectares in 1984-85 to 55.2 million hectares in 1985-86. The pace of increase in the coverage under HYV seeds has slowed down since 1983-84 in the wake of unfavourable monsoon conditions. Most of the increase in area under HYV in 1985-86 occurred in paddy and wheat; HYV area under jowar and bajra declined during 1984-85 as well as 1985-86, following severe drought in the areas where these two crops are chiefly grown. The percentage coverage under wheat at over 85 per cent is close to the maximum. Other cereal crops, including paddy, are still way behind and this points to the vast scope for increasing production through the expansion of HYV coverage. The target of HYV coverage for 1986-87 is 60.6 million hectares.

2.33 There was a revival in the rate of growth in the distribution of certified seeds during 1985-86, after two years of slackened growth.

2.34 During 1985-86, one high yielding variety of rice was released at the national level and 23 varieties were notified under the seeds Act. Coverage under these varieties is expected to widen in the ensuing kharif season.

Fertilisers

2.35 Expansion of fertiliser application is an important plank in the strategy for increasing agricultural production. Total off-take of fertilisers increased in 1985-86 to 87.4 lakh tonnes (nutrients). This marks an increase of 6.4 per cent over the preceding year. The current national average consumption of over 50 kgs per hectare of gross cropped area, though low, is not insignificant.

*In total consumption over the preceding year.

2.36 While the increase in fertiliser consumption over the years has been impressive, considerable ground has yet to be covered in terms of the promotion of balanced use of fertiliser. Also, there are very wide variations in the region-wise/crop-wise use of chemical fertilisers. A number of states/regions are lagging behind considerably in the usage of chemical fertilisers. Consumption in Punjab was three times the national average, in Tamil Nadu it was twice the average. Consumption in the Central belt comprising Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and Orissa has been lagging far behind. In general, areas with reasonably dependable irrigation facilities or assured rainfall have done comparatively well in the adoption of chemical fertilisers. Only about one-third of the cropped area is estimated to be receiving the benefit of fertiliser application.

2.37 Efforts have to be made for organising the supplies necessary to meet the rising demand for fertilisers. The fertiliser industry, though of recent origin, has been one of the fastest growing industries of the country. In the absence of any known domestic source of potash, the entire requirements are to be met through imports. In the case of nitrogenous and phosphatic fertilisers the domestic industry has achieved an installed capacity of 8.18 million tonnes by the end of 1985-86 and the production in the year totalled 5.76 million tonnes. Nevertheless, the domestic production is still considerably below the demand and needs to be stepped up as quickly as feasible. Meanwhile, the gap has to be bridged through imports. Fifteen fertiliser plants are at present, under different stages of construction. Of these, six will be based on Bombay High associated gas, which will be supplied to the proposed fertiliser units through the Hazira-Bajaipu-Jagdishpur (HBJ) pipeline.

2.38 With a considerable increase in domestic production from 30.1 lakh tonnes in 1980-81 to 40.9 lakh tonnes in 1981-82, it was possible to reduce the imports from 27.6 lakh tonnes to 20.4 lakh tonnes. With a further increase in domestic production and a slow-down in the pace of growth in fertiliser demand in 1982-83, fertiliser imports were reduced drastically to 11.3 lakh tonnes. Though the domestic production did not rise appreciably in 1983-84, imports were kept low at 13.6 lakh tonnes. In the same year due to favourable weather conditions and reductions in fertiliser prices, the domestic offtake of fertilisers increased by 20.7 per cent in 1983-84, compared to a rise of only 5.3 per cent in 1982-83. As a result, stocks were run down. Determined to ensure comfortable supplies to fully meet the requirements, the authorities stepped up the imports to the all-time high of 36.2 lakh tonnes in 1984-85, and the domestic production in that year also increased by 6.5 lakh tonnes. Domestic production increased by another 5.8 lakh tonnes in 1985-86 and the imports, too, were kept high at 34.0 lakh tonnes. Production in 1986-87 is expected to attain a further increase of 12 lakh tonnes over 1985-86. The increase in offtake in the years 1984-85 and 1985-86 was lower than expected owing to rather poor weather and monsoon conditions. The continued high level of imports in the face of a considerable step-up in domestic production in these two years created an excess supply situation and stocks have been accumulating. The role envisaged for imports was to bridge the supply gap. Now that the domestic fertiliser industry has come of age, it has to gear itself to change over from the regime of fertiliser allotment and distribution to that of sales targeting and marketing. The industry's sales promotion drive is likely to acquire a greater urgency if the supplies are kept somewhat ahead of the demand. By and large, the industry rose to the occasion when the market supplies out-stripped demand and a number of innovative sales promotion measures were used.

Irrigation

2.39 Additional irrigation 'potential' of 2.2 million hectares was created during 1985-86. Most of the addition has come mainly from minor irrigation projects, covering about 1.7 million hectares. A cumulative potential of about 69.8 million hectares was created by the end of 1985-86. The utilisation of potential has, however, not kept pace with its creation, as the command area development lagged behind the completion of the main works of the projects. Delays in construction of field channels and drains, excessive withdrawal of water by the upstream beneficiaries, adoption of cropping patterns at variance with those envisaged in the project reports, and excessive seepage losses have also contributed to the sub-optimum utilisation of the created potential. The gap between the irrigation potential created and utilised has increased from 6.9 million hectares in 1984-85 to 7.5 million hectares in 1985-86. The targets for 1986-87 indicate that the gap may increase to over 8 million hectares in that year. The Table below shows the progress of the overall irrigation potential and its uilisation in the past few years.

2.40 The increasing trend of unutilized irrigation potential is a cause for serious concern. The problem is more severe in the case of major/medium schemes involving storage and the utilisation of surface water, and comparatively less severe in the case of minor schemes involving utilisation of underground water resources. The ultimate potential for major/medium schemes is estimated to be 58.5 million hectares out of which a total potential of 30.6 million hectares has already been created by the end of 1985-86. The total additional potential created in this sector during the Sixth Plan was 3.4 million hectares while the unutilised potential at the end of the Sixth Plan was 4.7 million hectares.

2.41 The Command Area Development Programme which was first implemented in 1974-75 to tackle the problem of non-utilisation of irrigation potential created in the major irrigation projects. In 1985-86, the allocation for the CAD programme was Rs. 295 crores while the anticipated expenditure is only Rs. 274 crores. For 1986-87, it is proposed to spend Rs. 2143 crores on major/medium irrigation projects, while the allocation for CAD programme is Rs. 307 crores. The allocations for 1986-87 show an increase of 14.7 per cent in the case of major/medium schemes and of 12.0 per cent in the case of CAD programmes over the revised estimates of 1985-86. There is still an effort to create fresh potential despite the fact that the gap between the potential created and utilised has tended to increase rather than decrease.

2.42 Inordinate delays in the completion of projects and the severe cost escalations in the major/medium projects probably indicate that new projects have been taken up without adequate organisational planning and the assurance of the funds required for timely completion. Greater emphasis on improving the utilisation of created potential is clearly needed. The problems of water logging and salinisation associated with the huge surface water scheme also need to be fully recognised. Account has to be taken of the additional investments required for providing drainage in areas severely threatened by water-logging and salinisation, lest such areas become unfit for cultivation. For instance, there are reports of rapidly rising water salinity in the surface irrigated areas of Haryana, Punjab and Northern Rajasthan.

2.43 Minor irrigation schemes mostly exploit ground water potential. They require no investment on water storage or transportation over long distances. Irrigation water is available on a more timely basis unlike in the case of major/medium projects where the beneficiaries at the sources of canal tend to overdraw, leaving insufficient water to the tail-end beneficiaries. Moreover land levelling and construction of field channels required for ground water irrigation can be undertaken by the farmers with their own resources. The problems of water-logging and evaporation, usually associated with surface water irrigation, are considerably reduced in the case of minor irrigation projects. However, over-exploitation of ground water may cause severe problems. State ground water organisations, perhaps, need to be strengthened to enable them to take up projects to ensure maximum recharge of ground water and prevent any avoidable run-off in water sheds.

Plant Protection

2.44 The consumption of plant protection materials was below expectations during the Sixth Plan. The original plan target of 80,000 tonnes of technical grade material was subsequently scaled down to 75,000 tonnes. Actual consumption in 1984-85 was only 56,000 tonnes.

2.45 The concept of integrated pest management advocates need-based use of pesticides, in addition to taking recourse to other pest control measures such as resistant verieties of seeds biological control, and mechanical control. The Seventh Plan reflected this approach as the target of consumption of technical grade material to be achieved by 1989-90 was set at 75,000 tonnes. The target for 1985-86 was 66,000 tonnes, compared to the estimated consumption of 56,000 tonnes in 1984-85. The estimated consumption for 1985-86 is 52,000 tonnes, and the crop year 1985-86 was generally free from major outbreak of plant diseases/insect pests, except for the incidence of 'pyrilla' on the sugarcane crop in Uttar Pradesh, Punjab and Haryana; of 'white fly' on the cotton crop in Andhra Pradesh and of 'white rust' on the mustard crop in Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh and Haryana. Amongst these, Pyrilla was controlled by resorting to biological control and a very small amount of insecticides was used.

Credit

2.46 In the sphere of agricultural credit, apart from increased flow, the major policy objectives is its progressive institutionalisation under a multi-agency system consisting of cooperatives, commercial banks and regional rural banks. The disbursements of agricultural credit from the institutional agencies increased from Rs. 5,556 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 7,043 crores in 1985-86. For the year 1986-87, a target of Rs. 8,835 crores has been Projected.

2.47 The major problem faced by the lending institutions in the agriculture sector is the unsatisfactory level of overdues. Overdues have been persisting around 45 per cent during the last 3-4 years. At the end of June, 1985, the percentage of overdues to demand at the Primary Agricultural Credit Societies (PACS) level was around 40 per cent, while at the level of Primary Land Development Banks (PLDBs) branches it was 42 per cent. In the case of commercial banks, overdues percentage was 48 in 1984. With the exception of a few states, like Haryana, Kerala and Punjab, the recovery performance in other states is far from satisfactory. From 1-7-86, National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development has further strengthened its efforts of overdues, and out of 1851 PLDBSs less than one-third are estimated to be having overdues of less than 25 per cent and thus eligible for unrestricted NABARD lending. The State Governments have also been advised to draw up and implement time-bound programmes for improvement of recoveries and mount special recovery drives during the harvesting season and take strong action against prominent and wilful defaulters. The pilot project for strengthening the credit delivery system launched in three selected districts in 1984 has shown positive results in the matter of improvement in recovery of dues. Improvement in recovery is of paramount importance, as on recovery depends the recycling of funds by the cooperatives and also further credit expansion.

Crop Insurance

2.48 The Comprehensive Crop Insurance Scheme was introduced in the country from Kharif 1985 season. It is being implemented by the General Insurance Corporation of India (GIC) in collaboration with the State Governments as co-insurer in the ratio 2:1. The scheme aims at providing a measure of financial support to farmers in the event of a crop failure and restore their credit eligibility for the next crop season. For the present, the scheme covers losses as a result of drought or floods caused to the cultivators of cereals, pulses and oilseeds. All the farmers availing of crop loans from credit institutions are covered under the scheme. Insurance service charges (i.e. premium) is 2 per cent of the sum insured for the cereals and 1 per cent for pulses and oilseeds. The amount of premium is an additionality to the crop loan. Fifty per cent of the premium payable by the small and marginal farmers is subsidised jointly by the Central and the State Governments on a 50:50 basis.

The progress of the scheme so far is as under :

Cropping Pattern

2.49 Fluctuations in production have disturbed the supply-demand balance of certain major agricultural commodities like pulses, oilseeds, cereals, sugarcane etc. Current stocks of foodgrains, particularly wheat, are excessive in relation to its demand, even though the issue prices at fair prices shops are highly subsidised, and substantial quantities are distributed to special target groups of economically weaker communities, with further subsidisation of prices. On the other hand, not enough oilseeds and sugar are produced within the country, entailing heavy imports at substantial cost of foreign exchange. Import of pulses is placed under OGL as the domestic production falls considerably short of requirements. This underlines the importance of rationalising the cropping pattern. Marked changes have occurred in the cropping patterns since late Sixties, following the popularisation of high yielding varieties, increased availability of irrigation facilities and the expansion of the usage of chemicals (fertilisers, pesticides, weedicides etc.). Area under wheat has witnessed the highest compound growth rate of area of 2.67 per cent per annum, as against the compound growth rate of total cropped area at 0.60 per cent per annum during the period 1967-68 to 1983-84. The growth rate of area under rice was 0.64 per cent per annum, which was only marginally higher than the growth rate of total cropped area. Growth rates of area under jowar, bajra, maize, barley and small millets were negative during this period. Wherever there has been extension of irrigation facilities, farmers have shown preference for crops like wheat or paddy for which high yielding varieties are available and therefore, their cultivation has become more remunerative Among non-foodgrain crops, sugarcane, potato, rapeseed and mustard have shown a high rate of growth of area. Growth of area under groundnut, cotton, jute and mesta has been positive but relatively lower than the rate of growth of area under foodgrains.

2.50 The changes in cropping pattern reflect, broadly, the changes in the relative profit expectations of the alternative crops at different points of time. Accordingly, the cropping pattern changes help improve the economic well-being of the producers. The resultant changes in crop production, however, may not always be in the desired direction. In many cases, the production changes are in line with the requirements of domestic and export demand; in other cases, they may lead to supply-demand imbalances or even accentuate the existing imbalances. The high unit cost of production discourages the export of the surplus production. As a result, even small surpluses in domestic production (relative to domestic demand) tend to build up inventories which, over the years, pose serious problems of storage and financing. On the other hand, the constraints of foreign exchange and low purchasing power of the domestic consumers cause major difficulties in meeting the requirements of the under-produced crops.

2.51 The desired changes in the cropping patterns are to be brought about through a strategy that ensures that the overall economic well-being of the producers is not adversely affected in the process. The relative price parities between different crops need to be changed in favour of the crops where shortages have emerged. However, changes in the relative price regime are not enough. It is not the unit sale price but the net revenue which the grower expects from cultivation of a crop that determines his cropping decisions. The quantum of price increase required for an existing under-produced crop to equalise the grower's net revenue with that of the competing over-produced crop may be too high to be acceptable to the consumer. Disappearance of the stocks of the currently over-produced crops may result in higher market prices of such crops, and to that extent still higher increases may be required in the prices of under-produced crops for bringing about the price-induced changes in the cropping pattern. The strategy of changes in the relative prices has to be supported through appropriate action in the fields of agricultural research and extension, appropriate changes in the sphere of input supplies and pricing, and marketing facilities. The comparative risk factor also influences the cropping decision. Pulses and oilseeds, which are under-produced crops in India today, are largely grown in low rainfall, dry farming regions, characterised by large weather induced changes in yield rates from year to year. The grower seeks to reduce the risks by minimising investments on inputs in the cultivation of these crops, leading to their low productivity. To the extent protective irrigation can be provided to the low rainfall regions, it will help reduce the element of risk and uncertainty, and induce the growers to undertake investment for raising productivity. The recently introduced crop insurance scheme also should help. The premia and compensation rates under the scheme could perhaps be so evolved as to bring about a more favourable regime for currently under-produced crops.

Foodgrains

2.52 The total area under foodgrains in 1950-51 was 97.3 million hectares. This increased by 18.7

per cent to 115.6 million hectares in 1960-61. The increase in area in 1970-71 was 7.6 per cent over 1960-61. In the next decade, 1970-71 to 1980-81, foodgrains area gained only 1.9 per cent. The total area under foodgrains in 1985-86 at 127.1 million hectares is only 0.3 per cent higher compared to the area in 1980-81. Apparently, the total area under foodgrains has now stabilised. However, the crop-wise shifts in area within the foodgrains group are still continuing. Area under coarse cereals which increased by 19.2 per cent between 1950-51 and 1960-61 increased by only 2.3 per cent in 1970-71. The total area under coarse cereals in 1980-81 was 9.1 per cent at 41.8 million hectares compared to 45.9 million hectares in 1970-71. This decline in acreage under coarse cereals has continued. In 1985-86, five years after 1980-81, the coarse cereals lost another 6 per cent area. Wheat area increased by 32.7 per cent in the decade ending 1960-61 and gained another 41.1 per cent in the next decade ending 1970-71. The pace of accretion to wheat area somewhat slowed down to 22.1 per cent in 1980-81 over 1970-71. Wheat acreage has tended to stabilise after that and the increase in area in five years (1985-86 over 1980-81) was only 3.6 per cent. After recording an increase of 24 per cent in 1960-61 over 1950-51, the total area under pulses declined by 4.3 per cent in 1970-71 over 1960-61. A further decline in area under pulses was, however, arrested as the loss in area in 1980-81 over 1970-71 was only 0.3 per cent. In the recent years, pulses crops have attracted additional acreage, due to the expansion of double and multiple cropping. At 23.8 million hectares in 1985-86, the total area under pulses shows an increase of 6.1 per cent over that in 1980-81.

2.53 Foodgrains command 73—75 per cent of the gross cropped area in the country. The share has remained more or less unchanged since 1950-51. However, as the total area under foodgrains has tended to stabilise after 1980-81, and the total gross cropped area has continued to increase due to the expansion of double and multiple cropping, the share of foodgrains in the total area under crops may show some decline hereafter. The relative share of rice in the total area under foodgrains has also remained more or less unaltered at 30—32 per cent during 1950-51 to 1980-81. But the share of wheat in the total area under foodgrains increased from 10 per cent in 1950-51 to 18.2 per cent in 1985-86. On the other hand, the area under coarse cereals which was around 39 per cent of the total area under foodgrains in 1950-51 and 1960-61 declined thereafter, and reached 30.9 per cent in 1985-86.

2.54 Total production of foodgrains nearly tripled from 50.8 million tonnes in 1950-51 to 150.5 million tonnes in 1985-86. In 1960-61, the production was 61.4 per cent over 1950-51. In 1970-71, it was 32.2 per cent higher than that in 1960-61. The pace of increase was comparatively low in the next decade in 1980-81; production at 129.6 million tonnes was higher by only 19.5 per cent than that in 1970-71. But the pace of increase in foodgrains production has accelerated in recent years, as the production in 1985-86 marks an increase of 16.1 per cent in a period of five years.

2.55 The share of rice in the total production of foodgrains has remained virtually unaltered, around 40—42 per cent. The share of coarse cereals and pulses, have however, declined from 30.3 per cent of the total foodgrains production in 1950-51 to 22.4 per cent in 1980-81 in the case of coarse cereals; and from 16.5 per cent to 8.2 per cent in the case of pulses. In recent years (1985-86 over 1980-81) the declining trend of the share of pulses is the total foodgrains production has reversed but in the case of coarse cereals, the pace of decline has further accelerated. The contribution of wheat in the total production of foodgrains has continued to increase.

Oilseeds

2.56 The total production of nine major oilseeds (groundnut, rapeseed and mustard, sesamum, nigerseed, safflower, sunflower, soybean, linseed and castorseed) exceeded 10 million tonne mark for the first time in 1975-76 when the production reached 10.6 million tonnes. This level could not be maintained and the production fluctuated between 8-10 million tonnes during the next five years. Thereafter, a new peak was achieved in 1981-82 at 12.1 million tonnes. Since then oilseed production has fluctuated between 10 and 13 million tonnes per annum.

2.57 Various oilseeds development projects initiated in the past few years seem to be showing results. The total area under these nine cultivated oilseeds increased from the earlier peak of 17.7 million hectares in 1978-79 to 18.9 million hectares in 1981-82 and about the same level has been maintained in the five years since then, except for a loss of about a million hectares in 1982-83 due to very adverse weather conditions at sowing time. What is more reassuring, there has been a more than proportionate addition to irrigated area under oilseeds. The irrigated area formed 10.9 per cent of the total area under oilseeds in 1978-79, and this proportion increased continuously in the subsequent years to reach 16.7 per cent in 1983-84.

2.58 The upward trend in production and yield rates received a setback in 1985-86 when the production declined by 13.8 per cent and the yield by a similar margin of 13.6 per cent. Production of groundnuts in Gujarat declined by over 1.12 million tonnes, from 1.57 million tonnes in 1984-85 to 0.45 million tonnes in 1985-86. The decline in 1985-86 underlines the high degree of instability which still characterises the oilseeds economy.

2.59 An interesting development in the field of oilseeds cultivation has been the added importance acquired by the rabi crops over that of kharif, not so much in terms of area as in terms of production and yield rates. In 1970-71 kharif crops provided 72.8 per cent of the total oilseeds production; their percentage share declined to 56 in 1985-86. Similarly, the yield per hectare of kharif oilseeds at 649 Kgs. in 1970-71 was 44.5 per cent higher than that of rabi oilseeds. In 1985-86, the yield per hectare of rabi oilseeds was only 21.9 per cent higher than that of kharif oilseeds.

2.60 Though a number of oilseeds development projects have been in operation, the efforts so far have, clearly, been inadequate in relation to the very large dimensions of the task. The recently set up oilseeds Technology Mission is expected to provide further stimulous in this direction. Since 83 per cent of the oilseeds area is still cultivated under rain-fed conditions, a major breakthrough in oilseeds production can be achieved primarily through field level improvement in dry-farming techniques. Efforts have also been made to exploit non-traditional sources of vegetable oils, including oilseeds of tree|forest origin. Special incentives have been given to promote extraction of edible grade oil from rice bran and the cultivation of larger quantities of cottonseed and minor oilseeds for oil extraction. Despite these efforts, however, heavy imports of vegetable oils have had to be arranged to meet domestic requirements.

Sugarcane

2.61 The compound annual growth rate of the area under sugarcane for a period of 35 years, 1949-50 to 1984-85, was 1.98 per cent. Around 80 per cent of the total area under sugarcane is covered under irrigation; and the intensity of fertiliser application to sugarcane crop is amongst the highest for any cultivated crop. Considering such an intensive use of inputs, the growth rate of yield per hectare at 1.13 per cent per annum over the period 1949-50 to 1984-85 is rather modest. In the tropical region of Maharashtra (and also Andhra Pradesh and Tamilnadu), the duration of the sugarcane crop is 16—18 months while in the sub-tropical region like Uttar Pradesh (and also Bihar, Punjab and Haryana), the crop duration is much shorter, being 10-11 months. Inputs like chemical fertilisers and irrigation are far more intensively applied to the sugarcane crop grown in the tropical region than that in the sub-tropical region. In Maharashtra, in 1982-83, for instance, the fertiliser application was 459 Kgs. per hectare compared to only 71 Kgs. in Uttar Pradesh; the average number of irrigations of the sugarcane crop in Maharashtra in that year was 36 compared to 7 in Uttar Pradesh. The sucrose-content is, however, higher in the sugarcane grown in Maharashtra than that in Uttar Pradesh.

2.62 Some major initiatives were taken in the sugar|sugarcane policy announced on the eve of the marketing of 1985-86 season crop. The statutory minimum price (SMP) for sugarcane delivered to the sugar mills was raised to Rs. 16.50 per quintal linked to a recovery of 8.5 per cent compared to price of Rs. 14 for the 1984-85 crop. The price was also announced, one year in advance, for the 1986-87 crop at Rs. 17 per quintal. Similarly, the levy percentage was reduced from 65 to 55, implying that the sugar mills were free to market 45 per cent of their production in 1985-86 at the going market rates, compared to only 35 per cent allowed in 1984-85. The proportion has been raised further to 50 per cent in 1986-87. It has also been announced that the SMP for 1987-88 will be still higher at Rs. 18 per quintal. The raising of the SMP has tended to the influence States in enhancing their 'advised' prices. Higher free-sale quotas have improved the economic viability of the sugar factories, who in turn are expected to pay higher prices to cane suppliers as they are in competition with manufacturers of khandsari and gur. As a result of these measures the production of sugarcane and sugar has increased and prices have remained relatively stable.

INFRASTRUCTURE

In view of the crucial importance of power, transport and other infrastructure industries in the economy, the Government has accorded particular importance to improving management and performance in these sectors. As a result the current will be the third consecutive year in which the infrastructure sector has recorded a 9-10 per cent growth rate. The high growth rate over the last three years, particularly in key sectors such as electricity, coal and rail traffic would tend to suggest an easing of bottlenecks and an enhancement of the growth process in other industries.

3.2 Foremost among the infrastruture sectors showing impressive growth is the power sector. Power generation has increased by 10.3 per cent during April—December 1986 and this growth comes on top of two previous relatively high growth years : 8.6 per cent in 1985-86 and 11.6 per cent in 1984-85. Perhaps the most important indicator of improved management and increased Plan investment in this sector is the record levels of Plant Load Factor (PLF) achieved over the last two years and the high growth rates achieved in the thermal power generation in particular. The PLF in 1986-87 (April—December) is highest for the last seven years, and the growth rate in thermal power generation has been between 13 and 15 cent over the last three years.

3.3 The performance of the railways has once again been well above target with a growth rate in revenue earning goods traffic of 6.6 per cent in April—December 1986 over the same period last year. This is particularly creditable as it follows a high 9.4 per cent growth rate in 1985-86. An important aspect of this year's growth has been the excellent performance of the railways in transportation of two key commodities : foodgrain movement increased by 19.7 per cent and iron ore for exports increased by 13.6 per cent during the April-December period compared to the same period last year.

3.4 Of the other infrastructure industries, the growth in coal production has been the most impressive. During the April—December period in 1986, coal output has increased by 8.7 per cent over the same months of last year, recording the highest growth rate for five years. Growth rate in the hydro-electric power generation has shown disturbing trends. Delays in commissioning hydel projects are now reaching chronic proportions and require immediate steps to prevent further slippages. Moreover, the poor monsoons over the last three years have been partly responsible for a low growth rate in hydel power generation. The following sections of this chapter analyse the trends in each industry of the infrastructure sector in greater detail.

Electricity

3.5 The generation of thermal electricity in 1985-86 was higher than the target, but the hydel generation was affected by insufficient rainfall in the Western region and the consequent low water levels in the major hydro reservoirs in these regions. The achievement in the case of thermal generation was 103.7 per cent of the target while in the case of nuclear and hydel sector it was 124.6 per cent and 91 per cent, of the respective targets. The total generation during 1985-86 was higher than that in the previous year by 8.6 per cent, and the target set for the year was fully achieved. While hydel generation was less than that of the preceding year by 5.3 per cent, thermal (including nuclear) generation was substantially higher by 16.1 per cent.

3. Nuclear	3.5	4.1	4.0	5.0

3.7 Power generation during the first nine months of 1986-87 at 138.6 billion kwh was 10.3 per cent higher than the corresponding period of the previous year. Category-wise, thermal (including nuclear) generation has shown an increase of 13.2 per cent and hydel generation recovered the ground lost in the preceding year and registered an increase of 4.0 per cent during April-December 1986 over the corresponding period of 1985. However, while thermal generation registered a marginal shortfall from target because of the poor performance of certain State Electricity Boards in the Northern and Eastern regions in particular, hydel generation lagged behind the target for the second successive year due to failure of monsoon in the Western and Southern regions. Nuclear generation has been lagging behind marginally against the target mainly on account of the long-duration outages of the unit 1 of Madras Atomic Power Station.

3.8 The Plant Load Factor (PLF) of thermal power stations has been progressively increasing during the last few years. The All India Thermal Plant Load Factor (PLF) improved from 50.1 per cent in 1984-85 to 52.4 per cent in 1985-86. The average PLF during the period April-December 1986 was 52.2 per cent compared to 50.8 per cent during the corresponding period of 1985. The achievement was, however, short of the target of 52.5 per cent during that period. DESU, Durgapur Projects Ltd. and SEBs of Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh, Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu exceeded their target PLF. The PLF of 64.4 per cent and 50 per cent was achieved by Punjab and Maharashtra SEBs even though it was below their target. The average PLF achieved by SEBs/Undertakings during the period April-December, 1986 was 48.3 per cent against the target of 49.7 per cent. In the Central Sector, the overall target of PLF of 62.4 per cent was exceeded, the achievement being 62.8 per cent. While NTPC and NLC exceeded their target, DVCs achievement fell short of the target. Amongst the private utilities, Trombay and CESC exceeded their target PLF the Ahmedabad Electric Supply Co. could not achieve the target even though the achievement was 60.2 per cent. The overall average achievement of private utilities was 63.2 per cent compared to the target of 54.1 per cent. State-wise details in Table 3.4 show that there are still a large number of States where a low PLF is a chronic problem : five States have a PLF below 40 per cent. A major effort is required to improve the efficiency and performance of SEBs in these States if any real impact is to be made on the overall average PLF and the supply of power in the country.

Table 3.5 shows that there has been considerable and disturbing slippages in the implementation of hydel power projects and the magnitude of the problem suggests that immediate action is necessary to prevent further losses in time and resources.

Coal

3.10 The coal sector has performed fairly well this year. The production of coal during the period April-December 1986, increased by 8.7 per cent to reach 113.0 million tonnes, compared to 103.9 million tonnes during the corresponding period of 1985. The production of Coal India Limited (CIL) showed an increase of 9.5 per cent during April-December, 1986 over the corresponding period of 1985 and of Singareni Collieries Co. Ltd. by 5.3 per cent. Pit-head stocks at the end of December, 1986 increased by 6.3 per cent over the end of December, 1985 and despatches by 4.0 per cent over the corresponding period of 1985. Details regarding the coal production, pit-head stocks and despatches from 1983-84 onwards are given in the Table below :

In 1985-86 production of coal reached a level of 154.2 million tonnes virtually fulfilling the overall target of 154.5 million tonnes. Coal India Ltd. marginally exceeded its target, but the shortfall in the production from Bharat Coking Coal Co. Ltd. (BCCL), the main source of coking coal supplies to steel industry, was significant. A notable feature in 1985-86 was the vast improvement in the performance of Singareni Collieries Co. Ltd. where the production at 15.7 million tonnes was 27.6 per cent more than the preceding year's level. The railway, had planned a movement of 115 million tonnes of coal including railway coal in 1985-86 as compared with the actual movement of 101.9 million tonnes in 1984-85. The actual movement in 1985-86 was 111.7 million tonnes, which marks a considerable improvement over the previous year. As coal production increased significantly in the last quarter of the 1985-86, the pit-head stocks, which had come down by 9.6 million tonnes in the first seven months, started rising again, and at the end of the year stood at 27.2 million tonnes as against 29.2 million tonnes at the end of 1984-85.

3.11 The target of coal production for 1986-87 is 166.8 million tonnes of which 143.5 million tonnes is to be met by CIL, 18 million tonnes by SCCL and the balance 5.3 million tonnes by TISCO/IISCO/DVC. Even though the production of coal increased by 8.7 per cent during the first nine months of this year, it has been less than the target for the period by 3.5 per cent. This has been largely because of the shortfalls in CIL and SCCL by 2.2 per cent and 10.5 per cent respectively. While CIL's production is reported to have been affected by power problems in the coal companies of the Eastern region served by DVC and heavy rain in the Western Coal—fields Ltd., the shortfall from target in SCCL has been attributed to labour strike, absenteeism, breakdown of machinery, etc. To avoid a mis-match between demand and supply, the target of coal movement by the railways has been fixed at 120 million tonnes for 1986-87. The demand for coal in 1986-87 has been estimated at 176.6 million tonnes (excluding 5.71 million tonnes of middlings). This is 13.2 per cent more than the off-take level of 156 million tonnes in 1985-86. Of the total demand, six major sectors account for about 79 per cent; power 47 per cent, steel 16 per cent, cement 5 per cent, railways 5 per cent, fertilizers 3 per cent and soft coke 3 per cent.

3.12 Availability of coal across the country improved as 114.2 million tonnes of coal were despatched during April—December, 1986, compared to 109.8 million tonnes during the corresponding period of 1985. Pit-head stocks at the end of December 1986 stood at 22.1 million tonnes as compared with 20.8 million tonnes a year ago. The main thrust in the strategy to improve despatches has been to maximise the supply of coal by rail. The daily average coal loading in CIL during April—December 1986 stood at about 10900 wagons/day. This, however, was below the target by as much as 1440 wagons/day or 11.6 per cent. Loading at Singareni Collieries Company Ltd. coal-fields also fell short of the target by 11 per cent due to a decline in their offers. Loading of other coal, i.e. coal for/from non-CIL washeries, imported coal, mixed coke loaded by steel plants etc. was higher than the target by 31.9 per cent.

3.13 Coking Coal : For the past few years there has been a short fall of coking coal availability from domestic sources. The table below indicates the supply/demand position with regard to coking coal for steel plants during the last three years :

*This was subsequently reduced to 13.90 million tonnes.
It was initially planned to import 1.5 million tonnes of coking coal to cover the gap, but as the indigenous avail—ability was found to be lower than that anticipated earlier, the total import during 1985-86 came to 2.03 million tonnes.

During 1985-86, the total requirement of steel plants were estimated to be 15.40 million tonnes. The actual domestic supplies were 13.93 million tonnes. Initially imports of 1.5 million tonnes were planned to cover the gap and to provide for necessary blending. However, indigenous availability was subsequently found to be less than the anticipated level with the result that a total of 2.03 million tonnes had to be imported.

4.14 In the last three years washed coal from prime coal washeries has had 21-22 per cent of ash content.

During the current year, the ash content of domestic washed coal declined to about 19 per cent. The quality of coal despatched to consumers has received continued attention in the coal companies. As against 1577 complaints received by CIL in 1984-85, only 314 complaints were received during 1985-86, and in the first six months of 1986-87, the number of complaints was 142 only. Sustained efforts for building up the basic infrastructure for quality control, like coal handling plants (CHPs) with screening and picking arrangement, weigh-bridges and laboratories in the coalfields have yielded results in ensuring reduction of complaints.

3.15 Lignite : The target for lignite production in 1985-86 from Neyveli Lignite Corporation was 6.8 million tonnes (Neyveli; first mine 6.5 million tonnes and second mine 0 3 million tonnes). The development of the second mine Stage I (4.7 million tonnes) was completed in 1985-86. The total production from Neyveli was 7.29 million tonnes exceeding the target by 0.49 million tonnes. The Gujarat Mineral Development Corporation provided an additional 0.9 million tonnes of lignite. The target for 1986-87 is 7.4 million tonnes for Neyveli Lignite Corporation and 0.9 million tonnes for the Gujarat Mineral Development Corporation. The production during the first nine months of this year has been 5.72 million tonnes from Neyveli Lignite Corporation as compared to 5.09 million tonnes during the corresponding period of 1985-86. At this rate, it is expected that the production target for the year 1986-87 will be fully achieved.

Petroleum

3.16 During 1985-86, the crude oil production target was fully achieved. The output of crude oil was 30.17 million tonnes against the target of 30.14 million tonnes. This was inspite of a shortfall in crude oil production (vis-a-vis the targets) in the oil fields of ONGC and Oil India Ltd. in the Eastern region. Details regarding trends in production in the last 3 years are given in Table 3.8.

3.17 During 1986-87 crude oil production is expected to exceed the targeted figure of 30.2 million tonnes. During the first nine months of this year, crude oil production amounted to 23.0 million tonnes registering a growth of 4.5 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. This was 102.2 per cent of the target for the period. The production of on-shore oil registered a growth of 7.1 per cent and off-shore crude oil was higher by 3.3 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. Refinery production (in terms of crude throughput) amounted to 33.5 million tonnes during the first nine months of this year and registered an increase of 6.3 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. Targets were fully achieved though the throughput achieved by the refineries at Haldia, Bombay (HPCL), Vizag, Cochin, Madras and Assam (BRPL) has been less than the targets. The production of natural gas registered a significant increase of 24.4 per cent during the first seven months of this year over the same period of last year. During the year, the production and exploratory activities were further intensified by ONGC. A total of 3.84 lakh metres of exploratory drilling has been planned for 1986-87 by ONGC and OIL, comprising 2.71 lakh metres on-shore and 1.13 lakh metres off-shore. These targets imply increase of 13 per cent in off-shore and 14 per cent in on-shore drilling over the achievements in 1985-86. During the year, there is likely to be increased drilling in Cambay Basin.

3.18 The total LPG production by gas fractionation, both by ONGC and OIL, is targeted at 4 lakh tonnes during 1986-87. Increased LPG production during 1986-87 is on account of capacity build-up by LPG Plant—Phase II at Uran as well as from LPG Plant at Ankhleshwar in Gujarat.

3.19 The targeted refinery throughput of 44.9 million tonnes is likely to be achieved during 1986-87, which would result in some savings in the import of petroleum products. During the first nine months of 1986-87, refinery throughput was 33.5 million tonnes, an increase of 6.3 per cent over the corresponding period of 1985-86. This has amounted to an achievement of 100.1 per cent of the target for the period.

3.20 Consumption of petroleum products increased by 5.4 per cent during 1985-86. It is estimated to increase further by 6.7 per cent during the current year and is likely to reach a figure at 43.7 million tonnes. Middle distillates consisting of kerosene, high speed diesel oil, etc. constitute the major products. Their share was 59 per cent in 1985-86 and is likely to remain around the same level during the current year also. Kerosene consumption recorded a relatively modest growth of 3.3% in 1985-86, partly due to the increased availability of LPG. The table below gives details of consumption of petroleum products in the last 3 years;

3.21 Natural gas is increasingly becoming an important source of energy and feed-stock. With the rise in crude oil output, natural gas production has also increased. In the absence of comprision and dehyderation facilities, however, a sizeable amount of off-shore gas had to be flared. During the first seven months of this year, gas production was 5.6 billion cubic metres, reflecting an increase of 24.4 per cent over the level achieved in the corresponding period of 1985. It is anticipated that by 1989-90 gas production would reach the level of 14.9 billion cubic metres. This increase would be mainly on account of commercial production of free gas from the Bombay Basin. The production of associated gas from the Cambay and Upper Assam Basins is also expected to increase with an increase in crude production. During 1985-86, about one-third of the country's output of LPG came from associated gas. The consumption of LPG is expected to increase from about 1.24 million tonnes in 1985-86 to 1.52 million tonnes in 1986-87. This will represent an increase of 22.5 per cent and should help slow down the growth in the consumption of kerosene in the country.

3.22 Energy Strategy : Some of the key elements of the energy strategy during the current plan are accelerated exploitation of coal, investment in the generation of hydel and nuclear power and strengthening of its transmission infrastructure, intensification of exploration for oil and gas, improved management of oil demand including the formulation of a national transport fuel policy, exploitation of renewable sources of energy like energy forestry, bio-gas, bio-mass and the solar energy, with particular focus on the energy requirements of the rural communities.

3.23 National Project on Bio-gas Development : Against the target of 1.5 lakh family size bio-gas plants, 1.93 lakh plants were set up during 1985-86, bringing the total number of bio-gas plants in the country to 6.5 lakhs. During 1986-87, an outlay of Rs. 59 crores has been provided for the construction of 1.51 lakh plants under the national project on bio-gas development. During current year, the focus has been on improving the operation and maintenance of plants through technically trained man-power, especially at the grass-root levels. Training in maintenance of bio-gas plants has been introduced under TRYSEM and instructions have been issued to State nodal departments incharge of bio-gas programmes to coordinate with other departments implementing the scheme of TRYSEM and develop suitable courses on the maintenance and repair of bio-gas plants. A programme of field demonstrations on the utility of bio-gas plants has been taken up in order to make the rural beneficiaries aware of the value of bio-gas slurry which is qualitatively superior to conventional manure. Under the R&D Programmes for bio-gas, the focus has been on developing low-cost design and diversification of feed stock.

3.24 HBJ Gas Pipeline Project : In April 1976, free gas was discovered in the South Basin off-shore field about 90 Kms. from Bombay coast. Originally, the total gas reserves in this zone were estimated at 216 billion cubic metres of gas . More recent estimates suggest that the gas reserves could be 275 billion cubic metres. The field can, therefore, produce 20 mmscmd over a plateau period of 20 years. Two working groups were set up by the Government of India to go into the question of optimum utilisation of off-shore gas and the optimum location of new gas-based fertilizer projects.

3.25 Priority for the use of natural gas has been fixed on the basis of opportunity cost for each of the fractions contained in the natural gas. The highest opportunity cost for the C-1 fraction (lean gas) is in the production of nitrogenous fertiliser. The optimum use of C-2 and C-3 fraction is in the production of petro-chemicals. The utilisation of C-4 fraction alongwith C-3 in the form of LPG constitutes the most economic use of this fraction.

3.26 The working group on location of new gas based fertilizer plants suggested the setting up of six new fertilizer plants in addition to the two gas-based plants in Maharashtra and in Gujarat. Each of these plants will have a capacity of 1350 tonnes per day of ammonia, utilising 1.5 mmscmd of lean gas. In addition to the fertilizer plants, it is also proposed to utilise gas for power projects.

3.27 In order to transport the gas to the fertilizer plants, power projects etc. it was proposed to construct a pipeline from Hazira to Jagdishpur and Babrala.

3.28 Five alternative routes were studied and the route selected is the most promising one from the point of view of gentle terrain, proximity to major railway lines and national/state highways, passing of the pipeline through less populated areas, shorter length of the trunk pipeline etc. (see Map on next page). The HBJ gas pipeline will run through the heartland of India for over 1700 Kms. covering 343.7 Kms. of rocky terrain, 56.3 Kms. of forests, 29 railway crossings and 7 major and 68 small river crossings. The project is estimated to cost Rs. 1700.17 crores (including a foreign exchange component of Rs. 680.35 crores), and is expected to be completed by July 1989. Phase-wise commissioning of various sections of the pipeline project will match the completion schedule of the six fertilizer plants. The supply of gas for the first fertilizer plant at Bijaipur (Madhya Pradesh) is expected to commence by May, 1987.

3.29 A review made by Gas Authority of India regarding the demand for gas on the HBJ pipeline indicates that the six fertilizer plants will require 10.76 mmscmd. With the throughput of 18.2 mmscmd, the HBJ pipeline will be able to cater to the proposed six fertilizer plants, three power plants, two LPG plants, as well as other fall back consumers en-route. The HBJ pipeline is one of the most significant energy projects concieved and implemented in the nation's history and the output generated from feedstock provided by the pipeline will make major impact on the Indian economy.

3.30 Status of Exploration : The total prognosticated reserves of the country are estimated to be around 17 billion tonnes. About 25 per cent of these reserves have already been established. Out of the established reserves, only about 25 per cent are recorded as recoverable reserves. The position of recoverable reserves by the end of 1985 was as follows :

Crude Oil . . .	558 million tonnes
Natural Gas . . .	497 million cubic meters

3.31 The proposed exploratory metreage of 28.21 lakhs during the Seventh Plan would mark an increase of 192 per cent over the achievement of 9.6 lakhs metres of such drilling in the Sixth Plan. Besides, intensified exploratory efforts by the ONGC and the Oil India Ltd., an Indo-Soviet cooperation for integrated exploration in selected areas of the Cauvery and Cambay Basins has also been formalised. This programme would soon be extended to an agreed onshore area of West Bengal. Further, 27 offshore blocks were offered for exploration by foreign oil companies by bidding, for which 12 bids have been received from seven foreign oil companies for 9 blocks.

3.32 During 1986-87, so far the following discoveries of oil/gas were made:

Name of the well	Oil/Gas
Andhra Pradesh :
Tatipaka	Gas
Kaikalur-3	Gas/Oil
Assam
Namti	Oil

Bombay Off-shore :
B-42-1	Oil

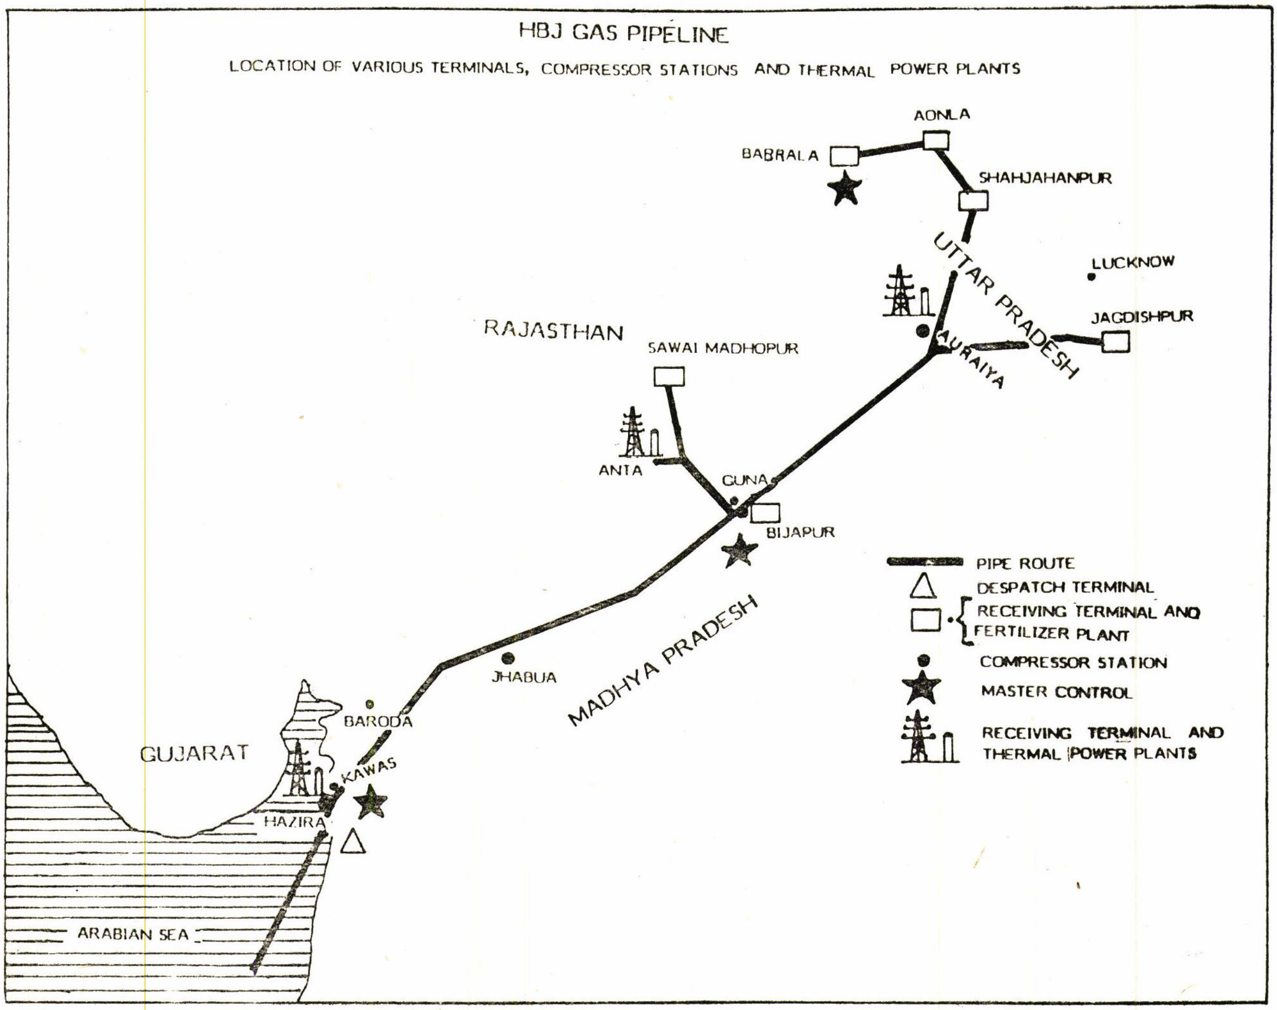
Further exploratory work is in progress in these structure to determine the potential of reserves for establishing commercial viability. It is planned to drill 125 exploratory wells during 1986-87.



Railways

3.33 In 1985-86, the Indian Railways carried 286.4 million tonnes of total originating traffic, including 258.6 million tonnes revenue earning originating traffic. These impressive levels exceeded the target of 277 million tonnes, including 250 million tonnes revenue-earning traffic. There was a quantum jump of 21.6 million tonnes in the total originating traffic and over 22 million tonnes or 9.4 per cent in the revenue-earning traffic, over the previous year. In terms of net tonne kms. which is often considered to be a better indicator of the transport effort, the increase was 13.9 per cent. The target assigned for the carriage of traffic was exceeded in almost all commodities, the main exceptions being coal and steel plant traffic. The shortfall in these sectors was largely due to inadequate offer. Inspite of these shortfalls and despite obvious limitations, such as the non-transferability of loading capacity from one type of commodity and one area to another, the railways made up the shortfalls by higher loading in other commodities. The overall loading performance of the Indian Railways during 1985-86 remained above the target.

3.34 The target for the current year 1986-87 was fixed at 294 million tonnes of originating traffic, including 267 million tonnes of revenue-earning originating traffic. This is an increase of 3.3 per cent over the level of revenue earning traffic already achieved in 1985-86 and the performance in 1986-87 is likely to be better than the target. The revenue earning freight traffic, moved during April—December, 1986 was 199.30 million tonnes, a 3.3 million tonnes above the target fixed for the period. In the current year also the coal and steel plant traffic has been below expectation. In relation to the targets, the shortfall in coal traffic was as high as 3.12 million tonnes and in the steel plant traffic, 2.44 million tonnes. However, the improved loading of 4.45 million tonnes over the target in the case of foodgrains and the impressive performance in loading of residual "other goods", of which 4.1 million tonnes in excess of the target were loaded, more than off-set the shortfall from the core sector.

3.35 In terms of total transport effort, measured in net tonne kms., the revenue earning goods traffic during April—December, 1986 has registered an impressive growth of 7.8 per cent over the corresponding period of the last year as well.

3.36 The improved efficiency of the Indian Railways in the freight movement can be gauged by the comprehensive index of wagon utilization viz. Net Tonne Kms. per wagon|day which reflects not only the mobility of the wagon but also the pay-load. In 1985-86, the Net Tonne Kms. per wagon|day averaged 1296 on the BG and 677 on the MG as against 1150 and 565 on the BG and MG, respectively in 1984-85 recording growth rates of 12.7 per cent and 19.8 per cent respectively. During the first nine months of 1986-87, there has been a further improvement in Net Tonne Kms. per wagon|day (BG) to the level of 1321.

3.37 The Railways continued their programme of replacement of over-aged assets and modernisation of operations in order to improve efficiency and safety environment. However, owing to severe resource constraints, the renewal of railway tracks could not be undertaken at the required pace. In the Seventh Plan top priority has been given to the replacement of overaged assets, maintenance of existing assets and the completion of essential on-going projects which add to the transport capacity. Induction of new technology by upgrading the motive power technology, computerisation of freight operation, introduction of micro-processors in yards and other areas, induction of special type stock to carry bulk traffic, etc. are being planned as a part of long term profile of the railway freight system. Efforts are also being made to persuade major users like steel plants and collieries to even out the flows over the year and offer rake loads as far as possible.

3.38 Computerisation on Indian Railways : The Railways are striving to update their computer hardware and software and expand the area of computer applications. A major scheme to computerise the freight operations envisages a two-tier system architecture to provide a totally integrated operations management system. When fully implemented, the system will streamline the freight operations and bring about a qualitative improvement in customer services. The railways have also launched a project to computerise passenger reservations at all the major stations in the country. In the first phase, computerisation of reservations has started as a pilot project in Delhi and will cover the whole of Delhi area by the end of the current financial year. In the second phase, similar systems are to be set up at other metropolitan towns viz. Calcutta, Bombay and Madras and would be interconnected through communication lines. Work on this phase has also started. The third phase will cover other important stations with large number of reservations.

3.39 As a part of the Management Information System, the existing computers in the Railway Board, Production Units and most of the Zonal Railway Headquarters have been replaced by advanced generation computers and a large number of micro processor based systems have been procured for office automation and specific user-oriented applications on the railways.

Ports

3.40 The traffic handled at major ports during 1985-86 was 120 million tonnes, an increase of 12.5 per cent over the previous year. This increase was achieved by improving utilisation of existing assets and the build-up of additional capacity. POL and iron ore traffic increased by 9.9 per cent and 10.8 per cent, respectively and these two sections constitute about 70 per cent of the total traffic handled at major ports. The increase of nearly 26 per cent in 1985-86 over the previous year in container traffic was in line with the projections of the Seventh Plan. The increase in container traffic was particularly marked at the Madras Port, where it rose by 86 per cent over the previous year's level. Correspondingly, as a result, the break bulk traffic had declined, though marginally. A capacity addition of 9.2 million tonnes was achieved during the year 1985-86. This included the addition of 4 million tonnes each of POL traffic in Vizag and Madras ports and of 1.2 million tonnes in fertilizers raw material capacity at Paradip.

3.41 During 1986-87 emphasis has been on improved utilisation of equipment and on raising the labour productivity as well as on the expansion of facilities to handle throughput. Traffic of 121.75 million tonnes has been targeted for 1986-87. However, because of the sealing down of fertilizer imports by 2 million tonnes from the original plan for the year, the projected cargo traffic is to be lower by the same order. The aggregate port capacity is likely to increase marginally from 141.93 million tonnes in 1985-86 to 142.93 million tonnes in 1986-87. The increase in capacity is scheduled to be at Haldia port where coal handling capacity is expected to increase by 1 million tonnes. Special attention is being given to timely completion of on-going schemes such as the construction of Nhava Sheva Port, the coal handling system at Haldia and the deepening of Bharti Dock at Madras.

3.42 During the period April—December 1986, the major ports in the country handled 88.1 million tonnes of cargo as compared to 87.3 million tonnes of cargo handled in the corresponding period of last year, thereby recording an increase of 0.9 per cent. Commodity-wise, it is observed that during the first nine months of this year, there has been a shortfall in the traffic handled in the case of POL to the extent of 6.9 per cent as compared to the corresponding period of last year. The volume of traffic handled in the case of fertilizers, sugar and cement has also been less than in last year because of reduced imports during the growth ranging from 10.5 per cent in respect of iron ore to 34.2 per cent in respect of coal.

3.43 The main thrust in the Seventh Plan for the development of Ports Sector are :

(a) expansion of container handling facilities to handle at least 50 per cent of general cargo.

(b) augmentation of port capacities;

(c) modernisation of port facilities; and

(d) development of infrastructure to match type and size of ships as well as volume and type of cargo.

3.44 Nhava Sheva Port, under construction at Bombay with an estimated cost of Rs. 506 crores, when completed would be handling a traffic of 5.9 million tonnes, of which 3 million tonnes container and 2.9 million tonnes would be bulk cargo.

3.45 The ports handling exports of iron ore viz., Paradip, Visakhapatnam, Madras, New Mangalore and Mormugao, can receive at present vessels of only upto 1,30,000 DWT. It is proposed to take up the deepening of Paradip, Visakhapatnam Madras and Mormugao Ports during the Seventh Plan so as to enable them to receive iron ore vessels of upto 1,70,000 DWT.

INDUSTRIAL PERFORMANCE

In order to ensure that the Index of Industrial Production is an accurate and genuinely representative measure of industrial growth, the base and coverage of the index is updated over a period of time. Preliminary results of the comprehensive exercise to revise the base from 1970 to 1980-81 indicate that the actual industrial growth rate over the last two years may be significantly higher than recorded by the 1970 base Index (Table 4.1). The Index of Industrial Production (IIP, Base 1980-81 = 100) shows a growth rate for the years 1984-85 and 1985-86 of around 8 to 9 per cent per year and, although full details are not yet available for all industries for the current year, the indications are that a healthy growth rate is being maintained.

4.2 The improved 1980-81 index tends to confirm the observation in last year's Economic Survey that if new industries once taken into account, the industrial growth rates are likely to be higher. Thus, it was pointed out that the "industrial structure in India has undergone major changes since 1970. Many of the present critical growth areas like chemicals, petro-chemicals, garments, gem-cutting and electronics do not have a commensurate weight in the current index base 1970=100, (some of them do not find any place at all), while many of the traditional (but currently stagnant) industries, such as mill sector cotton textiles, command disproportionately high weights in relation to their share in the current industrial production". An important source of data corroborating the finding that the 1970 index tends to under-estimate industrial growth, was the relevant figures reported by the Annual Survey of Industries (ASI). The ASI, which has a much wider coverage in the manufacturing sector of industry than the IIP and does not suffer from the 'base problems associated with an index, has consistently tended to show a higher growth than the IIP. For the period 1974-75 to 1982-83 the compound annual growth rate in the manufacturing sector according to the ASI was 8.0 per cent while according to the IIP it was only 4.4 per cent.

4.3 Of the three main components of overall industrial performance, the manufacturing sector has shown the most significant acceleration (Table 4.3). The weight of this sector has declined from 81.08 in the existing index to 77.11 in the 1980-81 series, while the remaining weight in the index is divided almost equally between mining and quarrying (up from 9.69 to 11.46) and electricity (up from 9.23 to 11.43). The significant increase in the growth rate of the manufacturing sector has occurred during the last two years while in the mining sector the index of industrial production (1980-81) shows a higher growth rate for most of the eighties, averaging a compound annual growth rate of 11.0 per cent (compared to 10.1 per cent according to the 1970 base index).

4.4 A number of industrial policy initiatives were taken during the year which were in continuation of the basic trend over the last few years of simplifying procedures and removing bottlenecks to technology upgradation. The basic thrust of industrial policy has been growth oriented in order to boost production and generate employment with particular focus on small scale industry and the manufacturing sector. Schemes of broad-banding and capacity re-endorsement were introduced to increase output and improve capacity utilisation. Several other policy measures were taken to encourage investment and expansion of existing units to levels that ensure economies of scale.

4.5 Another important source of growth has been the small scale sector for which 49 items, generally those contributing at least 25 per cent to the total production of the relevant items in the base year, are to be included in the 1980-81 index. So far regular monthly production data for 18 items is being collected by the Development Commissioner, Small Scale Industries (DC-SSI) and will gradually be expanded to include the remaining items. The introduction of information on the growth of small scale industries enlarges the scope of the IIP to cover a dynamic and major employment oriented sector of the economy.

4.6 In the process of growth and increased competitiveness of Indian industry the emergence of sectors in which investment and output exceed demand in the short run is a natural consequence. These problems of adjustment to changing market conditions result in substantial price undercutting and a squeeze on profits in certain sectors of industry as firms establish their presence in the market. This interim period in which rates of return are lower as certain industries face a more competitive environment may also create a bearish tendency on the stock market, but should be viewed as a necessary process of adjustment to a stronger and more quality-conscious industrial base in the country.

4.7 This should, however, be distinguished from the problem of sickness in industry which has now become endemic. Sickness affects both traditional industries like jute and textiles because of lack of investment in modernisation, as well as newer units because of bad management, poor technology and insufficient demand. In the past, most units tended to rely on borrowed capital to meet their cash losses. Since the debt incurred has to be serviced and the management's need to take remedial steps in time is reduced. This tends to hasten the process towards sickness. In order to correct this situation the Government introduced a legislation in 1986, to ensure that after the entire net-worth (share-capital plus reserves) is exhausted and the unit has been making cash losses, the unit would have to apply immediately to a new Board for Industrial and Financial Reconstruction (BIFR). This Board has effective powers, inter alia, to reconstruct the unit, change the management or merge the unit with a suitable existing enterprise. Another provision in the new Act is that as soon as 50 per cent of the net-worth of the unit is exhausted, the management of the unit would have to seek a fresh mandate from its shareholders to continue in management. These provisions will ensure that sickness is detected early and remedial action through induction of higher equity by shareholders is taken without delay. This contrasts with the present situation where the net-worth of most sick units has been eroded several times over and accumulated losses have been financed through borrowed capital from banks and institutions.

Industrial Production

4.8 On the basis of the index of industrial production (base 1970 = 100) industrial production increased by 6.3 per cent during 1985-86 compared with 6.8 per cent during 1984-85. The increase in production during 1985-86 was a result of 8.5 per cent growth in electricity generation, 6.1 per cent in manufacturing and 4.7 per cent in the mining and quarrying sector.

4.9 During April—August, 1986, industrial production recorded an increase of 5.6 per cent over the corresponding period of the preceding year. Notable growth of 7.1 per cent was achieved in the mining and quarrying sector and 9.6 per cent in electricity generation. However, the growth in the manufacturing sector has decelerated to 4.6 per cent.

4.10 In the manufacturing sector 12 out of 16 industry groups showed a positive growth rate during the first five months of this year over the corresponding period of previous year. Industry groups where notable growth rates were achieved are : beverages, rubber, chemicals and chemical products, metal products and transport equipment.

4.11 However, the growth rates based on the 1970 Index of Industrial Production do not correctly reflect the actual growth in the industrial sector. The index does not reflect the wide base of Indian industry that has developed over the last decade and a half. Moreover, it does not represent the small-scale sector which contributes significantly to the overall industrial output and employment. Many relatively new industries and industrial products which have shown a high growth in recent years, namely, electronics, petrochemicals, garments, gem cutting, etc, do not have adequate representation in the weighting diagram of the existing series of the index. In contrast, many traditional slow growing industries e.g. cotton textiles, command unduly high weight in the index.

4.12 To overcome these difficulties, it was decided to update the base and develop a revised Index of Industrial Production for the preparation of which a Working Group was set up in 1978. This index is based on improved selection procedures and methodology for determining the weighting diagram, exclusion of non reporting items, inclusion of new industrial products and an appropriate representation of the small-scale sector.. The 1980-81 series, is expected to become fully operational during 1987.

4.13 According to the preliminary results for 1984-85 and 1985-86, based on the new series (1980-81 base), the industrial growth profile that has emerged is distinctly different from the one indicated by the existing series, particularly in the manufacturing sector. According to the revised series of Index of Industrial Production (IIP) the overall growth of industrial production in 1984-85 was 8.6 per cent as against 6.8 per cent as per the existing series. Similarly for 1985-86, the growth rate works out to 8.7 per cent according to the new series as against 6.3 per cent under the existing series. The major contribution for the notable difference between the growth rates obtained under the two series was the significant growth achieved in the manufacturing sector, which was 8.0 per cent and 9.7 per cent respectively during 1984-85 and 1985-86 under the new series compared with the growth rate of 5.7 per cent and 6.1 per cent respectively under the existing series. The comparative picture of the respective overall and sectoral growth rates is presented in the following table :

Similarly, the industries responsible for higher growth during 1984-85 include jute textiles 27.1 per cent), wood and wood products (29.3 per cent), paper and paper products (20.7 per cent), leather and leather products (20.1 per cent), non-metallic mineral products (13.0 per cent), basic metal and alloy products (12.8 per cent), metal products (19.2 per cent), chemicals and chemical products (9.0 per cent), rubber, plastic and petroleum products (8.2 per cent) and miscellaneous products (17.4 per cent).

4.15 A number of industries which showed remarkable performance during 1985-86 included petroleum products (20.7 per cent), phosphatic fertilizers (12.1 per cent), saleable steel (main plants) (11.1 per cent), nitrogenous fertilizers (10.5 per cent), sugar (9.9 per cent), cement (9.5 per cent), power-transformers (7.3 per cent), cotton yarn (including mixed/blended) (6.6 per cent), commercial vehicles (6.4 per cent), tea (5.7 per cent), penicillin (3.3 per cent), railway wagons (0.8 per cent), etc. The industries which suffered from stagnation and decline in production in 1985-86 were : aluminium, vanaspati, cigarettes, streptomycin, sulpha drugs, diesel engines (veh.), agricultural tractors, jute manufactures, etc.

Policy Development and Response

4.16 Measures for rationalisation and restructuring of industrial policy were continued during the year for generating growth and development of the industrial sector of the economy. Steps were directed towards further refinement and expansion of the schemes to rationalize procedures and controls.

4.17 In March 1985, the Government had announced the delicensing of 25 broad categories of industries and 82 bulk drugs and formulations. For these industries only registration with the Secretariat for Industrial Approvals (SIA) was required and the need for licensing under the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act having been dispensed with provided that (i) such undertakings concerned do not fall within the purview of the Monopolies and Restrictive Trade Practices (MRTP) Act, or the Foreign Exchange Regulations Act, (FERA), (ii) the article of manufacture is not reserved for the small scale sector and (iii) the concerned undertaking is not located within the specified urban limits. In December, 1985, delicensing was extended to 22 out of the 27 MRTP industries exempt under Sections 21 and 22 of the MRTP Act provided that such undertakings were located in centrally declared backward areas. In July 1986, roller flour milling industry was covered under the delicensing scheme, taking into account the comfortable wheat stocks in the country. In September, 1986 delicensing was also extended to certain chemical industries. This was done to enable the chemical industries to up-date their technology and modernise their plants.

4.18 The facility of broad-banding of production allowed to selected industries with a view to secure better capacity utilisation was extended in stages and by the end of January 1986, some 28 industry groups were covered under this facility. During 1986, this facility was further extended to cover glass, steel pipes and tubes, synthetic fibres & synthetic filament yarn, electrical cables and wires, ball & roller bearings, specified categories of agricultural machinery, soya products, textile machinery and chemical industries.

4.19 In order to maximise capacity utilisation a scheme of re-endorsement of capacity was introduced in April, 1982. During 1986, this scheme was liberalised to allow undertakings which had achieved 80 per cent capacity utilisation (as against 94 per cent earlier) to avail of the facility. The re-endorsed capacity is calculated by taking the highest production achieved during any of the previous five years plus one-third thereof. The undertakings which are able to achieve capacity utilisation equal to the re-endorsed level would get further re-endorsement according to the highest production achieved in subsequent years. The scheme is effective for the Seventh Five Year Plan period.

4.20 An important initiative was to encourage realisation of economies of scale by expansion of existing installed capacities of undertakings to minimum economic levels of operation. As a matter of policy this facility was also extended to MRTP companies. Minimum economic capacities have since been specified for 73 industries under this facility.

4.21 A number of steps were taken during the last two years for the rationalisation of the provisions concerning MRTP companies. These included raising the minimum assets limit of MRTP companies from Rs. 20 crores to Rs. 100 crores, exemption of certain industries from the provisions of Sections 21 and 22 of the MRTP Act, expansion of Appendix I list, etc. Further steps were taken to exempt, subject to certain conditions, 28 Appendix 1 and 24 non-Appendix I industries from the provisions of Sections 21 and 22 of the MRTP Act, MRTP and FERA companies are permitted to set up capacities, provided the concerned items of manufacture are not specifically reserved for the small scale sector. Outside the Appendix I industries, more FERA and MRTP companies are permitted to operate with no export obligation in category 'A' districts and reduced export obligation of 25 per cent in category 'B' & 'C' districts. Normally, such companies are to undertake an export obligation of minimum of 60 per cent, if the item is not reserved for small scale industries and 75 per cent of its production if the item is so reserved. With a view to augmenting export production, licensed industrial undertakings are exempt from obtaining substantial expansion licences if the entire production, in excess of the licensed capacity is meant for exports.

Response to Policy Initiatives

4.22 The evidence suggests that the industrial investment climate in the country has vastly improved.

*These data relate to April—March. The data against 1984 are for 1984-85 and so on. For 1986, the data pertains to the period April—September only.

4.23 Despite delicensing of a number of industries and broad-banding of some industrial products, the number of industrial licences issued has been going up substantially. The number of letters of intent granted went up from 1064 in 1984 to 1457 in 1985. During 1986, 1130 letters of intent have been issued. The number of registrations with the SIA has increased from 1167 during 1985 to 2387 during 1986. In 1986, nearly two-third of the registrations related to projects in the backward areas. The upward trend was also visible in the number of approvals granted for foreign collaborations. During 1986, 958 foreign collaborations were approved compared with 752 in 1984. The number of approvals given by the Controller of Capital Issues went up from 640 in 1984 to 1171 in 1986. The amount of capital issues approved increased from Rs. 1800 crores in 1984 to Rs. 6168 crores in 1986—an increase over 242 per cent.

4.24 Sanctions and disbursements of assistance by term lending financial institutions have also shown a considerable increase. Sanctions by all financial institutions went up from Rs. 5647 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 6614 crores during 1985-86. During the first half of 1986-87, total sanctions amounted to Rs. 3694 crores showing an increase of about 22 per cent over the corresponding period of 1985-86. Disbursements went up from Rs. 3502 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 4920 crores in 1985-86. During the first half of 1986-87, disbursements reached a level of Rs. 2388 crores, thereby showing an increase of 16 per cent over the corresponding period of 1985-86.

4.25 The stock market situation continued to remain by and large buoyant. The average RBI's Index of Ordinary Shares (Base 1980-81 = 100) for April —November 1986 at 234.6, showed a rise of 12.8 per cent over the average index of 208.0 from the corresponding period of 1985.

4.26 The policy to delicense certain industries seems to have an encouraging response. By the end of 1986, 3554 registrations had taken place in the 32 broad industry groups delicensed since March 1985. About 60 per cent of these registrations were in centrally-declared backward areas. The principal areas of registration have been roller flour grinding (27.5 per cent), electronic components (16.7 per cent), special alloys-sponge iron (6.4 per cent) and auto-ancillaries (6.3 per cent). The total value of investment associated with these registrations is about Rs. 14,352 crores, of which 34.2 per cent is in the special alloy-sponge iron industry, 20.0 per cent in the electronic components, 6.3 per cent in roller flour grinding and 5.1 per cent in auto-ancillaries and 6.1 per cent in chemical industry.

Electronics Industry

2.27 A successful thrust for modernisation and technology upgradation cannot be achieved without a substantial development of the indigenous electronics industry. It plays a catalyst role in increasing production and productivity in key sectors of the economy like power, coal, oil, railways, communications and process industries. Keeping the important role of this industry in view, major policy initiatives were implemented to provide a major boost to electronics during the last two years.

4.28 The production in electronics industry has grown at a rate of around 40 per cent per annum during the last two years. The level of production has gone up from Rs. 1480 crores in 1983-84 to Rs. 2880 crores in 1985-86. An important factor in the remarkable growth was a significant fall in the prices of many electronics items, e.g., the prices of computers declined by over 50 per cent and of TV sets by around 10 per cent during this period.

4.29 The performance has, however, varied for different products in the electronics industry. Consumer electronics have shown remarkable growth : as against a target of Rs. 676 crores, the production in 1985-86 was around Rs. 1100 crores, the major contribution being that of TVs' and radio sets. In contrast, the performance of the communication electronics sector was not wholly satisfactory, the actual production of Rs. 635 crores was in fact lower than the target of Rs. 830 crores. This was due mainly to slippages in the constituent sectors including mass-communications, tele-communications, aero-space and defence. The level of production of components of Rs. 440 crores in 1985-86, however, was as per targets. The component producing sub-sector of the industry feeds other segments of the electronics industry and as such is vital for the development of the electronics industry as a whole. A major problem facing electronic components industry at present is the limited domestic market. The segment also suffers from high capital intensity, long gestation period and high rate of obsolescence.

4.30 During 1986-87, the production of the electronics industry as a whole is expected to reach a level of Rs. 3685 crores, or a growth of about 28 per cent over 1985-86. The production of television sets is likely to cross 3 million mark consisting of 2.2 million black & white and 0.9 million colour T.V. sets.

4.31 Along-with the increase in production, exports of electronics are also looking up. The level of exports is likely to go up from Rs. 151 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 200 crores by 1986-87. Two-third of exports is from units in the Santa Cruz Electronics Export Processing Zone (SEEPZ). The growth in exports over the past years, however, has not been satisfactory. A major reason for the poor export performance is the fact that the export markets are highly competitive and sensitive to price and quality.

4.32 Investment in the electronic sector is growing and a number of major projects in communications, computers, components, etc. are at an advanced stage of implementation. An encouraging development in this regard has been the good response from enterpreneurs for setting up units for production of a number of components involving fairly high investment. It is anticipated that during 1986 an additional investment of about Rs. 220 crores would be made in the component sector alone and a further Rs. 400 crores is anticipated during 1987. On the whole, the electronics industry is emerging as a major industry in the country.

4.33 The production base for electronics industry is widespread. There are over 2500 units in the public sector (both central and state), organised private sector and small scale sector. It is, however, noticed that the main contribution to production (accounting for about 75 per cent of the total output) comes from 250 major units of which over 100 units are in the small scale sector. The contribution of public sector units in the overall production of electronics is about 30 per cent, that of small scale sector is about 45 per cent and the remaining 25 per cent is contributed by units in the organised private sector. The total direct employment in the electronics units is estimated to be around 2 lakhs, of which 40 per cent is in the public sector.

4.34 The remarkable growth of electronics industry has been the result of concerted efforts in this regard. A number of specific steps have been taken to accelerate the growth of electronics in the country. The basic thrust of the policy is general rationalisation of the licensing policy, with an emphasis on promotion rather than on regulation. By and large, no upper limit is prescribed on capacity and no restriction of a sectoral nature : large scale, small scale, private sector, public sector, etc., is prescribed except where specific reservations are made on very special considerations. Achieving economies of scale with up-to-date technology has been the major objective of this sector. The following specific policy measures taken recently have played a significant role in the growth of this sector :

(i) For a number of categories, "broad-band" licences have been issued.

(ii) The electronic components industry has been delicensed. Also consumer durables are delicensed subject to the condition that the units would not draw upon resources from the financial institutions.

(iii) The import of technology and foreign collaboration will be permitted in all areas of electronics. Units having foreign equity less than 40 per cent will be permitted in all areas.

(iv) For telephone instruments, electronic PABX systems and rural automatic exchange the technology will be acquired on a centralised basis to achieve economies of scale.

(v) Developments of small scale industry is being particularly encouraged. Approvals for a number of items have been decentralised to the level of State DIs. Investment limit for this sector has been revised to Rs. 35.0 lakhs and that for ancillary units to Rs. 45.0 lakhs.

(vi) Electronic units will be allowed to be established in any permissible location.

(vii) In order to achieve economies of scale in certain key areas, certain components which were reserved for small scale sector have been dereserved.

(viii) The private sector has been permitted to enter areas of telecommunication, manufacture of telephone EPABX teleprinters, fascimile equipment, data communication terminals, etc. Other items can also be taken up by the private sector with Central/State Government participation of at least 51 per per equity shares.

(ix) In almost all areas of electronics, excluding consumer electronics, MRTP companies have been extempt from clearance under Sections 21 and 22 of MRTP Act.

(x) A computer policy has been announced with emphasis on the manufacture of computers based on latest technology at prices comparable with international level and progressively increasing indigenisation consistent with economic viability.

(xi) Import duty on raw materials, components and capital equipment has been reduced. In the case of computers, including software and black and white TV receivers with 36" screen size, there is complete exemption from excise duty.

(xii) The import policy has been rationalised with a view to increase production.

(xiii) Government is promoting appropriate applications of electronics to improve productivity, quality, safety and quality of services.

(xiv) A fiscal package has been announced for component industry; which has rationalised the duty on raw materials, parts and semi-finished goods.

Research and Development

4.35 A number of fiscal advantages have been provided to encourage the setting up of R&D centres recognised by the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research (DSIR). There are more than 900 in-house R&D units enjoying DSIR's recognition and of these about 90 units are in the public sector. The expenditure incurred by the in-house R&D units during 1985-86 was reported to be around Rs. 500 crores. This, however, forms an insignificant part (0.2 per cent) of the overall turnover.

4.36 There has been a steady increase in R&D manpower employed by the in-house R&D units. In 1975-76, about 13,000 R&D personnel were employed by about 400 units. During 1981-82 the figure increased to over 41,000 for about 750 units. The present estimated manpower for over 900 units is of the order of 45,000. It is estimated that the R&D assets possessed by the in-house R&D units are currently to be of the order of Rs. 650 crores.

4.37 Some of the recent and important achievements of the in-house R&D units are : development of new drugs such as Forskolin, Trequinsin, Stranldazole, Nifedipine, Suprinorphine, Cibamid, etc.; development of fascimile transmission equipment, EPAX, EPBX, Electronic telephone instruments, auto rectifiers, etc., high strength aluminium alloys for defence applications, high speed precision winding machine for jute industry, Fluidized Bed Prying System for tea, Cationic Dyeable Polyester, Geotextiles, etc.

4.38 The in-house R&D units have acquired a number of technologies from the National Laboratories for commercial exploitation. Following are few examples of effective technology transfer : The Indian Petro-Chemicals Corporation Ltd. has commissioned a 10,000 tonne per annum capacity plant for production of acrylates based on process developed at the National Chemicals Laboratory, Pune; a solvent extraction process for the production of benzene has been made available by Indian Institute of Petroleum to Bharat Petroleum Corporation; an indigenous plant of 900 tonnes per day capacity for low temperature carbonisation of coal, developed at Regional Research Laboratory, Hyderabad has gone into production; 500 KW and 1 MW fixed frequency 'S' Band magnetron has been developed by the Central Electronics Engineering Research Institute, Pilani; RRI, Jorhat assisted in the installation and commmissioning of a 500 kg/batch capacity citronella distillation plant installed by the District Rural Development Agency (DRDA), Jorhat at Nakachari. The first commercial plant for distilled grade zinc dust set up by M/s Zinc Products & Co. (P) Ltd., Patna is based on National Metallurgical Laboratory's know-how. Central Food Technology Research Institute has developed and transferred a new milling technique which gives yields of 80-85 per cent in lesser time and at lower cost, compared to traditional processes. A continuous interaction is developing between the National Laboratories and various industrial R&D units in the country. However, major steps are still needed to improve the quality of R&D institutions and provide a boost to development of indigenous technology.

Industrial Sickness

4.39 Industrial sickness continues to remain a major area of concern. As at the end of December 1985, the number of sick units in the portfolio of scheduled commercial banks stood at 1,19,606 involving an outstanding bank credit of Rs. 4,270.93 crores. The total number of large industrial units identified by banks as sick has increased from 597 as at the end of June 1985 to 637 as at the end of December 1985. The outstanding bank dues of these units increased from Rs. 2655.39 crores as at the end of June 1985 to Rs. 2980.24 crores at the end of December 1985.

4.40 Of the 1,19,606 sick industrial units (large, medium and small) involving a total bank credit of Rs. 4,270.93 crores at the end of December 1985, the viability position was as follows :

4.41 Of the 8569 potentially viable industrial units, 2751 units have been put under nursing by the banks upto December, 1985. The outstanding bank advances to these units amounted to Rs. 1581.35 crores.

4.42 Of the 637 large sick industrial units banks had determined the viability or otherwise in respect of 552 units by the end of December, 1985. Out of these, 350 units were found to be potentially viable and accounted for Rs. 1737.13 crores i.e. about 58.3 per cent of the total outstanding bank credit to all large sick units. Banks have put 221 units with outstanding credit of Rs. 1125.06 crores under the nursing programme.

4.43 In the small scale sector, 16,41,748 units have been provided with bank credit amounting to Rs. 7829.32 crores at the end of December, 1985. Of these, 1,17,783 units (7.2 per cent) have been found to be sick with outstanding bank credit of Rs. 1070.67 crores (13.7 per cent). Of the total sick units 7839 units (6.7 per cent) with outstanding credit of Rs. 244.98 crores (22.9 per cent) were considered by banks as potentially viable. A total of 2189 units with outstanding credit amounting to Rs. 176.33 crores were reported to be put under nursing programme by the financing banks as at the end of December, 1985.

4.44 A number of measures have been taken to tackle the problem of industrial sickness. The importance of detection of sickness at the incipient stage has been emphasised by the RBI. The RBI have also emphasised the importance of proper coordination between the commercial banks and term lending institutions in the formulation and implementation of rehabilitation packages. Another important measure by the RBI is the introduction of health code system to categorise various borrowal accounts according to quality of the accounts for better monitoring and for facilitating preventive action wherever necessary.

4.45 The Industrial Reconstruction Bank of India (IRBI) has initiated various steps for checking the growth of industrial sickness and helping in industrial revival. Out of 393 units assisted by the IRBI till the end of June 1986, 136 units have been revived. These include units which have repaid in full, those which are nationalised and those which have started making profits. The units which were under nursing programmes numbered 131. These two categories of units totalling 267 units constitute more than 80 per cent of the total units. The IRBI continued to organise inter-institutional rehabilitation meetings for conducting the efforts regarding sick units in the medium and large scale sector in consultation with other financial institutions.

4.46 A significant measure taken during the year was the setting up of Small Industries Development Fund (SIDF) in the IDBI on 20th May, 1986. This is meant to provide a focal point for coordinating financial assistance to the small scale sector. The Fund would be charged with the responsibility of providing re-financing assistance not only for development, expansion and modernisation but also for the rehabilitation of the small scale sick industries. It is expected that the SIDF assistance to the SSI sector during the next 5 years may go up to Rs. 8150 crores compared with Rs. 4075 crores during the last 5 years.

4.47 Lack of modernisation has been identified as an important cause for industrial sickness. In view of the urgent need for modernisation in the textiles and jute sector, which also account for a major share of industrial sickness, Government has set up two funds, viz. the Textile Modernisation Fund and the Jute Modernisation Fund. Under these two funds, assistance is provided not only to the healthy units for modernisation at 11.5 per cent rate of interest but also to sick but potentially viable units. Special loans are given to the weak units for meeting a part of the promoters' contribution. These special loans carry 6 per cent rate of interest with a repayment period of 12 years and an initial moratorium period of 6 years. The IDBI is the nodal agency for TMF while the IFCI would administer the JMF. The TMF has become effective with effect from 1st August, 1986 and the JMF from 1st November, 1986. Under the TMF, assistance of the order of Rs. 750 crores is expected over next 5 years. The JMF on the other hand has a corpus of Rs. 150 crores. It is expected that the setting up of these Funds would go a long way in improving the health of textiles and jute sectors of the Indian economy.

4.48 Central Government has set up a Board for Industrial and Financial Reconstruction (BIFR) with effect from 12th January, 1987 in pursuance with enactment of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985. This is a major step for intervening at an early stage and detecting, preventing as well as taking ameliorative, remedial and such other measures which need to be taken with respect to sick and potentially viable companies. Under the provisions of the Act all medium and large scale companies who have their net-worth eroded by 50 per cent have to report the fact of such erosion to the Board and also to hold a General Meeting of the shareholders of the company to seek a fresh mandate for the management. Industrial companies who have accumulated losses eroding entire share capital and reserves have to make a reference to the Board for determination of measures which shall be adopted with respect to the company. The Board has been given wide ranging powers in respect of approval of rehabilitation packages for sick industrial companies including their reconstruction and revival as well as change of management or amalgamation with any other company, or sale or lease of a part or whole of the industrial undertaking, etc. or even winding up of the company. Board under the Act also has the powers of the Central Government to give approval to the amalgamation of a sick industrial company with a healthy company under Section 72--A of the Income Tax Act. It is further provided that the provisions of the MRTP Act shall not apply in relation to modernisation or expansion of a sick industrial company or the amalgamation or merger as a result of scheme sanctioned by the Board. The Act also provides for an Appellate Authority. It is now expected that with the coming into force of this Act, many sick units which were earlier allowed to go on incurring losses resulting in loss of production, loss of employment, loss of revenue to Central and State Governments and locking up of large amount of banks, institutional and public fund would be able to be restructured and thus rehabilitated on the basis of more funds coming from promoters and entrepreneurs rather than subsisting on public and institutional funds.

Employment in the Organised Sector

4.49 Employment in the organised sector at the end of June, 1986 (quick estimate) stood at 250.37 lakhs, showing an increase of 1.6 per cent as compared to 1.2 per cent in the corresponding month of last year. Employment of women in the organised sector which stood at 33.28 lakhs at the end of June, 1986 showed a higher increase of 3.5 per cent as against 2.9 per cent at the end of June, 1985.

4.50 The number of job-seekers on the live register of Employment Exchanges was 261.34 at the end of November, 1986 thereby showing an increase of 14.2 per cent over the same month of 1985. Monthly average of vacancies notified during April-November, 1986 was of the order of 55.3 thousand as compared to 56.6 thousand during the corresponding period of last year thereby showing a fall of 2.5 per cent. Similarly, average monthly placements during April-November 1986 declined to 29.1 thousand from the monthly average of 31.1 thousand over the same period of 1985, thus showing a fall of 6.4 per cent.

Industrial Relations

4.51 There has been a significant improvement in industrial relations which is reflected by a sharp decline in man-days lost to 28.05 million in 1985-86; which was the lowest since 1977-78. The man-days lost in the first quarter of 1986-87 was 8.72 million.

4.52 By an amendment made in the Payment of Bonus Act, 1965, the limit of salary for eligibility of bonus under the Act has been raised from Rs. 1600 to Rs. 2500 per month. The Wage Board for Working Journalists and non-Journalist Newspaper Employees made recommendation for grant of interim rate of wages to journalists and non-journalists employees of the newspaper establishments at the rate of 7.5 per cent of basic wages subject to a minimum of Rs. 45 per month. The Government after taking into consideration the various representations received from workers, organisations, M.P.s, etc. have announced an increased interim rate of wages at the rate of 15 per cent of the basic wages subject to a minimum of Rs. 90 per month. The Wage Board for Sugar Industry also made recommendation for grant of interim relief to workers of sugar industry at the rate of Rs. 45 per month w.e.f. the date of the expiry of the last agreement between the workers and the management or 1st January, 1986 whichever is earlier till the submission of the final award.

4.53 The improved industrial relations situation has contributed significantly towards the improved performance of the industrial sector. In order to further improve industrial relations, it is proposed to set up a Industrial Relations Commission. Tribunals are being set up for sorting out the problems of central staff/workers and more effective implementation of labour laws to maintain harmonious relations between the workers and employers to ensure better quality, productivity and management required for strengthening the economic structure.

4.54 Tripartite Industrial Committees on Chemical Industry; Engineering Industry; Cotton Textile Industry; Jute Industry; Plantation Industry; Road Transport Industry; Tanneries and Leather Goods Manufacturing Industry; Cement Industry; Building and Construction Industry; Coal Industry and Mines other than Coal Industry have been reconstituted, with a view to strengthen the Tripartite Consultative machinery. All these Committees have met at least once. Certain Committees have met more than one occasion so far. During 1986 the meetings of the Industrial Committees on Jute, Building and Construction, Cement, Cotton, Plantation, Mines other than Coal, and Coal have been held. In these meetings discussions were held on the issues relating to industrial relations situation, safety and occupational health, workers' participation in management and social security schemes, etc.

Small Scale Industries

4.55 Small scale industries continued to witness significant growth during 1985-86 (first year of the Seventh Plan). The number of small scale industries units increased from 12.42 lakhs in 1984-85 to 13.53 lakhs (provisional) at the end of 1985-86. Over the same period, employment in this sector increased from 90 lakh persons to 96 lakh persons (provisional). In 1985-86, the total production in the small scale sector was estimated at Rs. 61,100 crores (at current prices), as compared to Rs. 50,520 crores in 1984-85, an increase of 20.9 per cent in the value of production over the previous year. The SSI sector has also been making significant contribution to exports. The total exports of the SSI products was estimated at Rs. 2579.9 crores in 1984-85 registering an increase of 16.2 per cent over the preceding year and accounts for about 22.5 per cent of the total exports of the country.

4.56 A wide range of support policies and programmes have been introduced by the Government for the small scale sector. These include reservation of items for exclusive production and purchase, priority in the disbursement of loans by the financial institutions, concessions in the import of raw materials and machinery, supply of these materials through Small Industries Corporations and other agencies and direct assistance like consultancy, training, etc. through a wide network of promotional bodies namely, Small Industries Service Institutes (SISIs), the District Industries Centres (DICs), Central Institute of Tool Design (CITD), Institute for Design & of Electrical Measuring Instruments (IDEMI), the National Institute for Entrepreneurship and Small Business Development (NIESBUD), etc.

4.57 A number of important development have taken place during the current year. Eight new items have been reserved for small scale sector, 21 items have been deleted and the nomenclature have been changed in respect of 24 items till the end of December, 1986. At present, 863 items are now reserved for small scale sector. The Small Industries Development Fund (SIDF) has been set up in the Industrial Development Bank of India in May, 1986 to provide re-finance assistance for development, expansion, diversification, modernisation and rehabilitation of small scale, cottage and village industries and tiny sector units in rural areas. New schemes of assistance have been launched under SIDF for women entrepreneurs and for quality control. The States Small Industrial Development Corporations (SIDCs) have been rendered assistance by the IDBI for the first time in order to strengthen their activities in marketing, supplying of essential raw materials, machinery on hire purchase basis, establishing industrial estates, etc. A Special Committee has been set up by the Reserve Bank of India to look into various aspects of sickness and to make recommendations for combating sickness and evolving a meaningful package of assistance for rehabilitation of sick units in this sector. A number of excise duty notifications were issued for the benefit of small scale sector in the 1986-87 Budget. Units whose value of clearances do not exceed Rs. 15 lakhs (Rs. 30 lakhs where the unit is manufacturing more than one article falling under different tariff headings) are completely exempt from the payment of excise duties. Concessional rates of duty have been prescribed for clearances between Rs. 15 lakhs and Rs. 75 lakhs. Small scale units whose value of clearances do not exceed Rs. 10 lakhs are no longer required to obtain excise licence. Excise procedures have been simplified. Excise inspection is limited to once in a year and self-assessment procedure has been introduced for clearances upto Rs. 50 lakhs.

4.58 Steps are also being taken to give boost to the development of small and cottage industries in the North Eastern region. November, 1986 was observed as "Quality Maintenance and Improvement Month" by the entire industrial sector with a view to creating quality awareness among manufacturers, workers and consumers. In pursuance of this, various SISIs of the Small Industries Development Organisation (SIDO) organised and conducted 30 Seminars, 26 Industry Workshops, 4 Industry-Clinics and 5 Exhibitions in different parts of the country. Steps have also been taken for technology upgradation in the small scale sector and for identifying more areas which could lend themselves to ancillarisation.

PRICES

During the current fiscal year, the Wholesale Price Index (WPI) increased by 5.9 per cent (upto 24 January 1987) and after taking into account seasonal factors on the present trends it is likely that 1986-87 will end with an inflation rate of around 6.5 per cent. This is well below the average annual price increase of 7.9 per cent over the last decade and suggests that the overall price situation in the economy is well within control. However, the rise in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) [for industrial workers] this year was once again higher than the WPI, increasing by 7.8 per cent between March and December, 1986 and is a cause for concern. Since the normal seasonal decline of the CPI began after November, it is to be hoped that this index will come closer in alignment with the WPI over the next three months.

5.2 Prices of food articles in 1986-87 have been far more stable than in 1985-86, increasing at an underlying rate of about four per cent compared to around 6.5 per cent last year [see Table 5.1]. On the other hand, prices of non-food agricultural products have increased sharply. In the previous year, excess supply conditions existed in a number of fibres and commercial crops, causing their prices to fall sharply : jute prices fell by 72 per cent, raw cotton fell by 16 per cent, tea fell by 11 per cent, condiments and spices fell by 16 per cent and oilseeds fell by 1 per cent. The production of many of these commercial crops have stabilized at lower levels this year and their prices have risen to more normal levels.

5.3 The impact of these sharp changes in the supply and the prices of this group of items was to cut about 3 per cent off the inflation rate last year, and to add an extra 2 per cent to the current inflation rate as the prices of these crops increased from the extremely low levels reached last year. If this unusual volatility in prices of this group of commercial crops is averaged over the last two years, the inflation rate for both the years centres around 4-5 per cent per year which is a more accurate reflection of the underlying inflation rate in 1985-86 and 1986-87, the first two years of the Seventh Plan. In the current year, upto December prices of non-food items in the CPI, with a weight of 39.08 (e.g. transport, fuel and light, tobacco and liquor, personal effects, etc.) increased by about 1.7 percentage points more than the non-food group in the WPI. The increase in the price of tea (which declined sharply last year) of about 30 per cent has a major differential impact on the two series since the weight in the CPI is more than double the weight in the WPI. On the other hand, factors that would have helped reduce the divergent rates of increase of the two indices are the falling prices of wheat (−4.0 per cent) and pulses (—13.0 per cent) which have a higher weight in the CPI than in the WPI. In addition to the contribution of these individual items, there are other factors, such as the extent of the lag between wholesale and consumer prices, which make the comparison of the WPI and CPI a complex issue. The increase in prices of edible oils this year contributed to the rise in both price indices, the CPI and the WPI, while the price increase in oilseeds only affected the WPI. Edible oils prices increased by about 37 per cent during the period March 29, 1986 to January 24, 1987. Oilseed prices have recorded only a marginally lower increase during this year. The current year's price increase, however, should be seen in the context of the falling prices of these items over the last two years (Table 5.2). Considered over a three-year period, the average rise in prices of oilseeds was 4.9 per cent per year.

5.4 The Government's policy is to boost domestic production of edible oils and reduce imports in order to save foreign exchange. Consequently, the falling price trends of oilseeds and edible oils over the last two years needed to be reversed if farmers are to receive remunerative prices for growing oilseeds. The rise in prices this year counteracts this declining trend and attempts at redressing the balance between the farmer and the consumer. The recent two-year sugar policy is an example of how production increases in response to appropriate price signals and the provision of a stable policy environment for farmers. Sugar prices which increased sharply in 1985-86, were only

5.5 There was a noticeable abatement of inflationary pressures during 1985-86. The annual rate of inflation in 1985-86 was 3.8 per cent—the lowest since 1981-82 when the rate had declined to 2.4 per cent. Continuing the deceleration for the third year in succession the increase in the Wholesale Price Index (WPI), was reduced to half the previous year's rate of 7.6 per cent and less than half the rate of 8.2 per cent in 1983-84 (Table 5.3). Much of the increase in prices was accounted for by a few primary agricultural commodities like Cereals, Pulses, Fruits and Vegetables, Milk and Milk Products and Eggs, Fish and Meat (Table 5.3). These items with a combined weight of about 27.1 per cent in the Index accounted for over two-thirds of the total increase in prices during the year. Part of the increase was, however, offset by a decline in the prices of condiments and spices, other food articles, fibres and oilseeds. Administered prices as a group went up by 5.3 per cent. These included petroleum products, coal, electricity, fertilizers, iron, steel and ferro-alloys and non-ferrous metals and alloys. There was, however, a decline of 6.0 per cent in cement, prices of which are only partially controlled.

5.6 The Consumer Prices Index for industrial Workers (1960=100) recorded a rise of 8.9 per cent in 1985-86 as against 5.0 per cent in 1984-85. This higher increase in the CPI during 1985-86 was because of the price behaviour of food items. Prices of food items have a higher weight in the CPI than in the WPI and thus have a greater impact on the CPI. On the other hand, the sharp decline in prices of agro-based raw materials (cotton, jute, coconut, tea etc.) which brought down the WPI inflation rate considerably had a negligible impact on the CPI.

5.7 In 1985-86 the prices of important seasonal items, as a group, with a weight of 48 per cent in the WPI, increased by 3.6 per cent while all other commodities went up by 3.9 per cent. Individual commodities/groups which pushed up the Index included cereals, pulses, fruits and vegetables, milk and milk products, eggs, fish and meat and sugar, khandsari and gur. This increase was partly neutralised by a decline in prices of condiments and spices, tea, raw cotton, raw jute and oilseeds.

5.8 Seasonal pressure on prices normally begins from April and lasts upto September. In line with this seasonal pattern there were three distinct phases in the movement of prices during 1985-86 (1) betwee April—July, 1985 when there was an increase of 5.4 per cent in the Index compared with a rise of 7.2 per cent between April—July, 1984, (b) between August—November, 1985 when the Index declined by 2.4 per cent compared with a fall of 1.5 per cent during August—November, 1984, and (3) between December, 1985—March, 1986 when the Index rose by 0.9 per cent compared with a rise of 1.9 per cent during December, 1984—March, 1985.

5.9 The deceleration in WPI during the year was largely on account of fall in prices of cotton, jute and tea following increased production. While cotton prices declined by 25.2 per cent, raw jute fell by a record 71.7 per cent. Despite a decline in production the prices of oilseeds declined due to greater availability and carry over stocks from the preceding year.

5.10 The contribution of administered items to the price rise during 1985-86 was 35.6 per cent compared with 41.0 per cent contributed by seasonal items and 23.4 per cent by all other commodities. The seasonal increase in the WPI during the year was due to rise in prices of important primary articles like cereals, pulses, fruits and vegetables, eggs, fish and meat and the sugar group (Table 5.4). There were also increases in administered prices of petroleum products, coal, aluminium, fertilizers, electricity and non-ferrous metals.

Price Behaviour in 1986-87

5.11 Compared with the preceding year, prices have registered a weak seasonal decline in the current financial year partly because of a poor monsoon and a decline in kharif production. The WPI registered an increase of 5.9 per cent between 29th March, 1986 and 2nd August, 1986 and further by 1.3 per cent upto 11th October, 1986. The WPI reached a peak for the financial year on 11th October, 1986 when it increased by 7.2 per cent over end March as against an increase of 3.8 per cent upto 12th October, 1985. The cumulative increase in WPI during the current fiscal year upto 24th January, 1987 works out to 5.9 per cent. The annual rate of inflation which had declined to 4.0 per cent upto 2nd August, 1986 went up to 7.1 per cent by 11th October but came down to 6.3 per cent by 24th January 1987. Reflecting this same trend the CPI rose by 8.5 per cent upto November, 1986 but declined to 7.8 per cent by December, 1986.

The overall Wholesale Price Index reached a peak on 11-10-1986.

5.12 The analysis of the price rise shows that the weak seasonal decline this year has been because of commodity groups like foodgrains, fruits and vegetables, condiments and spices, oilseeds and edible oils whose availability has been adversely affected by deficient monsoon and restricted imports of edible oils. In the period from 29th March, 1986 to 11th October, 1986 seasonal commodities accounting for 48 per cent of the total weight in the WPI rose by 13.4 per cent while all other commodities registered an increase of only 2.0 per cent (Table 5.5). The seasonal groups/items which were responsible for the sharp increase in prices were fruits and vegetables (21.1%), milk and milk products (13.5%), tea (29.0%), raw jute (8.6%), oilseeds (35.5%), sugar, khandsari and gur (19.3%), edible oils (34.3%) and oilcakes (31.9%).

5.13 The seasonal decline began from 11th October, 1986 and continued upto December 20, 1986. The ten groups of seasonal items which had increased by 13.4 per cent in the first 28 weeks of the current financial year declined by 4.7 per cent in the next 10 weeks ending 20th December, 1986 while all other commodities showed a decline of 0.3 per cent (Table 5.5). Some of the groups/items which have, however, continued to be under pressure are wheat (3.1%), eggs, fish and meat (8.9%), coffee (8.9%), fibres (18.3%), mustard oil (2.9%) and sugar (2.4%). Jute/cotton prices reflect a recovery from the sharp decline in the earlier period and the upward revision of support prices. The movement of both the WPI and the CPI, during the current financial year is indicative of increased pressure on the prices of essential commodities. This is largely on account of set back to the production of many items due to adverse weather.

5.14 The index for fruits and vegetables has registered an increase of 19 per cent upto the week ending December 6, 1986. This increase is on account of very poor weather conditions which led to a shortfall in production of potatoes. There has also been a sharp increase in prices of onions for similar reasons. In order to reduce the inter-seasonal fluctuations in the prices of potatoes and onions, the Department of Civil Supplies has recommended to the State Governments to arrange for the sale of fruits and vegetables (including potatoes and onions), eggs, tea etc. through the retail outlets and mobile vans of Super Bazars, State Civil Supplies Corporations and Consumer Cooperatives. Although the prices ot black pepper had risen substantially, there was no significant change in the price level of condiments and spices as a groups between April-December, 1986. Garlic, an important spice not covered by the WPI has also recorded a substantial fall in output over the last two years from the peak level of 1983-84. This has resulted in a large increase in garlic prices. A proposal to import some quantities of garlic is under consideration of the Government.

5.15 After the substantial decline last year, tea prices have recorded an appreciable increase during 1986-87. The index for tea has gone up by 26.4 per cent upto the week ended 6th December, 1986 as against a fall of 14.9 per cent during week ended 7th December, 1985.

5.16 A substantial part of the increase in the wholesale prices in the current financial year is attributable to oilseeds and edible oils. The prices of these two groups upto 6th December, 1986 are about 30 per cent higher over end=March 1986. The increase in prices during this year is mainly because of shortfall in production in Gujarat, Andhra Pradesh and a few other States. It may be pointed out that the supply of edible oils in recent years has been short of demand which has been satisfied through large imports. The increase in the prices of oilseeds and edible oils this year is partly on account of the strategy of the Government of increasing of price incentives to indigenous producers with a view to reducing country's dependence on edible oil imports. The strategy of self-sufficiency appears to be working as imports of edible oils this year are likely to be substantially lower by over 50 per cent in value terms and about 22 per cent in volume as compared to the previous year.

5.17 On the other hand, the prices of the sugar group, on the whole, have remained more or less stable during the current financial year in contrast to the sharp increase experienced last year. In 1985-86, following a marked shortfall in sugar production, and the resulting need to import, the Government for the first time announced a Two-Year Sugar Policy. The Two-Year policy has been continued this year and further incentives were provided to sugarcane growers through an increase of the statutory minimum price of sugarcane to Rs. 18 per quintal for the 1987-88 season. This announcement was made well in advance of the sowing of the next crop. Also the proportion of free sale sugar has been increased from 45 per cent to 50 per cent. These policy measures have been successful as is evident from the relative stability of the prices of sugar group. Also it has resulted in sharp reduction in sugar imports and an increase in domestic production.

5.18 During the current financial year the CPI has increased by 7.8 per cent upto December, 1986. Based on the analysis of seasonal factors operating over the years it has been observed that the seasonal decline in CPI begins after November in each year and continues upto March the following year. However, in 1985-86 the seasonal decline was weak during this period. Since adverse weather conditions in 1986 have caused a drop in kharif output, the seasonal decline in CPI this year again may not be sharp. Moreover, there are specific price factors in operation this year which have caused divergence between CPI and WPI for the second year in succession. In 1985-86 the rate of increase in WPI was substantially below the CPI because the prices of a number of commercial crops had declined. This decline did not affect the CPI because these items are not included in the CPI at all.

5.19 The inflationary pressure during the current year is more pronounced at the retail level as may be seen from the movement of the CPI. The CPI has registered an increase of 7.8 per cent during the first nine months of 1986-87 as against 7.5 per cent in the corresponding months of 1985-86. The annual rate of inflation, on a point to point basis in terms of the CPI rose from 8.2 per cent in April, 1986 to 9.2 per cent in December, 1986 (latest available). The rates of increase in the corresponding months of 1985-86 were 6.3 per cent and 7.1 per cent respectively. The reasons for the divergence in the CPI and the WPI have been discussed above and in detail in earlier Economic Surveys. This is mainly due to the lag in transmitting the changes from the wholesale level to the retail level, and increase in certain items which are not included in WPI (e.g., housing and personal services).

Policy Framework and Developments

5.20 Price policy during the year laid emphasis on the need to moderate inflationary pressures, acting both on demand as well as supply side, through effective price surveillance and specific measures to soften the impact of inflation. As the price situation continued to be a subject of concern, both inside and outside the Parliament, the Government considered it appropriate to initiate a debate on various issues relating to the price policy in respect of administered prices for wider public comment and discussion. Two papers drawing attention to various policy options available to the government in regard to the need for and timing of changes in public sector prices and agricultural prices were presented to the Parliament. These are discussed in the following paragraphs.

Agricultural Prices

5.21 A policy paper entitled "Agricultural Price Policy-a Long Term Perspective" was presented to the Parliament in November 1986. The paper highlighted the three most important pre-conditions for stepping up production of any crop : (i) a productive technology package, (ii) efficient delivery of inputs and services for adopting such profitable technology and (iii) remunerative and stable market prices to the farmers for their produce. It stresses that these three pre-conditions need to be present together since any one or two of them alone reduce the effectiveness substantially. In line with this perspective, the focus of Government policies since the mid-sixties has been on modernisation of technology, supply of modern inputs like improved seeds, fertilizers, pesticides etc. at reasonable prices and evolution of price support mechanism and purchase mechanism for market intervention. Necessary institutional arrangements were made for the implementation of this policy. These included creation of an Agricultural Prices Commission (re-named in 1985 as the Commission for Agricultural Costs and Prices) and the setting up of the Food Corporation of India. While the CACP is the agency to advise the Government on a continuing basis, an effective infrastructure for price support to the farmers through market intervention has been established. Besides FCI, other specialised agencies like the Jute Corporation of India, Cotton Corporation of India and the National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation (NAFED) have been set up to help implement the policy in respect of the commodities assigned to them. Over the years all the important agricultural commodities/groups covering cereals/pulses, oilseeds, cotton, jute, sugarcane and tobacco have been brought into the ambit of price support operations.

5.22 The main aim of developing long-term policy on the price front is to provide more assured income to farmers and thus encourage production response by reducing uncertainty. While there has been a large increase in agricultural production and a significant shift in cropping pattern, nevertheless, heavy imports of sugar and edible oils in recent years reflect certain imbalances in the cropping pattern. An objective of the long-term policy is to provide conditions for removal of these imbalances. The other objectives which inter alia are to be kept in view are the need to provide incentives to growers, reasonable prices to consumers, need for encouragement to agricultural exports, demands of regional development and rational utilisation of resources. There is need to strengthen the infrastructure to implement the price policy and to prescribe a desirable time frame for announcement of procurement/support prices well in advance of the sowing season.

Administered Prices

5.23 The paper entitled "Administered Price Policy-A Discussion Paper", presented to the Parliament in August, 1986 points out that administered prices have a pervasive influence on the growth and development of the economy and the welfare of a broad cross-section of consumers. While the term administered prices cover a wide range of products and services etc. the focus of the paper is limited to a sub-set of these items covering commodities produced by the public sector and a range of other important commodities whose prices are administered by the Government. The paper identifies principles which may be used in the determination of the level of administered prices and points out that price increases should be undertaken only after measures for improving efficiency and reducing costs have been fully utilised. Through direct measures of intervention, the Government plays an important role in improving the distribution of real incomes and ensuring a much greater degree of equality in the society. The Public Distribution System has a particularly vital role in ensuring the availability of essential commodities to the lower income groups at reasonable prices The Discussion Paper reaffirms the Government's policy to provide basic necessities to the poorest sections and to strengthen the public distribution system as an integral part of its pricing strategy.

5.24 An increase in the prices of administered products affects the overall inflation rate both directly and indirectly. The direct impact of an increase in administred prices is reflected in the Wholesale Price Index to the extent of the weight of these commodities in the total weight of commodities included in the Index. The indirect impact is reflected when the price of a basic or intermediate good constituted an input to a number of other commodities.

5.25 An analysis of price behaviour of the different categories of items viz. core items, partially or fully administered items and their impact on the Wholesale Price Index during the last 15 years shows that while the average inflation rate in terms of Wholesale Price Index during the last 15 years was of the order of 9.12 per cent, the average annual contribution of administered prices (with a weight of 25.34 per cent in the WPI) was 2.16 per cent, of fuel price (with a weight of 5.51 per cent in WPI) was 1.27 per cent and of non-administered prices (with a weight of 69.15 per cent in WPI) was 5.68 per cent. While the increase in the administered prices undoubtedly contributed towards the overall infiation, there was no direct or simple relation. Stable administered prices did not necessarily guarantee that there would be no inflation, neither did periods with an increase in administered prices necessarily lead to an unusually high rate of inflation in the economy. The paper concluded that the performance of administered prices, though far from ideal, tended to be much less destabilising than was generally believed.

5.26 The paper stresses the importance of pricing policy for the public sector and states that prices should be set so as to reward efficiency and highlight inefficiencies. For the purpose of evolving a price policy a distinction should be made between fixing a desired price level at one point of time and providing justifiable changes on the prices overtime. The desired level of prices should be fixed on the basis of norms for efficient levels of operations (e.g. capacity utilization, output per unit of investment, per worker, per hour etc.). Such efficiency norms should be determined by an appropriate public agency. While the base level prices would be fixed for the medium term, arrangements will have to be made for price revisions necessitated by unavoidable changes in input costs.

5.27 In certain public sector industries the production costs were high due to inefficient operations. To the extent that this was due to internal fact factors which were under the control of the management, it would be necessary to introduce urgent corrective measures in a time bound programme. But in case these were due to external factors, various alternative ways of absorbing the higher cost of production would need to be thought of and the implications of choosing between Government subsidies or passing on the unavoidable cost increases examined in detail.

5.28 Another consideration which needed to be kept in view was whether the product concerned was a basic input or a final product. Prices of basic inputs should be revised only as a last resort and only when fully justifiable. Final products, on the other hand, could be priced according to criteria such as considerations of income distribution or intervention to break a monopoly situation without any significant negative impact on the structure of the economy. As such all inputs for industry which were subject to price control should, as far as possible, be supplied at their minimum economic price. While commodity inputs must not be over-priced the suppressing of administered prices below their minimum economic levels resulted in severe distortions in the structure of relative prices leading to waste and inefficiency in the utilisation of resources and also of unjustified subsidization of the private sector by the public sector. Thus, in principle, it should be the objective not to raise input prices above economic levels but this should be in line with the demand pattern and the resource position of the country.

5.29 It is important to evaluate the various policy options available whenever there was an unavoidable increase in the operating costs of a production unit. When there is an increase in costs, the options are limited :

(i) The most preferred option is to absorb, to the extent possible, the burden of the cost increase by improving the productivity and efficiency of the concerned enterprises.

To the extent that unavoidable cost increases cannot be so absorbed, the other options available to Government are :

(ii) Raising administered prices and thereby causing other prices to also increase.

(iii) Holding the administered prices unchanged, leading to higher losses (or lower profits), which may be met by higher subsidies from the Budget. This, in turn, can be sustained by either :

(a) tolerating a higher budget deficit, which may have at least as much inflationary impact as raising administered prices;

(b) reducing Plan expenditure, at the expense of development.

5.30 The importance of increasing the surpluses of public sector undertakings, through increases in efficiency, cannot be overestimated. However, if such improvements are not forthcoming and there is a shortfall in resources available for financing the Plan, the issue arises as to what action Government should take to protect the Plan. The paper also discusses the question of using price as an instrument for raising resources from the Public Sector for financing the Seventh Plan.

Changes in Procurement|Minimum Support Prices

5.31 The price policy for agriculture crops continued to be guided by the objectives and principles enunciated in Agricultural Price Policy paper mentioned above : to increase production of crops by providing assured and remunerative prices to the farmers. Broad changes in the procurement/minimum support prices of important crops are indicated in the Table 5.6 below.

5.32 As recommended by the CACP, Government announced on August 29, 1986 an increase of Rs. 4 per quintal in the procurement prices of paddy for all varieties—common, fine and superfine for 1986-87 marketing season. The increase was expected to act as a stimulus to the farmers in the Eastern region where a special rice production programme has been launched. A similar increase has been allowed in the procurement price of wheat for the 1986-87 crop to be marketed in 1987-88 season. The procurement prices of coarse grains viz. jowar, bajra, maize and ragi were raised by Rs. 2 per quintal to Rs. 132 per quintal for 1986-87 marketing season.

5.33 The minimum support prices for kharif pulses (arhar, moong and urad were raised by Rs. 20 per quintal to Rs. 320 per quintal. A higher increase was allowed for pulses with a view to provide an incentive to the farmers to increase acreage and to raise the productivity of the crop. In the case of oilseeds the Government is guided by the objective of increasing price incentive to indigenous producers and reducing our dependence on edible oil imports. In pursuance of this policy the minimum support price for kharif oilseeds were raised in September, 1986. The increases ranged from Rs. 5 per quintal for soyabean (black variety) to Rs. 20 per quintal for groundnut (in shell). Thus the minimum support price for groundnuts was fixed at Rs. 370 per quintal, for soyabean (yellow variety) at Rs. 290 per quintal, for soyabean (black variety) at Rs. 255 per quintal and for sunflower seeds at Rs. 350 per quintal. The National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation (NAFED) was designated the agency for ensuring the minimum prices. In order to ensure remunerative prices to farmers Government is also following a contra-cyclical policy of low releases of imported edible oils during the harvest period so that domestic oilseed prices remain buoyant for farmers and higher releases during the lean period to keep off-season prices in check.

5.34 In the case of lean period to keep off-season price was increased to Rs. 415 a quintal for mustard and safflower and Rs. 375 a quintal for toria. This price was higher by Rs. 15 a quintal compared with the previous year.

5.35 For sugarcane, the statutory minimum price for 1987-88 season (beginning October, 1987) has been announced in advance at Rs. 18 per quintal. This step is within the framework of the two-year sugar policy announced last year.

5.36 The minimum support prices of the various varieties of raw cotton in the long and superior long staple group have been fixed on the basis of a price of Rs. 540 per quintal for H-4 variety. The prices for varieties in the staple groups other than long and superior long staple have been fixed on the basis of prices of F-414 and H-777 varieties at Rs. 430 per quintal. The statutory minimum price for W-5 grade of raw jute in Assam for the 1987-88 season has been fixed at Rs. 240 per quintal. This represents an increase of Rs. 15 per quintal over the previous year's level.

Industrial Prices

Cement—At the time of partial de-control of cement, a single ex-factory retention price was fixed for levy cement for all cement factories. In view of the increase in the prices of various inputs like coal, power tariff, freight on coal etc., the cement industry was compensated twice, first in July, 1984, partly by increase in the retention price and partly by reduction in levy quota and again in June, 1985, by way of reduction in the levy quota. Keeping in view the further escalation in various inputs the Government decided in December, 1986 to increase the retention price of levy cement by Rs. 24.50 per tonne. The increase in the retention price was to be met from the savings of the Cement Regulation Account. Hence the consumers will continue to get the levy cement at the price fixed earlier.

Naptha—The prices of naptha used for steam generation called the MR Naptha, were revised with effect from 1-10-86 from Rs. 1982.31 a tonne to Rs. 3211 a tonne. The prices of naptha used by the fertilizer industry as feedstock (SR Naptha) were, however, kept unchanged.

Drugs—On 8th December, 1986 the Government announced the new Drug Policy to help the growth of drug industry. The policy contained measures to cover areas like quality control, rationalisation of use of drugs so as to ensure their abundant availability at reasonable prices and the setting up of an Apex Body, called the National Drug and Pharmaceutical Authority, to function as an advisory body on matters of development of pharmaceutical industry. As against the existing three categories of drugs and pharmaceuticals there would be only two "price-controlled" categories in future. The first category would consist of drugs necessary for the national health programme and the second category that of other essential drugs. The rest of the pharmaceuticals would be in the de-controlled category. The main plank of the new policy with regard to pricing is that as a result of greater incentives, production, specially in the more essential categories of pharmaceuticals, would pick up and with abundant availability, prices would automatically stabilise through the operation of market forces. It is envisaged that the increase in the maximum allowable post manufacturing expenses would not push up prices and atleast in some cases the prevailing market prices would be lower than those fixed by the Government, as a result of increased production and improved availability.

5.37 Prices of drugs in the de-controlled category would be constantly and closely monitored and effective monitoring system developed in this regard. Protection to indigenous industry is sought to be provided where necessary through tariff mechanism. In order to increase production, the policy envisages reduction in the existing span of price control over drugs and pharmaceuticals.

Public Distribution System

5.38 The Public Distribution System (PDS) has a particularly vital role in ensuring the availability of essential commodities to the lower income groups at reasonable prices. The Government is determined to provide the basic necessities to the poorest sections of the society and to strengthen the PDS as an integral part of its pricing strategy. The PDS also forms an important component of the 20-Point Programme. Action has been taken to expand the PDS and streamline its operations. The number of fair price shops has been increased from 2.39 lakhs in March, 1979 to 3.30 lakhs in September, 1986. About 78 per cent outlets are in the rural areas and more than one-fifth are run by cooperatives. During 1985-86, as against a target of opening 6025 fair price shops, 9044 fair price shops were opened. During 1986-87 a target of opening 6565 shops has been fixed. At present seven key essential commodities are distributed through PDS. These are wheat, rice, sugar, imported edible oils, kerosene, soft coke and controlled cloth. All these commodities are procured and supplied to the States by the Central Government for distribution through the network of fair price shops. The State governments are empowered to include in their PDS such other commodities as they consider important. Some of the State Governments like West Bengal, Orissa, Tamil Nadu, Himachal Pradesh etc. have included pulses and also some manufactured items like matches, torch cells etc. to supply to consumers through selected PD outlets of their respective areas. The Central Government has from time to time drawn the attention of the States to strengthen the PDS and to make it more effective for meeting the requirements of the population. The intention is to provide easy physical access to consumers both in rural and urban areas. The State Governments are also required to improve infrastructural facilities such as storage and transportation of essential commodities to the final link, i.e., the fair price shops particularly in the backward, remote and inaccessible areas. The State Governments have also been advised to arrange for proper monitoring at various levels viz. block, district and state headquarters in respect of supplies and distribution of essential commodities. They have also been advised to prepare advance estimates of their requirements of different commodities.

5.39 The procurement of foodgrains by public agencies has been rising from year to year. The higher procurement is dictated by the need to purchase supplies for meeting the requirement of public distribution system. Higher purchases are necessitated also by the Government's commitment to purchase all quantities of rice and wheat offered at procurement prices fixed for these cereals (for other commodities this support is provided at the level of minimum support prices). Thus total procurement of foodgrains has gone up to over 20 million tonnes in 1985-86 from 19.4 million tonnes in 1984-85 and 15.9 million tonnes in 1983-84. As will be seen from the Table 5.7 below, the procurement of rice reached a peak of 9.92 million tonnes in 1984-85 but declined thereafter. The procurement of wheat has continued to rise every year. The trends in the public distribution of foodgrains have been somewhat different. Distribution of foodgrains declined from 15.28 million tonnes in 1983-84 to 13.36 million tonnes in 1984-85 but rose sharply to 17.39 million tonnes in 1985-86. The decline in the public distribution in 1984-85 was due to the bumper crop of the previous year and the increase in 1985-86 reflects sub-normal production and liberalised releases of wheat. The total offtake from PDS during the first ten months of the current year is likely to remain at last year's level. As a result of these developments the level of food stocks continues to remain high. It may be recalled that on the recommendation of a Technical Group on Buffer Stock Policy, Government had decided to step up buffer stock of 10 million tonnes of foodgrains (5 million tonnes each of rice and wheat) over and above the full provision for operational stock for a period of 12 months which works out to 11.4 million tonnes (5.0 million tonnes of rice and 6.4 million tonnes of wheat). As on 1st July, 1986 the level of stocks was much higher at 28.2 million tonnes (9.3 million tonnes of rice and 18.9 million tonnes of wheat). As the cost of carrying excessive stocks is high and puts a heavy burden on the exchequer efforts have been made during the last couple of years to bring down the level of total stocks to recommended levels. The steps taken in this direction include open market sales of wheat by FCI, increasing allocation of foodgrains under Rural Works Programme for poverty alleviation programmes, exports of wheat if possible etc. Additional allocations of rice were made to several States particularly those which were affected by droughts and floods. As a combined result of these measures the stocks of foodgrains as on December, 1986 have come down from the level in December, 1985.

5.40 Due to sharp decline in domestic production Government has made arrangements for import of sugar on a large scale during 1985-86 so as to maintain domestic availability, particularly the supplies through the PDS. Total imports in 1985-86 (sugar year) were increased to 16.26 lakh tonnes from 12.17 lakh tonnes in 1984-85. Thus releases of sugar (both levy and free-sale) amounted to 85.46 lakh tonnes in 1985-86 against 81.96 lakh tonnes in 1984-85. During the current financial year upto February, 1987 a quantity of 83.47 lakh tonnes was released. It was 5.9 per cent higher over the quantities released during the last year.

5.41 Consequent to the increase in the procurement prices of rice, the issue price of rice being sold through the fair price shops was increased by Rs. 8 per quintal (or 8 paise per kg.) for all the three varieties with effect from October 1, 1986. The revised rates were fixed at Rs. 239, Rs. 251 and Rs. 266 per quintal respectively for common, fine and superfine varieties. The central issue price of rice for distribution in the integrated tribal development programme areas and tribal states was kept unchanged at Rs. 160 per quintal for common variety, Rs. 170 per quintal for the fine variety and Rs. 185 per quintal for the superfine variety. The issue price of wheat which was raised to Rs. 190 per quintal with effect from February, 1986 was kept unchanged at that level. However, the issue price for supply to roller flour mills was increased from Rs. 190 per quintal to Rs. 220 per quintal with effect from 1st April, 1986. This was, however, reduced subsequently to Rs. 205 per quintal with effect from 16th July, 1986.

5.42 The issue price of levy sugar supplied through the public distribution system was raised by 5 paise per kg. to Rs. 4.85 per kg. with effect from 15th December, 1986. This increase was consequent upon the increase in the statutory minimum price of sugarcane.

5.43 The allocation of imported oils to the State Governments etc., is made by the Centre on the monthly basis keeping into account the demand and supply position including the requirements for the festival seasons. As the prices of edible oils remained under pressure during the year, the supply of imported edible oils for PDS was kept at a high level throughout the year (Table 5.8). However, in view of the out-go of foreign exchange on imports of edible oils the allocation of imported edible oils for the production of vanaspati was reduced. The supply of imported edible oils at the concessional price was reduced from 60 per cent to 30 per cent in November, 1986 and further to 10 per cent from December, 1986. However, keeping in view the sharp increase in prices of edible oils in recent months, Government has decided to restore the allocation to 30 per cent for February and to raise it further to 40 per cent for March and April 1987. Imports of edible oils to maintain the increased allocation will be arranged as necessary.

FISCAL POLICY AND GOVERNMENT BUDGET

The year 1986-87 witnessed far-reaching reforms in fiscal policy, which carried forward the process initiated in the previous year. Steps were taken to implement most of the key proposals in the Long Term Fiscal Policy (LTFP). The principal objectives guiding the reforms have been to simplify the tax structure, establish a regime of reasonable tax rates combined with better administration and enforcement to improve compliance and raise revenues, foster a stable and predictable tax policy environment, usher in a more open approach to budget making and make the tax structure more conducive to growth and equity.

6.2 Highlights of the fiscal policy initiatives undertaken during the year include an overhaul of the excise tax structure through the introduction of modified value added tax (MODVAT), the launching of a simpler and more growth-oriented scheme of excise duty concessions for small scale units, the implementation of revised classifications and nomenclatures for the excise and customs tariffs, simplification and rationalization of taxation provisions relating to gifts and capital gains, introduction of the new Investment Deposit Account Scheme with a view to replace the existing scheme of Investment Allowance, simplification of depreciation provisions under Income Tax, the enhancement of income tax concessions to exporters, a revamping of the Duty Drawback Scheme for exports, the publication of a Discussion Paper on "Simplification and Rationalisation of Direct Tax Laws" to elicit public opinion on the matter, the establishment of the new Customs and Excise Revenues Appellate Tribunal, systematic steps to curb tax evasion including, for example, the empowering of Government with a pre-emptive right to purchase properties above a certain value, the introduction of a series of new financial instruments to help mobilize resources for the public sector and measures to improve control over expenditures.

6.3 The Centre's revenues from major taxes, which increased by over 22 per cent in 1985-86 (RE), compared to collections in 1984-85, showed a further increase of around 17 per cent in April—December 1986, according to provisional data. Of particular interest is the buoyancy in direct tax collections, which increased by about 23 per cent in 1985-86 (RE). Income and Corporation taxes (excluding from the Oil Sector) are estimated to have increased by a further 26 per cent in April—December 1986. The rapid increase in tax revenues after 1984-85 tends to confirm the soundness of the Government's approach.

6.4 To maintain the momentum of development, the 1986 Budget stepped up the outlay for the Central Plan. As a result, for the first time, 40 per cent of the five-year target for Central Plan expenditure would be financed, in real terms, in the first two years of a Five-Year Plan. Moreover, in the allocation of resources the Budget gave special emphasis to anti-poverty programmes for improving the social and economic services of special interest to the poor and to key infrastructure sectors such as railways and power.

6.5 Despite the enviable record in raising revenues, the Government's resource position continued to be under heavy pressure because of the rapid increase in expenditure commitments, especially on non-Plan account. The rapid growth in non-Plan expenditure has meant that the Centre's Budget on revenue account has been in deficit throughout this decade and this deficit has increased steadily in the past five years. By 1985-86 (RE) the deficit on revenue account had risen to about 2.4 per cent of GDP. As a result, the Government has had to rely increasingly on borrowed funds to meet its expenditure commitments, and this, in turn, has led to a growing bill for interest payments. In 1985-86 (RE) defence, interest payments and major subsidies, accounted for 67 per cent of the Centre's total non-Plan expenditures. In 1986-87 (BE) the proportion rose to 70 per cent. The problem of growing claims on the Government's resources was compounded during the year by the measures taken to implement the Pay Commission's recommendations.

6.6 Recognizing the gravity of the expenditure problem, the Government undertook a number of measures during the course of the year to strengthen control over expenditure. A system of zero-base budgeting was initiated in the course of the formulation of the budgets of all Central Government departments for 1987-88. A system of quarterly budgeting has also been initiated from the current year with a view to identifying projects where funds are lying idle and diverting them to well-implemented projects where funds are most needed. Following the recommendations of the Chakravarty Committee on the Working of the Monetary System, a system of monetary targeting has been introduced, on an experimental basis, in consultation with the Reserve Bank of India. Careful scrutiny and control of expenditure will command the highest priority in the years ahead, if inflationary pressures are to be kept in check. The underlying approach to expenditure control must continue to emphasize the need to prioritise expenditures carefully.

6.7 The Government's resource position has also been exacerbated by the shortfalls in surplus generation by public sector undertakings compared with Plan targets. The LTFP had emphasized the crucial role of public enterprises in augmenting public savings in the Seventh Plan period. The nation has invested nearly Rs. 50,000 crores in public enterprises at the Centre. To maintain the momentum of investment and growth and to ensure that the Seventh Plan is funded in a non-inflationary manner, it is vital to increase the efficiency of and surplus generation by these undertakings. It is particularly important to ensure that the increase in surpluses comes from improvements in productivity and reduction of real costs. To achieve this goal the Government has embarked on a programme for setting specific targets for generation of internal resources of public sector undertakings and reduction of their unit cost of production.

Budgetary Developments in 1985-86

6.8 The combined budgetary deficit of the Central and State Governments and Union Territories during 1985-86 amounted to Rs. 3,643 crores (RE) which compared with the actual deficit of Rs. 5,105 crores in 1984-85 (Table 6.1) constituted 1.5 per cent of gross domestic product (GDP) at current market prices. This was mainly the result of buoyancy witnessed in tax revenues and domestic resource mobilisation efforts, particularly in the collections from small savings.

6.9 The combined developmental expenditure of the Centre, States and Union Territories increased by 13.0 per cent in 1985-86 (RE), but the increase in non-developmental expenditure was rather sharp (23.8 per cent) on account of a substantial rise in interest payments (25.1 per cent) and food subsidy (50 per cent). Their aggregate expenditure was thus 16.7 per cent higher in 1985-86 (RE) than in the preceding year. Against this growth in expenditure, the increase in their current revenues, particularly tax revenues was significantly higher at nearly 20 per cent. Non-tax revenues, inclusive of the internal resources of the non-departmental undertakings, also rose by a little over 18 per cent. The overall tax-GDP ratio which had reached the level of 16.7 per cent by the end of the Sixth Plan period and was budgeted at 16.5 per cent for 1985-86, the first year of the Seventh Plan, actually turned out to be 17.6 per cent in the revised estimates of that year. In relation to the Seventh Plan target of 18.3 per cent of GDP to be achieved by 1989-90, this performance on the tax front appears quite satisfactory.

6.10 The resource gap, as represented by the difference in total expenditure and current revenues of the Centre, States and Union Territories which had somewhat widened from Rs. 25,727 crores (12.0 per cent of GDP) in 1984-85 to Rs. 28,816 crores (11.8 per cent of GDP) in 1985-86 (RE), was financed to the extent of 79 per cent from domestic capital receipts and 8.4 per cent from external assistance. Under domestic capital receipts, small savings recorded a substantial increase of 31.5 per cent, from Rs. 3,650 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 4,800 crores in 1985-86 (RE).

6.11 Despite record tax collections and substantial increase in collections from small savings, the Central Government's budgetary deficit widened from Rs. 3,745 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 4,490 crores in 1985-86 (RE). The main factor responsible for this outcome was a sharp step-up in net transfer of resources by the Central Government to State and Union Territory Governments, from Rs. 14,720 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 20,634 crores in 1985-86 (RE)—an increase of 40 per cent. (The increase works out to 51 per cent if account is taken of the medium-term loan of Rs. 1,628 crores given to them for clearance of their overdrafts with the Reserve Bank of India). While a significant part of the increase in these transfers was due to the large devolution on account of the implementation of the recommendations of the Eighth Finance Commission as also larger share in small savings collections, the step-up in the Central assistance for State and Union Territory Plans was equally large (42.3 per cent), from Rs. 5,107 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 7,265 crores in 1985-86 (RE).

6.12 In this context, it is worth noting that compared even with the 1985-86 (BE), the net transfer of resources to the State and Union Territory Governments had exceeded by as much as Rs. 2,684 crores in 1985-86 (RE). Outgo on account of subsidies was also larger (Rs. 5,200 crores) than provided for in the Budget Estimates for 1985-86 (Rs. 4,188 crores). While provision for food subsidy had to be raised from Rs. 1,100 crores to Rs. 1,650 crores, the increase in the subsidy on indigenous fertilizers was also substantial from Rs. 1,200 crores to Rs. 1,600 crores. The budgetary support for Central Plan was also raised from Rs. 11,747 crores in 1985-86 (BE) to Rs. 13,231 crores. Thus, the aggregate expenditure of the Central Government (including the internal and extra-budgetary resources of their enterprises) went up by 23.7 per cent in 1985-86 (RE) to Rs. 61,748 crores from Rs. 49,915 crores in 1984-85. (Compared with the budget estimates, the increase at the revised estimate stage was 9.6 per cent).

6.13 The Centre's revenue account, which used to be in surplus, turned into a deficit in 1979-80 following a larger devolution of resources by the Seventh Finance Commission, particularly the doubling of the States' share in Union excise duties from 20 per cent to 40 per cent. As a proportion of GDP at current market prices, the Centre's current account surplus was 0.7 per cent, on an average, in the five-year period preceding 1979-80, but in 1979-80, it became a negative 0.6 per cent. Ever since this gap has been widening, except in 1981-82 when it had shrunk to 0.2 per cent. By 1985-86 (RE) the Centre's revenue account deficit has grown to 2.4 per cent of GDP, and it appears that in the current year also, the extent of deficit will be around the 1985-86 level (Table 6.2).

6.14 The deterioration in the Centre's revenue account in the past few years can be traced to near stagnancy in the Centre's current receipts, both tax and non-tax, around 11-12 per cent of GDP, whereas the current expenditure of the Centre has increased from about 11 per cent in late seventies and early eighties to about 14.4 per cent by 1985-86 (RE). Among the major items of expenditure, the growth in interest payments has been the maximum, from 1.7 per cent of GDP in mid-seventies to a little over 3 per cent currently. Growth in grants to States and Union Territories has equally been phenomenal, from an average of about 2.0 per cent of GDP during 1975-76 to 1977-78 to 3.0 per cent in 1985-86 (RE). Defence expenditure, on the other hand, has hovered around 3 per cent of GDP throughout the decade ending 1985-86. However, subsidies have grown relative to GDP from an average of 1.3 per cent until 1983-84 to about 2 per cent in 1985-86 (RE). Among the major subsidies, the fastest growth has been in the case of fertiliser subsidy.

6.15 The financial position of the State Governments and Union Territories recorded a remarkable improvement in 1985-86. In sharp contrast to a deficit of Rs. 1,360 crores recorded in 1984-85, they generated a surplus of Rs. 847 crores in the revised estimates of 1985-86. (The actuals for 1985-86 indicate that the surplus in their budgets was as high as Rs. 1,776 crores). As stated earlier, this satisfactory outcome was largely on account of the substantial increase in the net transfer of resources from the Central Government. The performance of the State and Union Territory Governments in raising revenue from their own tax efforts was also satisfactory, rising by 16.3 per cent to Rs. 14,359 crores in 1985-86 (RE) over the level reached in the previous year. Thus, the increase in their total resources (including Central transfers) was as high as 22.9 per cent (22.1 per cent in current revenues and 23.9 per cent in capital receipts), whereas the increase in expenditure was 15.6 per cent.

Central Government Budgetary and Fiscal Developments—1986-87

The 1986-87 Budget

6.16 As noted in last year's Economic Survey, the Long Term Fiscal Policy (LTFP) indicated the direction of change in the tax policy and made a number of proposals for reform of the tax system to make it a more effective instrument for achieving the basic objectives of the Seventh Plan. The Budget for 1986-87 implemented many of the important elements of LTFP. Apart from carrying forward the process of simplification and rationalisation of direct tax laws and strengthening further measures for curbing tax evasion, the Budget effected a major reform in the indirect tax system. Far reaching reforms of excise taxation were carried out, including the introduction of MODVAT (Modified Value Added Tax), the simplification of excise rate structure and the introduction of a simpler and more growth-oriented scheme of excise duty concessions for small scale units. The Budget also carried further the move towards placing greater reliance on tariffs for control of imports and for rationalising the customs structure in respect of capital goods, components and raw-materials. The revised nomenclatures for Excise and Customs Tariffs based on harmonised system of classification was brought into force from February 28, 1986.

6.17 The Budget accorded high priority to stepping up the outlay for the Annual Plan for 1986-87. As a result, for the first time, 40 per cent of the Five Year Central Plan target expenditure in real terms, would be financed in the first two years of a Five Year Plan. Moreover, in the allocation of resources, the Budget gave special emphasis to anti-poverty programmes, improving the social and economic services of special interest to the poor and strengthening the infrastructural facilities necessary for securing rapid economic growth. A massive increase of 65 per cent was made in the provisions for major anti-poverty programmes such as Integrated Rural Development Programme, National Rural Employment Programme, Rural Landless Employment Guarantee Scheme. Keeping in view the key role of the agricultural sector for the economic growth and poverty alleviation, outlays for agriculture, rural development and irrigation were increased by nearly 30 per cent. Similarly to improve the development of skills and human resources, the Plan provision for education was stepped up by nearly 60 per cent. Among the infrastructural sectors, the allocation for Railways was hiked by 61 per cent and that for power by 23 per cent.

6.18 The details of important fiscal measures adopted in the Budget for 1986-87 and the Finance Act, 1986 are given in the following paragraphs :

Direct Taxes

6.19 In pursuance of the Long Term Fiscal Policy (LTFP), several measures of reform in the direct tax system were undertaken with a view to promote voluntary tax compliance and discourage tax evasion. The provisions relating to taxation of capital gains and gift tax were simplified and rationalised. In regard to taxation of capital gains, the limit for initial deduction was raised from Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 10,000 and the date for determining the cost of assets advanced from January 1, 1964 to April 1, 1974. The rate structure was also simplified by prescribing a uniform rate of deduction of 50 per cent in case of long term capital gains from land and buildings and 60 per cent in respect of other assets. Bonds issued by the Industrial Development Bank of India (IDBI) and by other notified public agencies were proposed to be added to the list of investments qualifying for exemption from capital gains. The period for purchase of a residential house in case where capital gains arise from sale of an old house, was raised from one year to two years, to be eligible for the benefit of exemption from capital gains tax.

6.20 With regard to gift tax the basic exemption limit was substantially increased i.e from Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 20,000. Moreover, the tax henceforth is to be levied at a flat rate of 30 per cent of the value of taxable gifts. The provisions relating to aggregation of gifts were deleted. However, as a measure of rationalisation certain exemptions were withdrawn.

6.21 In line with the LTFP, significant reforms were also carried out in the area of corporate taxation which aimed at increasing the generation of internal resources, while simultaneously providing stimulus to industrial investment, growth and modernisation. A new Investment Deposit Account Scheme or funding scheme was introduced, with a view to replacing the existing Investment Allowance Scheme. Under the new scheme, assessees would be allowed a deduction to the extent of 20 per cent of the profits of eligible business or profession if these are deposited with the Industrial Development Bank of India (IDBI). The scope of the new scheme was made much wider than that of the Investment Allowance Scheme, to include professionals as well as leasing companies, other than those which leased out machinery to the industrial undertakings engaged in manufacture or production of articles listed in Eleventh Schedule. The amount deposited with the IDBI can be utilised for the purchase of new ship, aircraft, machinery or plant for the purpose of business or profession or even purchase of a new computer or for repayment of the principal amount of term loans from certain financial institutions and scheduled banks contracted after March 31, 1986. The deduction from profits would also be admissible if the specified items are acquired out of income from eligible business or profession. The tax concession was also extended to tea industry.

6.22 As indicated in the LTFP, the provisions for the Income Tax Act relating to depreciation allowance were also considerably simplified and rationalised. A system of allowing depreciation in respect of block of assets in place of individual assets will be introduced and the rate structure is proposed to be rationalised. This would allow more than 80 per cent of the cost of plant and machinery to be written off in a period of four years or less and would thus not only make replacement easier but also greatly help the process of modernisation. Plant and machinery used as anti-pollution devices and those using indigenous know-how will be placed in a block carrying higher rate of 50 per cent because of the priority attached to these areas. Buildings meant for low paid employees of industrial undertakings will be entitled to a higher rate of depreciation i.e. 20 per cent. It was, however, clarified that for purposes of depreciation or investment allowance, capitalisation of interest paid or payable is not allowable after the asset is put into use.

6.23. As promised in the LTFP, the surcharge on corporate tax was discontinued. However, taking into account revenue considerations, the abolition of the surtax was postponed by one year. Further, as a measure of rationalisation, the rate of tax on royalties and fees for technical services received by a foreign company from an Indian concern or from Government has been fixed at a uniform rate of 30 per cent both in the case of lump-sump payments as well as royalty payments and fees. The ceiling of investment in plant and machinery for the small scale sector was raised from Rs. 20 lakhs to Rs. 35 lakhs to bring it in line with the limit earlier raised by the Department of Industrial Development and thus enlarged the eligibility for availament of relevant benefits under the Income Tax Act for small undertakings.

6.24 LTFP had proposed for the creation of a Venture Capital Fund to promote indigenous technology which would be administered by the Industrial Development Bank of India and funded through a small 5 per cent 'R & D' levy on all payments made for purchase of technology from abroad including royalty payments, lump-sum payments and payments for designs and drawings. The Budget announced that the proposal would be given effect to through introduction of a separate Bill which has since been enacted.

6.25 Keeping in view the developments on the balance of payments front and the need to give further thrust to the export efforts, certain incentives for exports were announced in the course of the Budget Session. The deduction in respect of profits from exports in computing the taxable income (Section 80 HHC) has been expanded to the extent of 4 per cent of net foreign exchange realisation plus 50 per cent of the remaining net profits from exports. While the Ministry of Commerce has taken several measures to provide fillip to project exports, under the Income Tax Act also, the deduction admissible in case of profits from project exports (under Section 80 HHB) has been doubled to 50 per cent. A greater flexibility has been provided to units set up in the Free Trade Zones for availing the benefit of tax holiday. They would now be able to avail of tax holiday for five consecutive years falling within a period of eight years from the year in which the industrial undertaking begins to manufacture or produce. Stamp duty in respect of bills of exchange or promissory notes drawn by exporter borrowers for securing finance from Eximbank has been substantially reduced.

6.26 The Budget also included several proposals to provide relief to the common man and greater social security to the poor. For the benefit of salaried persons, the standard deduction was raised from 25 per cent to 30 per cent of the salary income and the limit raised from Rs. 6,000 to Rs. 10,000. The exemption limit in respect of house rent allowance in the case of employees was raised and the limit of deduction for rent paid (under Section 80 GG) was also increased in respect of other assessees. Income-tax liability on notional income arising from self-occupied property (limited to one such property) was withdrawn. In the case of such properties acquired with the help of borrowed funds a deduction in respect of interest payable upto a maximum of Rs. 5,000 per annum was allowed. The self-employed persons and the salaried persons who do not get the benefit of medical expenses from the employers, have been allowed a deduction in computing total income in respect of amounts spent upto a specified limit to effect or keep in force an insurance on the health of the assessee or members of his family. Similar deduction has also been allowed to an employer in respect of premium paid on the health of the employee or members of his family.

6.27 To give further impetus to poverty alleviation, the Budget provided for two innovative schemes Under the first scheme which has since been launched, loans would be provided to such people as rikshaw-pullers, cobblers, washermen, hawkers and sweepers, through the banking system with a subsidy component, for the purchase of equipment and working capital. The Budget also proposed introduction of another new scheme for accident insurance, based on Group Insurance through workers unions, for the benefit of municipal workers and railway porters. Further, the scope of Personal Accident Insurance Scheme for the poor launched in the previous year was proposed to be extended to another 100 districts or so.

6.28 The basic exemption limit in regard to receipts of casual or non-recurring nature was increased substantially i.e. from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 5,000. However, as a part of simplification, a flat rate of tax was made applicable to casual or non-recurring nature of income such as in case of winnings from lotteries, cross-word puzzles, horse-races or card games etc.

6.29 To promote savings as well as to provide relief to the salaried persons and the self-employed, the rates of interest on General Provident Fund, Public Provident Fund as also the interest on Provident Fund accretions invested in Special Deposits with the Government in case of Employees Provident Fund and the like, were enhanced. In order to encourage participation of small investors in the capital market, the Budget proposed establishment of a Mutual Fund under UTI. The Fund has since been established and Mastershares which carry similar benefits as available to the units of UTI, have been issued.

6.30 Several measures including moderation in tax rates and simplification and rationalisation of tax laws have been undertaken since last year to encourage voluntary tax compliance. The other arm of the strategy to curb tax evasion and generation of black money has been to effectively enforce the tax laws and raise the cost of tax evasion. With this end in view a major step was undertaken by inserting a new chapter in the Income Tax Act which empowers the Government with a pre-emptive right to purchase immovable properties of a value exceeding Rs. 5 lakhs which are offered for sale in the market at the price agreed to by the transferor. To begin with, the provisions were proposed to be enforced in regard to transactions of value of Rs. 10 lakhs and above, and in metropolitan cities of Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras. A notification to this effect has since been issued and initial purchases of property under this provision have been carried out by the Government from December 1986. Further, in order to make the system of Survey more effective, a new Section 133-B was inserted. Under this, the Income Tax authorities have been permitted to enter any business premises for obtaining such information as may be prescribed. Steps are also being taken to strengthen the survey, investigation and prosecution machinery of the Income Tax Department.

Indirect Taxes

6.31 The Budget brought about a sweeping overhaul in the system of excise taxation. The desirability of minimizing the duty incidence on inputs in production, has been appreciated for some years. For example, the Indirect Taxation Enquiry Committee (Jha Committee) had in 1978 recommended adoption of value added tax system at the manufacturing stage (MANVAT). However, it was only in the Budget for 1986-87 that a wide-ranging and systematic effort to minimise the incidence of taxation on inputs was undertaken, through the introduction of Modified Value Added Tax System (MODVAT). Under the scheme, the facility of proforma credit in respect of excise duty as well as the additional (countervailing) duty of customs, paid on inputs has been made available to the manufacturers. In addition, set off has also been allowed for packaging materials, consumables and paints. The system should have several benefits. It should reduce the distortions in the production structure, mitigate the cascading effect of taxes on inputs, make the incidence of indirect taxation more transparent and help in reducing costs and prices. To begin with, the scheme covered 37 specified chapters of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985, which include products of chemicals and allied industries, paints and packaging materials, machinery and mechanical appliances, motor-vehicles, plastics, glass, rubber products, base metals and several other manufactured articles. Subsequently the MODVAT scheme was extended to the chapter covering fertilizers. The rates of duty on final products were adjusted in the light of the facility of MODVAT.

6.32 As proposed in the LTFP, the Budget attempted to simplify and rationalise the excise duty structure. Special excise duty was removed from 100 items of the Excise Tariff in 1985-86. The same was removed in the case of the remaining items in the 1986-87 Budget. It also proposed the withdrawal of cess in case of cotton, copra and vegetable oils.

6.33 Further, keeping in view the vital importance of the small scale industries in generating employment opportunities, encouraging decentralisation of industries and exports, a new growth-oriented excise concession scheme for small scale producers was introduced. The new scheme was made applicable to small units producing all types of exciseable goods, with a few exceptions like T. V. sets, refrigerating and air-conditioning appliances and cosmetics. The scheme has been designed to encourage growth and modernization of small scale units. Though initially in the Budget the exemption limit for duty-free clearances had been put at Rs. 7.5 lakhs, the limit was later liberalised and raised to Rs. 15 lakhs for all small scale units. For units producing more than one article falling under different Tariff headings the exemption limit was fixed at Rs. 30 lakhs. As against the previous slab system, the new scheme provides for a concessional rate of duty at a flat rate of 10 percentage points below the normal duty payable (subject to a minimum excise duty of 5 per cent) in respect of clearances in excess of Rs. 15 lakhs and upto Rs. 75 lakhs, beyond which normal duty would apply. The eligibility limit of clearances for availing the concession was raised from Rs. 75 lakhs to Rs. 1.5 crores. Further, a major concession was provided under MODVAT, according to which the proforma credit available on inputs purchased from small scale units would be calculated on the basis of normal duty rates, even when the small units would have paid only concessional duty.

6.34 Several adjustments in the excise and customs duty were made to simplify and rationalise the structure and to boost domestic production with special emphasis on promoting exports and import substitution.

6.35 To encourage the indigenous production of capital goods and to strengthen self-reliance, the differential in the customs duty between the final products and the components for capital goods was widened. While the basic customs duty on general machinery was raised by 10 percentage points, the import duty on components was reduced by 5 percentage points. The rate of customs duty on general project imports was also increased by 10 percentage points. Further, as a part of the policy to shift from quantitative import restrictions to tariffs, customs duties were raised in respect of a number of machine tools and the items were placed on OGL. On the other hand, to reduce the costs of modernization, import duties were lowered on a wide range of machine tools and instruments not produced indigenously.

6.36 In order to encourage exports, the import duty on several items of machines and equipments for gem and jewellery as well as on specified machines used in production and packaging of marine products, was reduced. The import duty on wattle bark and leather shaving-machine blades was reduced in the case of leather industry. To assist garment exports, the general drawback rate was raised to 10 per cent. The import duty on raw wool was halved from 40 per cent to 20 per cent. On the other hand, the import duty on wool-waste and woollen rags was doubled to 20 per cent. Export duties were abolished in case of unmanufactured tobacco and excise duty withdrawn in respect of branded cigars, cheroots, and cigarilloes in view of their export potential.

6.37 Recognising the imperative need to achieve greater self-reliance in respect of edible oils, a package of measures was adopted in the Budget to stimulate their domestic production. Excise duty relief was provided based on each additional percentage point of use of minor oils and cotton-seed oil, above specified levels, by the vanaspati units. Similarly the extent of relief was increased and certain additional minor oils made eligible for excise rebate for their use in soap. Excise duty on solvents as well as on certain minor inedible technical oils was withdrawn to encourage their greater use. It was further announced that excise or customs duty would be exempted on such of the items of plant and machinery which may be identified by the Department of Civil Supplies for improving quality and increasing production of solvent extracted oils or oil-meals. However, as a revenue measure excise duty on costly refined vegetable oils, (that is, other than those from soyabean, rice-bran, cotton seed and sun-flower) was raised.

6.38 In accordance with the new textile policy's aim of encouraging production of blended fabrics and making these available at reasonable prices, blended polyester cotton and polyester viscose yarn with certain polyester content supplied to specified handloom organisations were exempted from excise duty. Duty was also waived on processing of specified blended fabrics by specified handloom development organisations. Further, to ensure that items reserved for handloom sector are not encroached upon by other sectors, the handloom cess was raised from 1.9 paise per sq. metre to 2.5 paise per sq. metre to be utilised for setting up the necessary enforcement machinery. On the other hand, the excise duty relief earlier given on blended yarn was reduced by nearly half since the benefit of the relief had not been passed on by their producers to the consumers. The Additional Excise Duty (AED) in lieu of sales tax was increased by Rs. 2.50 per sq. metre on cotton and man-made fabrics of value exceeding Rs. 50 per sq. metre.

6.39 Keeping in view the importance of modernisation in textile industry, the concessional rate of customs duty of 25 per cent in respect of specified textile machines was continued for one more year. Moreover, to encourage domestic production of certain sophisticated textile machines, customs duty at concessional rate of 25 per cent ad valorem was provided in respect of components of such machines. To protect the jute bag industry, excise duty at the rate of Rs. 10 per kg. was levied in case of synthetic tapes where input duty relief would be available and at the rate of Rs. 4 per kg. in the case of other tapes.

6.40 The exemption scheme for small paper mills was rationalised and liberalised. In the new scheme paper mills whose clearances did not exceed 24,000 tonnes in the previous financial year and which do not have a bamboo or wood pulp plant, were required to pay duty at the rate of Rs. 300, Rs. 650, Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 1,500 per metric tonne for the successive slabs respectively. For paper mills with clearances exceeding 24,000 metric tonnes or larger paper mills having bamboo or wood pulp plant, the rate of duty was fixed at 10 per cent ad valorem plus Rs. 850 per metric tonne. However, fine varieties of paper were excluded from the concessional rates.

6.41 The structure of excise duty in case of major thermo-plastics viz. Low Density Polyethylene High Density Polyethylene and Polypropylene was simplified and a uniform rate of 30 per cent was levied and customs duty in their case was suitably increased. Similarly a uniform rate of 35 per cent was provided in respect of certain items of plastic materials and brought under general scheme of small scale exemptions. In the case of drug industry, certain additional life saving formulations were exempted from excise duty and specified drug intermediates exempted from additional duty of customs. Customs duty was also abolished on additional five medical equipments of consumable nature and reduced in case of a number of sophisticated medical equipments. In view of the importance of ship breaking industry as a source of scrap for steel industry, the import duty on ships imported for breaking up was fixed on a specific rate basis and the excise duty on materials obtained by breaking up such ships was waived. Customs duties were adjusted in case of a few other commodities such as caustic soda, synthetic organic dye-stuffs and certain other dyes, PVC resins and a few items of printing equipments.

6.42 Excise duty relief was provided in case of several commodities, which, it is expected, would contribute to their increased production. Duty was withdrawn in case of commodities such as wood pulp, inorganic chemicals used in the manufacture of fertilizers, clinkers used in the manufacture of cement subject to observance of prescribed procedure. The excise duty was also abolished on some common items like brushes, umbrellas, combs etc.

6.43 Certain measures were taken with a view to mobilise additional resources. Auxilliary duties of customs were restructured and rationalised. The existing 11 slabs were reduced to only three slabs viz. nil, 25 per cent and 40 per cent. This measure was expected to yield additional revenue of Rs. 190 crores. However, certain "GATT items" were exempted from auxilliary duty to bring the total rate within the GATT binding level. Specific rate of auxilliary duty of customs on crude petroleum was kept unchanged. Excise duties in case of commercial vehicles, jeeps and cars were adjusted. Specific Excise duty was increased from Rs. 900 to Rs. 1500, in respect of colour T.V. sets of screen size exceeding 36 cms. and from Rs. 600 to Rs. 1000 for colour T.V. sets not exceeding 36 cms. Additional duty of customs was levied on T.V. sets imported as baggage. The duty on airconditioners was increased and fixed on specific rate basis. A uniform duty of 60 per cent ad valorem was levied on all parts and accessories of refrigerating and air-conditioning machinery except compressors for air-conditioners, which were subjected to a specific rate of duty.

6.44 In order to augment resources for the public sector undertakings and keeping in view the potential of the capital market the Budget proposed for issue of a new series of public sector bonds with tax-free return and exempt from wealth tax.

6.45 Recognising the sweeping nature of reforms undertaken with the introduction of new Excise Tariff, the MODVAT scheme and a universal scheme of excise concession for small scale units, the Finance Minister held a series of open house meetings, after the presentation of the Budget, with industry and trade to sort out the problems arising from the operation of the new schemes. As a follow up of the discussions on the Budget in the Parliament and these meetings, several administrative procedures were simplified and certain modifications made in the excise concession scheme for small units and the MODVAT scheme. Notably, the procedures in regard to obtaining of excise licences, maintenance of records relating to production, storage, clearances and raw material accounts in respect of small units were considerably simplified. Small units were allowed the facility of self-assessment procedure for clearances upto Rs. 50 lakhs.

6.46 With a view to provide relief to the small scale units and to restore the duty concessions available under the earlier Tariff, a number of exemptions were given for goods manufactured without the aid of power. Exemption on inputs for captive consumption was also extended to inputs covered under MODVAT when used within the factory in the manufacture of final products on which excise duty is payable. In addition, the set off was made available in certain cases where final product is not covered under MODVAT. Gas mantles for kerosene pressure lanterns, hurricane lanterns, non-electric iron/brass presses, sawn timber, wood wool and flour, railway and tramways wood sleepers, certain articles of wood, clothing accessories, bulk drugs and various other articles were exempted from excise duty. Similarly duty was abolished in case of synthetic woven bags, HSDO used for deep fishing vessels, unprocessed cotton woven belting. Duty was withdrawn in case of woollen fabric not containing worsted yarn and not exceeding Rs. 40 per sq. metre including shoddy woollen fabrics. It was decided that chassis value would be excluded from computation of assessable value for charging excise duty. Soap-stone used in manufacture of paper/paper board, carded wool used in manufacture of wool-tops/yarn were exempted from duty. Duty was reduced in the case of electric wires and cables.

6.47 The additional resource mobilisation measures introduced in the 1986-87 Central and Railway Budgets were expected to yield Rs. 476 crores, of which Rs. 400 crores were to be raised through fresh taxation and Rs. 76 crores by way of revision in Railway fares. The Centre's share in additional taxation was Rs. 392 crores and of the States, Rs. 8 crores. The details are shown in Table 6.3.

1 After taking into account changes announced during the Budget debate.

6.48 The Railways in their Budget for 1986-87 revised the fares for different categories of passengers. The fares of second class mail and express were raised by 7.5 per cent upto 250 kms., and by 5 per cent on distances beyond 250 kms., subject to a minimum increase of rupee one per ticket. The sleeper surcharge for second class was raised from Rs. 10 to Rs. 15 for journeys beyond 500 kms. The fares of air-conditioned chair car, first class, A. C. two-tier sleeper, A. C. first class and of all classes in Rajdhani Express trains were raised by 12.5 per cent. The surcharge on A.C. two-tier sleeper was raised by Rs. 5, Rs. 10, Rs. 15 and Rs. 20 for distances from 1 to 500 kms., 501 to 1000 kms., 1001 to 1500 kms., and 1501 kms. and beyond respectively. In order to enable young people to see different parts of the country and to strengthen in them the sense of national integration, a concession of 25 per cent in passenger fares in second class was given to them (age group of 13 to 33 years) for travelling in groups of a minimum of ten for distances over 1000 kms.

Revenue and Expenditure

6.49 The aggregate resources of the Central Government (including the internal and extra-budgetary resources of the public sector undertakings) were estimated to increase by 17.8 per cent from Rs. 53,004 crores in 1985-86 (BE) to Rs. 62,465 crores in 1986-87 (BE), and aggregate disbursements by 17.5 per cent, from Rs. 56,320 crores to Rs. 66,168 crores. The total tax revenue of the Centre (net of States' share) in the 1986-87 budget was estimated to show an increase of 17.7 per cent over the budget estimates of 1985-86, but the increase would be only 8.1 per cent over the revised estimates for 1985-86. The increase in non-tax revenue was also modest (10.2 per cent), but domestic capital receipts were projected to go up by as much as 22.4 per cent to Rs. 26,171 crores from the last year's budget estimate of Rs. 21,382 crores. Developmental expenditure at Rs. 39,755 crores (forming more than 60 per cent of the aggregate expenditure), was estimated to be higher by 18.1 per cent, while non-developmental expenditure was to go up by 16.5 per cent.

6.50 The Central Plan for 1986-87 envisages an outlay of Rs. 22,300 crores, representing an increase of 20.5 per cent over the last year's outlay of Rs. 18,500 crores (BE). Thus, the Central Plan outlay in the current year together with the revised estimates for 1985-86 (Rs. 20,094 crores), covered about 40 per cent of the Seventh Plan outlay in real terms at 1984-85 prices. This was significantly higher than the proportion achieved in the first two years of any previous five year Plan. In the sectoral distribution of outlays, priority has been accorded to programmes of poverty alleviation, development of human resources and infrastructural development. The allocation for the Department of Rural Development at Rs. 1,851 crores was nearly 50 per cent higher than the approved outlay of Rs. 1,239 crores in 1985-86 (BE). Whereas the Plan allocations for NREP were raised by as much as 93 per cent from Rs. 230 crores in 1985-86 (BE) to Rs. 443 crores in the current year, the step up in the case of RLEGP was also substantial (58 per cent), from Rs. 400 crores to Rs. 633 crores in the two years respectively. These two programmes were expected to generate employment of over 564 million man-days in the current year, as against the anticipated 462 million man-days in the preceding year.

6.51 Another area of major thrust in the Seventh Plan is the development of human resources, which includes education, sports, youth affairs, health, family welfare, women's welfare, environment, art, culture and broadcasting. An outlay of Rs. 1,733 crores has been provided for these programmes in the Central Plan for 1986-87, which was more than 40 per cent higher than the outlay of Rs. 1,236 crores in 1985-86 (BE). In the field of education, two new schemes were proposed : one was to set up Model Schools in every district of the country to provide education of high quality and excellence. The other was to start a National Open University for providing equal opportunities to the students in the remote and backward areas in the field of higher education.

6.52 In keeping with the emphasis laid in the Seventh Plan for creation of key infrastructure facilities in sectors like coal, power, railways, petroleum and surface transport, the Central Plan for the current year has allocated as much as Rs. 10,805 crores, which constitutes nearly 48 per cent of the total Central Plan outlay for 1986-87. In the context of the priorities assigned to various programmes in the annual Plan 1986-87, the implementation of 20-Point Programme was expected to gain further momentum. The outlay for this programme was stepped up by nearly Rs. 1,100 crores (or 22 per cent), from Rs. 4,900 crores in 1985-86 (BE) to Rs. 5,998 crores in 1986-87 (BE).

Savings and Capital Formation

6.53 The pressure on Central budget has been building up in recent years with the result that the savings which used to be a positive figure turned negative in 1984-85; this had further widened to Rs. 1,909 crores in 1985-86 (RE). For the current year, the estimate was that savings of the Central Government would still be negative at Rs. 2,099 crores. In contrast, the gross capital formation out of budgetary resources of the Central Government at Rs. 23,598 crores showed a modest increase of 5.7 per cent from Rs. 22,321 crores in 1985-86 (RE), thereby enhancing the financing requirement from Rs. 24,230 crores to Rs. 25,697 crores in these two years (Table 6.4). As in the past, the domestic receipts were to finance in the current year nearly three-fourths of the requirement, while the draft on the foreign savings would be 11.2 per cent. The remaining 14.4 per cent would be financed by taking recourse to budgetary deficit.

Finances of States and Union Territories : 1986-87

6.54 The budgets of the States and Union Territories for 1986-87 show an increase of 14 per cent in their aggregate expenditure from Rs. 39,964 crores in 1985-86 (BE) to Rs. 45,563 crores in 1986-87 (BE). Their current revenue at Rs. 35,552 crores was estimated to grow by 15.6 per cent over the budget estimates of the previous year (Rs. 30,756 crores). While the growth in their own taxes was budgeted at 15.4 per cent, their share in Central taxes was to go up by 18.7 per cent in 1986-87 (BE) over 1985-86 (BE). Non-tax revenues and the grants from the Centre were estimated to be higher by 20.6 per cent and 9.8 per cent respectively in the current year.

6.55 The gap between current revenues and total expenditure of the States and Union Territories was estimated at Rs. 10,011 crores in 1986-87 (BE) compared with Rs. 9,208 crores in 1985-86 (BE). Capital receipts (net) were budgeted to grow by 8.9 per cent to Rs. 9,684 crores. Thus, the combined budgetary deficit of the States and Union Territory Governments for 1986-87 was estimated at Rs. 327 crores at the time of the presentation of the Budgets to their legislatures.

Central and State Governments—Combined

6.56 The combined expenditure of the Centre, the States and the Union Territories was estimated to go up by 16.1 per cent from Rs. 80,326 crores in 1985-86 (BE) to Rs. 93,246 crores in 1986-87 (BE). Aggregate receipts were estimated in the 1986-87 Budgets at Rs. 89,216 crores, an increase of 16.3 per cent over Rs. 76,697 crores in 1985-86 (BE). While tax revenues were budgeted to increase by 17.7 per cent over 1985-86 (BE), the non-tax revenues (including internal resources of public sector undertakings for their plans) were estimated to grow by 10 per cent. The gap between total outlay and current revenues, estimated at Rs. 30,517 crores in 1986-87 (BE), was to widen by 16.9 per cent and was to be financed to the extent of 77.4 per cent through domestic capital receipts and 9.4 per cent through external receipts, leaving a balance of 13.2 per cent to be met through recourse to budgetary deficit.

Annual Plan : 1986-87

6.57 The aggregate outlay for the Annual Plan 1986-87 for the Centre, the States and the Union Territories was stepped up by 21.1 per cent to Rs. 39,052 crores (Table 6.5) from the approved outlay of Rs. 32,239 crores for 1985-86 (BE). The allocation for the Central Plan was Rs. 22,300 crores as against Rs. 18,500 crores in 1985-86 and that for the State and Union Territory Plans Rs. 16,752 crores as against Rs. 13,739 crores in the previous year, representing an increase of 20.5 per cent and 21.9 per cent respectively.

6.58 Domestic resources were expected to finance 80.8 per cent of the 1986-87 Plan outlay, and the net inflow from abroad was to contribute 9.8 per cent. The remaining 9.4 per cent was to be met through deficit financing. While the contribution of the balance from current revenues at 1984-85 rates of taxation was expected to remain modest at Rs. 682 crores, the public enterprises were required to contribute Rs. 5,905 crores to the Plan at the 1984-85 level of fares, freight rates, tariffs and product prices. Additional resource mobilisation measures taken by the Centre and the States in 1985-86 and those taken or proposed to be taken in 1986-87 were estimated to contribute Rs. 5,896 crores. The other sources of Plan financing in 1986-87 were to be: market borrowings (Rs. 7,101 crores), small savings (Rs. 5,300 crores), provident funds (Rs. 1,353 crores), term loans from financial institutions (Rs. 887 crores), issue of bonds by public enterprises (Rs. 1,191 crores) and miscellaneous capital receipts (Rs. 3,253 crores).

Measurement of Budgetary Deficit

6.59 In the 1986-87 Central Budget, it was announced that the Government had accepted, in principle, the recommendation of the Chakravarty Committee in regard to the measurement of budgetary deficit, which would now include changes in the entire Reserve Bank credit to the Government, including changes in Reserve Bank's holdings of long-dated securities. The modalities for effecting this change have already been worked out in consultation with the Reserve Bank, and would be implemented from the next year's Budget. Further, in order to bring about better coordination between fiscal and monetary policies, and make their overall management more scientific, it was decided to set overall monetary targets, and monitor them regularly; this is already being done in the current year on an experimental basis.

Post-Budget Developments

6.60 In the current year two supplementary demands for grants have so far been presented to Parliament in July and November, 1986. These involve additional gross expenditure of Rs. 4357 crores. Net of related receipts and recoveries, however, the additional outgo is estimated at Rs. 3,703 crores. Of this, a little more than one fourth will be on the Plan side (Rs. 1,044 crores) and the balance will be non-Plan expenditure. The substantial increase in expenditure is mainly accounted for by only a few broad categories: defence (Rs. 825 crores), loans to Food Corporation of India for carrying buffer stocks (Rs. 600 crores), payment of arrears of food subsidy to Food Corporation of India (Rs. 250 crores), assistance for export promotion (Rs. 125 crores), acquisition of Asiad property from D.D.A. (Rs. 81 crores), subsidy for cotton price support operations (Rs. 42 crores), payment of retrenchment compensation to Fertilizer Corporation of India, and Pyrites and Phosphates Ltd. (Rs. 36 crores), food aid to African countries (Rs. 25 crores), nationalisation of Swadeshi Group of Mills (Rs. 24 crores), and ways and means loans to Delhi Transport Corporation (Rs. 23 crores) for meeting its net working deficit. In addition, the supplementary demands for grants for non-Plan purposes include an amount of Rs. 600 crores mainly for implementing the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission and for payment of bonus. On the Plan side, which accounts for a total of Rs. 1,044 crores in the two supplementary demands, as much as Rs. 467 crores was required for investment in Gas Authority of India Ltd. mainly for the HBJ Pipe Line. Other major Plan heads for supplementaries include: transfers to State Governments for NREP and RLEGP (Rs. 128 crores), investment in and loans to Rashtriya Ispat Nigam for Vishakhapatnam Steel Plant (Rs. 79 crores), subsidy to new industries in selected backward areas (Rs. 70 crores), investment in Helicopter Corporation of India Ltd. (Rs. 53 crores), investment in Bharat Aluminium Co. (Rs. 51 crores), and for space programme (Rs. 44 crores).

6.61 The Railways presented a supplementary demand for grants of Rs. 590 crores and took measures to raise additional resources of Rs. 320 crores in the remaining four months of the current year. The Posts and Telecommunication Department also took measures to raise resources in order to meet mainly the additional expenditure arising out of the implementations of the Fourth Pay Commission's recommendations. These are discussed later in this Chapter.

6.62 Tax revenues continued to be buoyant in 1986-87. The provisional data indicates that Centre's collections from major taxes during the period April—December 1986 have been higher by as much as 17 per cent over the corresponding period in the previous year. This rate of growth has been nearly twice the increase anticipated in the Budget estimates for the full year 1986-87. The ratio of tax collections till December 1986 to B.E. 1986-87 has also been higher than that in the corresponding period last year. Thus the buoyancy in the tax collections witnessed in 1985-86 has continued during the current year as well. Especially noteworthy is the buoyancy in direct tax collections which increased by about 23 per cent in 1985-86 (RE). Collections from Income and Corporation taxes (excluding from the Oil Sector) showed a further increase of 26 per cent during April—December 1986 over the corresponding period of the previous year. It is expected that the total tax revenues in 1986-87 would exceed the Budget estimates.

6.63 Continued buoyancy in tax revenues for the second consecutive year tends to confirm the soundness of the basic approach underlying recent tax policy initiatives, namely that of making tax rates reasonable, simplifying assessment procedures and rigorously enforcing tax laws. Operations have continued to be undertaken against tax evaders and other economic offenders. This has yielded good results. The value of assets found/seized as a result of the searches conducted by the Income Tax Department during the period April, 1986—January, 1987 amounted to nearly Rs. 81 crores which was twice that in the corresponding period in the previous year. Similarly, the value of contraband goods seized under the Customs Act amounted to Rs. 157 crores during the period April—December, 1986 as against Rs. 148 crores in the previous year.

6.64 Keeping in view the large amounts of excise and customs collections blocked due to court cases, the Finance Minister on August 1, 1986 announced a scheme for compounding of offences and settlement of court cases relating to customs and excise duties, thereby giving an opportunity to tax payers to make a clean breast of past evasion of duties without prosecution. The concession was thus given with respect to prosecution and not the tax liability. The scheme was to apply to manufacturers or importers who had paid a lower amount of duty in respect of excise clearances or on import of cargo upto December 31, 1984 consequent to declaration of incorrect assessable value or wrong classification under the Tariff where the transactions have been fully reflected in the accounts and balance sheets, if any, of the assessee. It did not cover cases of suppression of production of exciseable goods or their clandestine removal. Nor did it cover cases of smuggling or evasion of duty either by misdeclaration of duty or wrong classification of goods or transactions not recorded in accounts and balance sheets.

6.65 The LTFP had observed about an enormous increase in litigation relating to excise cases and the consequent delay in revenue collections. It had proposed the establishment of an Appellate Tribunal under article 323B of the Constitution to deal speedily with all matters pertaining to customs and excise duties. Accordingly a Customs and Excise Revenues Appellate Tribunal Act 1986 has been passed. The Tribunal will deal with appeals arising from disputes relating to the rates of duties arising out of the Customs and Excise Tariff schedules which were brought into force on 28th February, 1986 and in respect of valuation disputes which arose on or after the same date. With the establishment of the Tribunal the jurisdiction of all courts (except the Supreme Court) would be barred in relation to matters falling within the jurisdiction of the Tribunal.

6.66 In view of the encouraging response to the scheme launched by the Income Tax Department in 1985 under which the assessees were encouraged to voluntarily disclose their true incomes/wealth, the validity period of the scheme has been extended upto 31st March, 1987.

6.67 Certain changes relating to the provisions in the Income Tax Act were made through the Taxation Laws (Amendment of Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill, 1986 introduced in August 1986 and given assent to later in September, 1986. This gives effect to some of the proposals which had been earlier announced in the Budget session of Parliament such as relating to allowing of depreciation in respect of block of assets, amendment of Section 80 HHC in regard to the deduction from export profits and flexibility for availing of tax holiday in case of units established in Free Trade Zones. In addition, the Act provides for certain amendments according to which returns showing income below taxable limit would be deemed to have not been furnished in some cases. It also seeks to remove certain weaknesses and anomalies in law in respect of penalties and prosecutions. As indicated in the Long Term Fiscal Policy, draft rules for valuation of assets were notified for eliciting public opinion.

6.68 A number of adjustment in excise and customs duties have also been made in the post-Budget period keeping in view the objective of rationalisation of the structure of duties, removal of difficulties faced by the industry and trade in the wake of MODVAT and the new excise concession scheme for small units as well as in the light of the emerging developments. With a view to assist the agriculture sector duty on tyres, tubes and flaps, and IC engines used in the manufacture of power tillers and on certain parts and accessories of power tillers has been withdrawn. Similarly agricultural grade zinc phosphate, rock phosphate and other fertilizers when used in the manufacture of fertilizers have been exempted from the duty. Duty has also been abolished in the case of dicalcium phosphate used as animal feed. In order to increase the production of blended fabrics at cheaper prices it was decided to extend to the handloom sector the scheme of exemption from excise duty and countervailing duty of customs on polyester fibres used in the manufacture of low price fabrics under a duly approved programme. Duty has also been removed in respect of double or multi-fold yarn manufactured from duty paid yarn. Similarly duty has been withdrawn in case of mica and articles of mica and hand-made carpets. As a part of rationalisation, excise duty has been reduced in respect of certain parts of refrigeration and air-conditioning machinery. A concessional rate of duty has been fixed in case of electrically-operated trolley buses and battery-powered road vehicles. The duty on autorikshaws built by independent body builders has been fixed at a specific rate of Rs. 1000 per vehicle against 20 per cent ad valorem fixed earlier, provided no MODVAT credit of duty is availed. To mitigate the effect of sharp increase in the cost of fuel efficient cars, the duty on such cars of capacity upto 1000 cc has been reduced by 5 percentage points. Similarly keeping in view the difficult situation faced by the industry, the excise duty in case of light commercial vehicles has been reduced from 20 per cent to 10 per cent. The excise duty on tea has been restructured and rationalised and fixed at a uniform rate of 50 paise per kg. both for loose and blended tea except in case of tea grown in certain premium gardens of Upper Assam, wherein it has been fixed at Rs. 1.50 per kg. Besides, a scheme for rebate of excise duty on export of tea has been introduced. With a view to stimulate production of sugar, excise duty rebate in respect of sugar produced during the period 1st October, 1986 to 30th November, 1986 in excess of the average production of corresponding period in the preceding two years, was provided. Pre-budget exemptions were also restored in case of a number of small items.

6.69 Certain concessions in customs duties have been extended to facilitate import of raw-materials and components to promote indigenous production and upgrade technology. In order to give further boost to the electronics industry a package of measures giving substantial duty reliefs was announced in June 1986. Besides rationalising the customs duty in respect of raw materials and piece parts, the import duty on moulds, tools and dies has been reduced. Capital goods for modernisation of the electronics industry have been allowed a concessional duty of 55 per cent ad valorem. To protect the interest of the indigenous industry, customs duty on micro-motors used in electronics industry has been fixed on specific basis. Further, concessional rate of duty on disc ceramic capacitators, TV tuners and certain connectors has been withdrawn. The duty on computers was reduced from 200 per cent to 150 per cent. Import duty concession has also been extended to all components of specified machinery irrespective of the head under which these fall in Customs Tariff and the earlier concessions in respect of components of certain other machinery items have been restored. Customs duties in respect of CNC systems, electronic components required for manufacture of CNC system and CNC machine tools have been rationalised and restructured. Certain specified parts required for manufacture of solar energy equipments have been exempted from customs duty.

6.70 In pursuance of the proposal made in the Budget a concessional rate of duty of 55 per cent has been fixed on specified machinery used in solvent extraction oil industry to encourage domestic production. To promote production of export-oriented industries, import duty has been reduced on certain coffee curing machines as well as on specified chemical intermediates used for manufacture of leather chemicals. Having regard to the trend in international prices of crude petroleum, the import duty on crude petroleum has been revised and fixed at a specific rate of Rs. 560 per m.t. Customs duties have been adjusted in case of certain other items. Further, in view of the increase in international prices of black pepper, export duty was raised to Rs. 5 per kg. from Rs. 3 per kg.

6.71 In line with the LTFP, a new simplified and rationalised Duty Drawback Scheme has been brought into force from 1st June, 1986. Apart from reducing the number of rates, the rates have been hiked significantly in case of some identified thrust industries. For a number of new items industry rates have been fixed for the first time. However, rates have been fixed at lower levels where inputs are covered under MODVAT. The revised rates would cut down drastically the need for detailed physical and chemical testing.

6.72 A commitment had been made in the Long Term Fiscal Policy to rewrite the direct tax laws and to rationalise and simplify them so as to make the provisions easier to administer and to improve their effectiveness for curbing tax evasion. In pursuance of this, the Government presented to Parliament in August, 1986 a Discussion Paper on 'Simplification and Rationalisation of Direct Tax Laws' to elicit public opinion. The Paper sets out several important proposals for further reform of the direct tax laws with the basic approach of reposing greater trust in the tax payers to encourage voluntary compliance, on one hand, and preventing tax evasion, on the other. These aim at making the tax laws simple and uniform and attempt to reduce the element of subjectivity of the tax authorities, as far as possible. The main proposals include : (i) Adoption of a uniform accounting year by all assessees, (ii) Rationalisation of taxable entities and their system of taxation, (iii) Adoption of the concept of real income to bring in conformity the taxable income with the commercial practice, (iv) Simplification in the methods of computing the taxable income including rationalisation of the provisions relating to capital gains tax, and taxation of charitable institutions, (v) Substitution of some of the penal provisions by interest charges or additional tax in case of certain defaults, (vi) Setting up of a high powered Appellate body so as to bring about uniform application of law throughout the country, (vii) Simplification of the procedure of appeals and reduction in tiers and (viii) Measures for early collection of taxes and speeding up recovery proceedings. The paper also puts forth certain proposals for further rationalisation of the Wealth-tax Act and the Gift-tax Act.

Expenditure Control and Economy Measures

6.73 In the last year's Economic Survey, it was mentioned that as a part of the strategy to control public expenditure, Government proposed to commence zero-base budgeting in stages. This process was initiated in the current year in the formulation of the budget of all the Central Government Departments for 1987-88. The Government is also evolving a system of commitment budgeting, which will be complementary to zero-base budgeting, the objective being that on-going projects should not be starved of funds. In the meantime, the system of quarterly budgeting has been introduced from the current year with a view to identifying projects where funds were lying idle, and diverting them to other well implemented projects where funds were most needed. To begin with, this system has been made applicable to certain categories of Plan schemes involving a specified amount of expenditure. Steps have also been taken to ensure that the pace of expenditure was not slowed down in the first part of the financial year for want of sanction in time. Monitoring of earmarked outlays for programmes being executed by State Governments and their implementation has also been undertaken.

Central Government Departmental Enterprises

Railways

6.74 Reversing the trend of the preceding two years, the financial performance of the Railways in 1985-86 (RE) was quite satisfactory in that they were expected to generate a surplus of Rs. 85 crores, in sharp contrast to the deficit of Rs. 196 crores incurred in 1984-85 and of Rs. 45 crores in 1983-84. This surplus was even marginally higher than the budgeted amount of Rs. 74 crores, and was achieved despite the working expenses having gone up by about Rs. 178 crores from the budgeted level on account of several factors such as payment of second instalment of interim relief, higher cost of diesel and coal and revision in electricity tariffs. The satisfactory financial performance of the Railways was the result of mainly the increase in their productivity, and was duly reflected in their gross traffic receipts which went up to Rs. 6,339 crores in the revised estimates of 1985-86, exceeding the budget estimates by Rs. 188 crores. Apart from other measures of expenditure control, the Railways exercised strict economy in man-power employment. During the year 1985-86, by better management the traffic output, that is, freight tonne kilometres plus passenger kilometres, per employee was expected to increase to 2.66 lakhs traffic units as compared to 2.55 lakhs traffic units in 1984-85.

6.75 The Railway Budget for 1986-87 envisaged a surplus of Rs. 69 crores, after taking into account the additional revenue of Rs. 76 crores from revision in passenger fares. It was assumed that the Railways would be able to lift 294 million tonnes of freight traffic, including 27 million tonnes of non-revenue earning traffic, i.e., about 6 per cent more than the freight expected to be carried at the time of revised estimates for 1985-86. The growth in passenger traffic was envisaged at 4 to 5 per cent for non-suburban and suburban traffic. While the gross traffic receipts in 1986-87 were expected to rise by 7.6 per cent over the revised estimates of 1985-86, the ordinary working expenses of Railways were estimated to go up only 1.9 per cent, due to their resolve in achieving further economies and in enhancing the productivity of the system through efficient management of man-power and other resources. With a view to achieving a faster clearance of the backlog of arrears of track renewal, signalling and telecommunication equipment, and overaged rolling stock the provision for depreciation was raised substantially from Rs. 920 crores in 1985-86 to Rs. 1,250 crores in 1986-87. Also, the Railways made the provision for the full payment of the dividend to General Revenue amounting to Rs. 590 crores.

6.76 Railways presented in November, 1986 a supplementary demand for grants for Rs. 590 crores to meet additional expenditure resulting from the implementation of the Fourth Pay Commission's recommendations (Rs. 462 crores), payment of one instalment of Dearness Allowance (Rs. 25 crores) and additional outgo on account of Productivity Linked Bonus (Rs. 33 crores). Further, additional contribution to pension fund of Rs. 70 crores was required arising out of the liberalisation of Pension Rules. On the revenue side, the Railways expected to perform better than anticipated at the time of the Budget presentation in February, 1986. It was estimated that the revenue earning goods traffic would go up by 3 million tonnes to 270 million tonnes. This, along with the improvement in passenger and other coaching traffic, was to yield additional revenue of about Rs. 106 crores over the Budget estimates. Even so, there still remained an adverse impact of about Rs. 484 crores on the financial position of the Railways resulting in a shortfall of Rs. 415 crores compared to a surplus of Rs. 69 crores at the time of the Budget. With a view to bridge this gap, the Railways revised, with effect from December 1, 1986, the freight rates and also the parcel and luggage traffic rates which would yield an additional revenue of Rs. 320 crores in the remaining four months of the current year. In the result, the Railways were left with an uncovered gap of Rs. 95 crores in the current year. It was indicated that through further intensification of the traffic effort, the Railways would endeavour to bridge this gap. Current trends in railway traffic show that this expectation was likely to materialise.

Posts and Telecommunications

6.77 The gross receipts of the posts and telecommunications declined by Rs. 20 crores to Rs. 1,860 crores in the revised estimates of 1985-86 as against Rs. 1,880 crores estimated in the Budget. On the other hand, their combined net working expenses increased by Rs. 10 crores. The dividend liability to General Revenue in respect of telecommunication services went up by Rs. 11 crores. The cumulative result of these transactions was that against the budgeted surplus of Rs. 121 crores, the surplus in the revised estimates for 1985-86 shrunk somewhat to Rs. 80 crores, which was wholly due to the telecommunication operations. In 1986-87, the loss of the Department of Posts was expected to widen by Rs. 35 crores to Rs. 224 crores from the last year's estimated loss of Rs. 189 crores, while the Department of Telecommunications was estimated to generate a net surplus of Rs. 274 crores, marginally higher than the revised estimates of Rs. 269 crores in the preceding year.

6.78 In order to meet the rising operating costs, including the impact of the Fourth Pay Commission's recommendations on the pay and allowances of its employees, the Telecommunications Department effected with effect from December 1, 1986, and the Department of Posts from January 1, 1987, an upward revision in some of their tariffs. These revisions were to yield an additional revenue of Rs. 375 crores in a full year in respect of telecommunication services, and Rs. 172 crores in the case of postal services. The deficit of the Department of Posts which was estimated to be Rs. 401 crores in the current year before revision of tariff would now stand at Rs. 335 crores.

Performance of Central Government Public Enterprises

6.79 As anticipated in the last year's Economic Survey, the Centre's public enterprises as a whole earned the highest ever net profit after tax of Rs. 1199 crores in 1985-86 (Table 6.6). While it was gratifying to note that the pre-tax profits of the profit-making enterprises had risen by about 20 per cent from Rs. 3,209 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 3,856 crores in 1985-86, it was a matter of concern that the losses of the loss-making units at the same time widened by as much as 49 per cent, from Rs. 1,111 crores to Rs. 1,656 crores. Even the cash losses of cash loss-making enterprises increased from Rs. 777 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 1,094 crores (provisional) in 1985-86, an increase of 41 per cent. The nationalised sick units, however, reduced their losses from Rs. 358 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 257 crores in 1985-86. As in the past, it was the petroleum group of companies which largely contributed to the profits of the Centre's public enterprises.

6.80 While the gross margin (that is, profit before depreciation, interest and tax) had recorded an increase of 12 per cent from Rs. 7,386 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 8,303 crores in 1985-86, the gross profit as a proportion of capital employed declined marginally from 12.7 per cent to 12.3 per cent. As a result the provision for payment of tax was also somewhat lower at Rs. 1,001 crores than Rs. 1190 crores provided for in 1984-85. However, the gross internal resource generation showed an improvement, from Rs. 4,251 crores to Rs. 5,068 crores.

6.81 At the sectoral level, the performances of Central public enterprises showed substantial improvement in petroleum, steel and power. The profit making enterprises in these sectors included Oil and Natural Gas Commission, Indian Oil Corporation, Oil India Ltd., Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd., National Thermal Power Corporation and Steel Authority of India Ltd. Aviation sector enterprises, namely, Air India and Indian Airlines, also earned profits. Bharat Heavy Electricals Ltd. was another noted profit-making enterprise. The textile sector could reduce its losses by Rs. 78 crores during 1985-86 compared to the previous year. The deterioration in financial performance has been conspicuous in the case of coal, chemicals, fertilisers and pharmaceuticals and minerals and metals sectors which together accounted for an additional loss of Rs. 530 crores during 1985-86 compared to 1984-85. Among the major loss-making enterprises, Delhi Transport Corporation topped the list. Bharat Aluminium Co. Ltd., Heavy Engineering Corporation Ltd. and Indian Iron & Steel Co. Ltd., were also among the major loss-making enterprises.

6.82 The provisional data for the first half of the current financial year also shows improvement compared to the corresponding period of the last year. The overall working results during the period under review show a net profit of Rs. 233 crores (170 enterprises) against a marginal net loss of Rs. 14.55 crores (183 enterprises) during the corresponding period of the last year. The improved profits of profit-making enterprises has been partly off-set by the increased losses of loss-making enterprises. While net profit of profit-making enterprises increased from Rs. 878 crores in the first half of 1985-86 to Rs. 1260 crores in the corresponding period of the current year, the losses of loss-making enterprises also increased from Rs. 893 crores to Rs. 1027 crores.

State Governments Commercial Undertakings

6.83 Excepting forest and mines and minerals, all other departmentally-run undertakings of the States and Union Territories have been incurring losses for quite some time. These losses were expected to widen further in some cases during the current year. By far the largest amount of loss was anticipated in the case of commercial irrigation—Rs. 782 crores as against Rs. 731 crores in 1985-86 (RE). The losses in respect of multipurpose river projects were, however, likely to be marginaly reduced to Rs. 121 crores in 1986-87 (BE) from Rs. 126 crores in 1985-86 (RE) and in respect of power projects to Rs. 33 crores from Rs. 40 crores. The combined loss of road and water transport services, dairy development and industry was expected to remain at the last year's level of Rs. 56 crores. Among the major surplus-generating departmental undertakings of the States and Union Territories, forest was expected to contribute Rs. 480 crores in 1986-87 (BE) as against Rs. 486 crores during 1985-86 (RE) and mines and minerals Rs. 41 crores as against Rs. 43 crores.

6.84 The State Electricity Boards (SEBs) and the State Road Transport Corporations (SRTCs), the two major non-departmental undertakings of the States, continued to incur losses in their operations. The losses of SEBs at current rates (excluding subsidies) were expected to be lower at Rs. 1,260 crores in 1986-87 (Annual Plan estimates) compared with the loss of Rs. 1545 crores in 1985-86 (latest estimates). The revised figures of losses for 1986-87 are Rs. 1,580 crores. For the Seventh Plan period, it was estimated that the SEBs would be incurring a loss of Rs. 11,757 crores at 1984-85 rates of electricity tariffs. The Seventh Plan had also stipulated that the SEBs would take suitable steps to reduce these losses by Rs. 7,000 crores during the five year period. This would imply that the commercial losses of the SEBs should not exceed Rs. 4,757 crores during the Seventh Plan period. However, with total losses amounting to Rs. 3,125 crores in the first two years of the Seventh Plan, the above target is unlikely to be achieved unless the SEBs substantially improve their performance. As for the SRTCs, their losses were antcipated to be lower at Rs. 178 crores in the current year compared with the loss of Rs. 225 crores incurred in 1985-86 (RE). However, for the Seventh Plan period as a whole, it was estimated that the SRTCs would be making a loss of Rs. 1,434 crores at 1984-85 level of fares. At the same time, they were expected to raise additional revenue of about Rs. 2,200 crores (after allowing for cost over-runs). In other words, the SRTCs were called upon not only to completely wipe out their losses, but also to make a positive contribution. Against this stipulation, their performance in the first two years of the Seventh Plan has been unsatisfactory.

MONETARY AND CREDIT DEVELOPMENTS

In 1985-86, the growth in overall liquidity in the economy, as measured by growth in total money supply (M3), was contained at 15.9 per cent, compared with an annual average rise of 18.5 per cent in the preceding two years. However, narrow money (M1), grew by only 10.4 per cent as against the growth of 19.5 per cent in the preceding year. Trends in monetary expansion recorded in the first nine months of the current year indicate a faster expansion of M3 than in 1985-86, with growth (upto January 2, 1987) of 15.7 per cent as compared to an increase of 13.3 per cent in the same period of 1985-86.

7.2 A disturbing element of monetary trends in 1986-87 is the increase of Rs. 5,048 crores (upto January 2, 1987) in the net RBI Credit to Government, as compared to an increase of Rs. 3,186 crores in the same period last year. Net RBI credit to Government is a key determinant of base money (or reserve money) and its growth requires careful monitoring and control. Other banks credit to Government also rose significantly, by 34.5 per cent as against a growth of 31.1 per cent in the corresponding period of 1985-86. This sharp increase in the Government's recourse to the banking system may be largely attributed to increased expenditure following the two supplementary demands for grants voted by Parliament in its monsoon and winter sessions and the effects of implementing the Pay Commission recommendations.

7.3 In the sectoral deployment of bank credit, the target of 40 per cent set for the priority sector was exceeded and stood at 40.8 per cent at the end of March 1986 and at 42.4 per cent at the end of September 1986. In the area of selective credit controls, the process of rationalisation initiated in 1985 was carried further in the current year. More credit flows were allowed where production was expected to rise, or where the demand-supply position was comfortable. The exemption limit of aggregate advances against stocks of commodities covered under selective credit controls was raised to Rs. 1 lakh (from Rs. 50,000) per borrower with a view to helping small producers and dealers. The Credit Authorisation Scheme (CAS), which covers large borrowers, was also modified taking into account the increase over time in the volume and number of transactions under the CAS. In order to boost the country's exports, the interest rates on export credit were lowered by 2.5 percentage points with effect from August 1, 1986. The scope for export refinancing limits of banks was also widened, and care was taken to see that no application for export credit was rejected.

7.4 An important element of macro monetary management in the current year has been the strict enforcement of the Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR). Unlike in 1985-86, when the SLR was raised in two stages from 36 to 37 per cent, no change has been effected in SLR in the current year. But the concession of a band of waiver of 4 per cent of the amount of SLR required to be maintained by banks was gradually phased down and wholly eliminated from October 11, 1986.

7.5 The current year also saw the implementation of some of the major recommendations of the Committee to Review the Working of the Monetary System (the Chakravarty Committee). The Committee had emphasized the desirability of developing aggregate monetary targets to help secure acceptable and orderly monetary growth. The Government has, accordingly, carried out on an experimental basis, an exercise to evolve and monitor such targets in consultation with the Reserve Bank of India. The Government had accepted, in principle, the Committee's recommendation that increase in entire RBI credit to the Government should be reflected in the budget in addition to the more narrowly defined figure of budgetary deficit. After further technical examination and in consultation with the Reserve Bank of India, it has now been decided to show the increase in RBI's net credit to the Central Government as a memorandum item in the Budget documents. Following the Committee's recommendation, a new form of 182 days treasury bills are being issued by the RBI, on the basis of monthly auctions, to serve as a short-term instrument with flexible rates which would enable banks to manage their liquidity better and promote the evolution of an active secondary market in short-term instruments. Pursuant to the Committee's recommendations, the yields on long-term Government securities were increased and the maximum maturity reduced.

7.6 At the end of December, 1986 the liquidity position of the banks was comfortable and they were well placed to meet the genuine credit requirements during the remainder of the current busy season. However, sizeable increase in Net RBI Credit to the Central Government has the potential for increasing substantially overall liquidity in the economy. In this context, there is a need for continuous monitoring of the situation and for taking expeditious corrective action where deemed necessary.

7.7 Monetary expansion in 1985-86 (on 31st March basis) showed a distinct moderation. Narrow money (M1) expanded by 10.4 per cent, nearly one-half of the rate of 19.5 per cent recorded in 1984-85. Broad money or aggregate monetary resources (M3), too, expanded at a perceptibly lower rate of 15.9 per cent compared to 18.9 per cent in the previous year. Component-wise, currency with the public showed a marked deceleration, growing by only 10.5 per cent against 15.7 per cent in 1984-85 and 17.7 per cent in 1983-84. The growth in demand deposits also slowed down considerably to 12.6 per cent from 23.3 per cent in 1984-85. Time deposits, on the other hand, recorded a faster growth—19.4 per cent against 18.5 per cent in 1984-85. Consequently, the ratio of currency to incremental deposits came down to 0.17 from 0.24 in 1984-85 conforming to the long term trend of a declining currency to deposits ratio.

7.8 Source-wise, a slower rate of increase in net foreign exchange assets of the banking sector and a lower order of expansion in net bank credit to Government were the major factors which helped in containing the growth in M3 in 1985-86. Expansion in net bank credit to Government was less pronounced at Rs. 8,093 crores (16.1 per cent) than that of Rs. 9,586 crores (23.6 per cent) in 1984-85, mainly because of the significant improvement in the budgetary position of the States which had reduced their indebtedness to the Reserve Bank by Rs. 2,026 crores (or by Rs. 398 crores if the medium term loan of Rs. 1,628 crores given by the Centre is excluded). Furthermore, the States' investments in treasury bills had also gone up by Rs. 1,377 crores in 1985-86, which in turn had reduced the Centre's reliance on the Reserve Bank. Accruals to net foreign exchange assets of the banking sector were lower at Rs. 841 crores as compared to Rs. 1,322 crores in 1984-85. Bank credit to the commercial sector increased by

Rs. 11,850 crores (16.7 per cent) as against Rs. 10,227 crores (16.8 per cent) in 1984-85.

7.9 An analysis of scheduled commercial banks' data shows a deceleration in the rate of growth of aggregate deposits and bank credit. The growth rate of 18.1 per cent in aggregate deposits was lower than 19.5 per cent in 1984-85. This was due entirely to a marked slow-down in the growth of demand deposits which grew at a rate of 12.3 per cent, about one-half of the growth rate of 23.7 per cent in 1984-85. The growth in time deposits, on the other hand, maintained its upward trend and recorded an increase of 19.5 per cent. Gross bank credit expanded at a lower rate of 16 per cent against 17 per cent in 1984-85, the reason being a comparatively smaller expansion of Rs. 293 crores in food credit against Rs. 1,489 crores in 1984-85. Non-food credit, on the other hand, increased substantially by Rs. 7,576 crores (17.4 per cent) compared with the increase of Rs. 5,659 crores (14.9 per cent) in 1984-85.

7.10 The trends so far indicate that in the first nine months of 1986-87 (April, 1986—January 2, 1987) M3 recorded a growth of 15.7 per cent, which was higher than 13.3 per cent in the same period of 1985-86. Both currency with the public and demand deposits, which had shown a significant deceleration in 1985-86, registered larger increases contributing to the higher growth rate in M3 during the period. The growth rate of 17.8 per cent in time deposits was, however, lower by 0.4 percentage point than the rate in the similar period of 1985-86.

7.11 Source-wise, the fast pace of acceleration in net bank credit to Government in the current year so far (upto January 2, 1987) has more than neutralised the moderating effect on M3 of slower rate of expansion in bank credit to commercial sector and the relatively smaller decline in net foreign exchange assets of the banking sector. Net bank credit to Government expanded by Rs. 11,825 crores (20.3 per cent) during April, 1986—January 2, 1987 against Rs. 8,162 crores (16.2 per cent) in the corresponding period of 1985-86. Of this increase, RBI's net credit to Government accounted for Rs. 5,048 crores and other banks' credit to Government Rs. 6,777 crores, compared with Rs. 3,186 crores and Rs. 4,976 crores respectively, in the same period of 1985-86. RBI's net credit to Central Government alone increased by Rs. 5,262 crores off-setting the modest decline of Rs. 214 crores in credit to State Governments during April, 1986—January 2, 1987. The decline in indebtedness of State Governments to RBI both in the current and previous year has to be seen in the context of the Central Government's medium term loans of Rs. 1,628 crores to State Governments and the regulation of overdrafts by RBI. Bank credit to commercial sector, on the other hand, recorded a lower order of expansion of Rs. 7,286 crores (8.8 per cent) compared to Rs. 7,490 crores (10.6 per cent) in the similar period of 1985-86. Net foreign exchange assets of the banking sector witnessed only a small decline of Rs. 47 crores, as compared to Rs. 159 crores in the same period of 1985-86.

7.12 Selected indicators pertaining to scheduled commercial banks' financial operations are given in Table 7.2. Aggregate deposits were expected, according to the working estimates of RBI drawn up, keeping in view the desired objective of a slowdown in the overall growth of liquidity, to increase by Rs. 15,000 crores (17.6 per cent) in 1986-87. As against this, the growth in aggregate deposits till January 2, 1987 worked out to Rs. 16,356 crores (19.1 per cent) compared to the expansion of Rs. 12,147 crores (16.7 per cent) in the same period of 1985-86. The movements in bank credit till January 2, 1987, show an absolute decline of Rs. 104 crores in food credit. Non-food credit, however, showed an increase of Rs. 3,105 crores (10.0 per cent) compared with the increase of Rs. 4,629 crores (10.6 per cent) in the same period last year. The decline in food credit in the current year appears to be due to the adequate provisions for food subsidy in the Budget, and its timely release to the Food Corporation of India. The larger expansion in non-food credit could be attributed to the pick-up in industrial production in the later half of the year and the surge in requirements of seasonal industries.

7.13 Consequent upon the lower rate of growth in bank credit, the credit-deposit ratio as on January 2, 1987, declined to 60.8 per cent from 64.1 per cent a year ago. The non-food credit-deposit ratio, too, dropped to 55.1 per cent from 56.9 per cent during the same period. The decline in credit-deposit ratio has implications for the profitability of banks. In view of the comfortable resources position, and the strict enforcement by the RBI of the statutory provision, regarding maintenance of SLR on a daily basis, banks appear to have invested a larger amount in Government and other approved securities, which recorded an increase of Rs. 8,606 crores during the nine months ending January 2, 1987 compared with the rise of Rs. 6,661 crores during the same period last year. As a result, the investment-deposit ratio moved up to 38.4 per cent as on January 2, 1987 compared to 37.3 per cent as on January 3, 1986.

Reserve Money

7.14 The significance of reserve money is in its being the base for monetary expansion. Reserve money is largely influenced by Government's budgetary deficit via changes in net Reserve Bank Credit to Government. Much of the concern over the budgetary deficit is, therefore, due to this relationship and the consequent impact on prices. There are also other factors such as RBI Credit to banks and commercial sector, foreign exchange assets of RBI, Government's currency liabilities and the net non-monetary liabilities of RBI which influence reserve money. An analysis of the sources of reserve money shows that RBI's net credit to Government was the principal source of reserve money. Net RBI credit to Government as a proportion of reserve money was 83 per cent at the end of March 1971 and 85 per cent at the end of March 1981; this has now risen to 101 per cent by the end of March 1986.

7.15 The movements in reserve money over the past few years have been erratic. It recorded an expansion of 25.5 per cent in 1983-84, followed by another 21.5 cent growth in 1984-85. Thereafter, the rate of expansion slowed down to 8.3 per cent in 1985-86. It is, however, important to note that the extent of erratic movements is only statistical, based on a point to point comparison. When compared with twelve-monthly average, the growth in reserve money worked out at 19.6 per cent and 17.3 per cent in 1984-85 and 1985-86, respectively. For analytical purposes, it might be more meaningful to consider the average figure. While substantial increases in two components, namely, currency with the public (Rs. 3,069 crores) and banks' deposits with RBI (Rs. 2,686 crores) accounted for the bulk of the expansion of Rs. 6,223 crores in reserve money in 1984-85 on a point to point basis, a much lower growth in banks' deposits with RBI (Rs. 606 crores) together with the deceleration in the growth of currency with the public (Rs. 2,378 crores) contributed to the slow-down in the reserve money expansion in 1985-86. Source-wise, the faster expansion in reserve money in 1984-85 was brought about by the substantial expansion in net RBI credit to Government (Rs. 7,426 crores or 27.7 per cent) and rise in net foreign exchange assets of RBI (Rs. 1,275 crores or 78.5 per cent). In comparison, the lower order of expansion in both net RBI credit to Government (Rs. 4,442 crores or 13.0 per cent) and net foreign exchange assets of RBI (Rs. 841 crores or 29.0 per cent) were responsible for the deceleration in the growth of reserve money in 1985-86.

7.16 During the current financial year upto January 2, 1987, the growth in reserve money again witnessed an upturn on a point to point basis. It recorded an expansion of Rs. 3,177 crores (8.3 per cent) during this period as compared with a moderate increase of Rs. 689 crores (2.0 per cent) in the similar period of 1985-86. A sizeable increase of Rs. 1,712 crores (6.8 per cent) in currency with the public and of Rs. 1,431 crores (12.6 per cent) in bankers' deposits with RBI accounted for the bulk of the increase in the incremental reserve money. Source-wise, the increase was due mainly to a sharp rise in net RBI credit to Government by Rs. 5,048 crores (13.1 per cent) compared with the increase of Rs. 3,186 crores (9.3 per cent) in the same period of the previous year. Although net RBI credit to Government is highly volatile, the magnitude of its expansion so far during the year indicates pressure on the Central Budget.

Trends in Sectoral Deployment of Credit

7.17 Monetary policy is concerned not only with aggregate supply and demand for liquidity but also with its sectoral disposition in the light of established socio-economic and Plan priorities. The broad pattern of the direction of flow of credit is shown in Table 7.4. The data therein relate to deployment of credit by 50 scheduled commercial banks which account for about 95 per cent of gross bank credit. These show that bank credit to priority sectors constituted 40.8 per cent of net bank credit as on the last Friday of March, 1986 thereby exceeding the target of 40 per cent. Of the increase of Rs. 3,157 crores in credit to priority sectors in 1985-86, agriculture and small scale industries accounted for 44.3 per cent and 38.1 per cent respectively. Other priority sectors, which include weaker sections, small transport operators, self-employed persons and rural artisans, shared the remaining 17.6 per cent of the total credit. Advances to medium and large industries recorded a substantially higher order of expansion of Rs. 3,231 crores (20.3 per cent) than Rs. 1,318 crores (9.0 per cent) in 1984-85, and their share in incremental non-food gross bank credit rose to 43.7 per cent in 1985-86 from 22.4 per cent in the preceding year.

7.18 Data for the current year indicate significant deceleration in expansion of gross non-food credit (2.2 per cent) during the period upto September 1986 as compared with (4.5 per cent) in the same period of 1985. This was due largely to the steep decline in credit to wholesale trade and deceleration in credit to medium and large industries and priority sectors. However, the share of priority sector in net bank credit in September, 1986 improved to 42.4 per cent from 41.1 per cent, a year ago.

Developments in Credit Policy

7.19 In the wake of rapid growth of overall liquidity at an annual average rate of 18.3 per cent in 1983-84 and 1984-85 and the associated increase in inflationary pressures, the focus of the monetary and credit policy in 1985-86 was on moderating this growth to a rate lower than that in the previous two years. At the macro-monetary management level, the Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR) was raised in two phases to 37 per cent (from 36 per cent) and the maintenance of SLR on a daily basis was made more stringent by introducing penalties for defaults in SLR. The Cash Reserve Ratio (CRR) was left unchanged at 9 per cent until February 28, 1987 when it was raised to 9.5 per cent. Banks were cautioned that the facility of averaging the cash reserve requirement should not be used to generate large fluctuations in cash balances.

7.20 Further, effective September 14, 1985 an additional 3 per cent interest charge was imposed on the portion of the refinance equivalent to the average CRR shortfalls on each day of the fortnight in which there was a CRR shortfall. The interest rates on term deposits of one year and above under the Foreign Currency Non-Resident Scheme (FCNR) were revised downwards in line with trends in interest rates abroad. On the credit policy front, selective credit controls were further rationalised by granting certain concessions and exemptions but banks were advised to enforce strictly various credit norms so that credit was not utilised for speculative hoardings. The entire approach was thus on gearing up effective implementation of different monetary and credit control instruments so as to moderate overall growth in liquidity without sacrificing genuine credit requirements and liquidity needs of the economy.

7.21 It was a measure of success that the liquidity growth in the economy in 1985-86 was contained at 15.9 per cent, perceptibly lower than the rate of growth of 18.9 per cent in the preceding year. However, in the current year, there have been signs of upward pressure on prices signalling the need for continuation of caution on monetary and credit fronts. In the interest of preserving growth with price stability, it was felt necessary to aim at containing the rate of growth in overall liquidity (M3) to a level below the average for the previous three years. Consistent with this objective, various measures were taken both at macro and sectoral levels which are detailed in the paragraphs that follow.

7.22 An important element of macro monetary management in the current year continued to be the strict enforcement of SLR maintenance by banks. Unlike in 1985-86, no change was effected in SLR but the concession of a band of waiver of 4 per cent of the amount of SLR required to be maintained was gradually reduced by one percentage point each effective July 19, August 16 and September 13; and was eventually extinguished effective October 11, 1986. Further, effective from October 11, 1986, the earlier concession of not imposing the 3 percentage points additional interest charge on refinance from RBI equivalent to SLR default was withdrawn.

7.23 In order to supplement the efforts of banks to meet fully the busy season spurt in credit requirements from their own resources, it was decided by RBI in October, 1986 to release in two equal instalments a sum of Rs. 496 crores being one half of the remaining cash balances impounded earlier under the additional cash reserve ratio of 10 per cent of incremental net demand and time liabilities between January 14, 1977 and October 31, 1980. Accordingly, the first instalment of Rs. 248 crores was released on November 22, 1986. Considering the surge in deposits and the comfortable liquidity position of banks, RBI has postponed the release of the second instalment from January 31, 1987 to March 14, 1987. Furthermore, the Cash Reserve Ratio was raised from 9 per cent to 9.5 per cent with effect from February 28, 1987.

7.24 The regime of differential interest rate structure with respect to different sectors, commodities and users continued during the year. The maximum rate of interest remained unchanged at 17.5 per cent per annum. This rate, however, does not indicate the actual cost of money to the economy as it was applicable mainly to borrowers in large and medium sectors who accounted for a little over one-third of the total outstanding gross bank credit as at the end of September, 1986. Borrowers under priority sectors, anti-poverty programmes, food procurement, export, etc., were charged lower rates of interest. The borrowers under priority sectors accounted for a little over 40 per cent of the outstanding gross bank credit and the interest rates charged to them varied from 4 per cent to 16.5 per cent. Export credit likewise accounted for about 5 per cent of the total outstanding gross bank credit and the rates of interest for this sector varied from 8.65 per cent to 16.5 per cent. Food procurement which accounted for about 10 per cent of the outstanding gross bank credit enjoyed a lower rate of interest of 14 per cent. Thus, contrary to the common belief, the average rate of interest in India was not high, as about two-thirds of lendings by banks were at lower interest rates. Presently, the weighted average lending rate of scheduled commercial banks works out to about 11 per cent per annum.

7.25 The increasing role of Foreign Currency Non-Resident Accounts (FCNR) in overall liquidity of the economy was recognised and in the context of a decline in interest rates abroad, the interest rates on FCNR deposits were reduced on May 5, 1986. The reduction was one percentage point in the case of maturities between one and less than three years and 0.5 percentage point for maturities of three years. It was also specified that effective from that date deposits under FCNR scheme would not be accepted for maturities above three years. Subsequently, the interest rates were lowered again with effect from September 8, 1986. The reduction was 0.5 percentage point in regard to three categories of maturities viz., six months and above but less than one year (from 8 per cent to 7.5 per cent), one year and above but less than two years (from 8.5 per cent to 8 per cent) and two years and above but less than three years (from 9 per cent to 8.5 per cent). In the case of maturities of three years, however, the reduction was one percentage point (from 10 per cent to 9 per cent).

7.26 In the area of sectoral credit management, selective credit control remained as the principal policy instrument. The rationalisation of selective credit controls undertaken in April and October, 1985 was carried further in the current year with a view to making these controls more responsive to commodity balances and development in prices. For commodities where a stipulation existed regarding the level of credit based on the three-year periods 1980-81, 1981-82 and 1982-83 (November-October), the base was brought forward by one year to 1981-82, 1982-83 and 1983-84 with effect from April 4, 1986. This was done to allow more credit flows in keeping with rising output of these commodities. Further, keeping in view the comfortable position in paddy and rice and cotton and kapas and increase in cotton-seed output, all advances against these commodities were exempted from the provisions of selective credit controls. Similarly, the minimum margins on advances against oilseeds and vegetable oils were reduced across-the-board by 15 percentage points. Also, advances against high-yielding and hybrid oilseeds were exempted from all provisions of selective credit controls. All these exemptions|reductions were made effective from April 4, 1986. Besides, the exemption limit of aggregate advances against stocks of commodities covered under selective credit controls was raised from Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 100,000 per borrower with effect from April 4, 1986, with a view to helping small producers and dealers of commodities which still remained subject to selective credit controls.

7.27 The Credit Authorisation Scheme (CAS) is another important tool of sectoral credit management. Taking into account the increase over time in the volume and number of transactions under the CAS, the following changes were made with effect from April 4, 1986 :

— the cut-off point for CAS working capital limits was raised to Rs. 6 crores from Rs. 4 crores. This measure would reduce the number of working capital limits at present covered by CAS by almost one third.

— the cut-off point for working capital limits for manufacturer|trader exporters was raised to a uniform Rs. 7 crores against the differential cut-off points hitherto of Rs. 5 crores for manufacturer exporters and Rs. 4 crores for trader exporters.

— the cut-off point for cases of working capital limits which banks hitherto have to report for post-sanction scrutiny was raised from Rs. 1 crore to Rs. 2 crores. Moreover, the discretionary powers of banks to sanction ad hoc additional limits was enlarged.

— the eligibility criteria for the Fast Track facility was modified marginally to provide for greater flexibility in the use of this facility. The modifications related to norms for inventories and receivables and quarterly returns.

7.28 Export credit continued to receive careful attention in the scheme of sectoral credit management. Hitherto, the structure of pre-shipment credit was characterised by a multiplicity of interest rates differentiated with reference to specified commodities. It was desirable to rationalise this structure by prescribing uniform interest rates for all commodities and allowing variations to occur according to periods of credit sanctioned. With this end in view, the interest rates for pre-shipment credit for all commodities were realigned with effect from March 1, 1986 : 12 per cent for credit upto 180 days; 14 per cent for credit beyond 180 days but upto 270 days; and not exceeding 16.5 per cent for credit beyond 270 days. As a further measure aimed at boosting export efforts the interest rates on export credit were lowered by 2.5 percentage points with effect from August 1, 1986. The rate of interest on post-shipment credit was also reduced from 12 per cent to 9.5 per cent. However, the ceiling rate for export credit of not exceeding 16.5 per cent wherever applicable remained unchanged. Effective August 1, 1986 the interest subsidy rate payable to banks under the Export Credit (Interest Subsidy) Scheme, 1986 was enhanced from 1.5 per cent to 3.0 per cent. To ensure that the margin between the effective return to banks (after adjusting for interest subsidy) and the refinance rate remains unimpaired, the interest rate on Reserve Bank's export credit refinance to banks was also reduced from 10 per cent to 9 per cent effective from August 1, 1986.

7.29 Apart from lowering the interest rates, the scope for export refinancing limits of banks was also widened by discontinuing in the current year the practice of bringing forward the base. The banks were thus enabled to get export refinance at 9 per cent per annum within a limit equivalent to 100 per cent of the increase in export credit over the monthly average limit of credit in 1984. Accordingly, the banks' access to this facility would now be Rs. 200 crores more than what it would have been in the event the base had been brought forward. To supplement these efforts aimed at making export credit available at ease, the RBI requested banks to adopt effective procedures for dealing expeditiously with any alleged denial of credit to exporters. In particular, care was to be taken to see that no application for export credit was rejected by a competent authority without the approval of the next higher authority.

7.30 With a view to providing easier access to the discretionary refinance facility, all licensed scheduled commercial banks are being permitted to draw discretionary refinance upto an amount equivalent to 0.5 per cent of their average deposits in 1985-86 for a period not exceeding 14 days without prior sanction by the Reserve Bank; the interest rate charged will continue to be 14 per cent per annum.

Follow-up Action on the Recommendations of the Committee to Review the Working of the Monetary System

7.31 The Committee to Review the Working of the Monetary System (Chakravarty Committee) had observed that the budgetary deficit as defined at present does not reveal the full extent of the Government's reliance on Reserve Bank Credit. This results mainly from the exclusion of Reserve Bank's holdings of dated securities from the present concept of the Centre's budgetary deficit. To the extent treasury bills are held outside the Reserve Bank, the present concept tends to overstate the monetary impact of fiscal operations. The Committee had accordingly recommended a modification in the present concept of the budgetary deficit to include the entire RBI credit to the Government. This recommendation has been accepted, in principle, by the Government and steps have been taken to work out the modalities of effecting the change in consultation with the Reserve Bank of India. However, it was noticed that ex ante there were several problems in the estimation of the RBI credit to Government, particularly when the Budget of the next fiscal year is under preparation in the months of January/February every year and it is necessary to have as firm an estimate of the deficit as possible at the R.E. stage. On an analysis of the past data of variations in the net RBI credit to Central Government, it was found that there was no stable and predictable relationship in the credit extended by the RBI to Central Government in a full year with that of the first nine months of that year. Transactions in treasury bills and the long-dated securities by parties other than the RBI have shown wide swings during the course of a fiscal year. In fact, the week to week fluctuation in the holdings of treasury bills by the banks, has been particularly pronounced. It was against this background that the Reserve Bank has been urging the banks to desist from triggering such wide fluctuations. In the case of long-dated securities, the factors causing fluctuations were variations in the liquid assets of banks, as also the transactions in securities by the financial institutions under the buy-back arrangement, especially by those institutions which keep their accounts exclusively with the Reserve Bank of India.

7.32 In addition to the absorption by RBI of dated securities floated under the market borrowing programme, the RBI credit to the Central Government includes rupee coins and special securities issued by the Central Government to the Reserve Bank for borrowings against collections under the Compulsory Deposit (I.T. Payers) Scheme, and for payment of charges on drawings from the IMF. There are also disparate practices in regard to the valuation of treasury bills, and dated securities, which in the monetary data are on the basis of Reserve Bank's book value (that is, purchase price), whereas in the fiscal accounts, the transactions are recorded on the basis of the face value of securities. These different methods of recording the transactions by the Government and the Reserve Bank result in an asymmetry in the fiscal and the montetary data.

7.33 In view of the technical problems in achieving a one to one correspondence in the fiscal and monetary accounts, it has now been decided to show the RBI's net credit to Central Government as a memorandum item in the Budget documents. As part of measures to remove the noise in the data series on the new definition of the budgetary deficit, banks have been advised to eschew volatile movements in their holdings of treasury bills. The RBI has decided to levy, with effect from November 21, 1986, an additional fee on early rediscounting of 91 days' treasury bills within 14 days of their purchase. Beyond the fourteenth day, no such fee would be levied.

7.34 The Chakravarty Committee had laid stress on the desirability of developing monetary targets at the aggregative level for securing an acceptable and orderly pattern of monetary growth. The range of the monetary targets needs to be determined in the light of a number of considerations, including expectations regarding the growth in output, the rate of increase in prices and the income elasticity of demand for money. It was also pointed out by the Committee that targets so derived for the year, might need to be revised upwards or downwards during the year to accommodate the impact of developments in the real sector of the economy. The Committee, accordingly, recommended for the setting of overall monetary targets with feed back which enables changes in the targets to be made in the light of emerging trends in output and prices. The recommendation of the Committee has since been accepted by the Government and an exercise to develop operationally meaningful targets and monitor them on an experimental basis has been carried out in consultation with the Reserve Bank of India.

7.35 In developing this exercise, several technical problems connected with the choice of candidate variables, volatility of those variables and their seasonal variations were required to be resolved. The choice of variables is necessarily influenced by the fundamental objective of controlling aggregate fiscal and monetary outcomes and the feasibility of predicting the full year's outcome on the basis of current information. On the basis of these criteria, three monetary variables, namely, Aggregate Monetary Resources (M3), Net Reserve Bank Credit to Central Government (NRCCG), and Net Bank Credit to Government (NBCG) have been selected for early warning signals with respect to growth of overall liquidity in the economy. NRCCG is a key component of the stock of reserve money and although volatile, research has indicated that the changes in NRCCG may have been the single most important explanation of year to year changes in money supply in the economy. NBCG has the virtue of including the full recourse to bank borrowing by Government and being less volatile than NRCCG, it provides a better indicator of within year trends. M3, on the other hand, is the appropriate indicator of the degree of overall liquidity in the economy as it exerts a substantial influence on the rate of inflation in the economy. The problem of volatility in these variables, particularly NRCCG, and the efforts required to reduce these have been discussed earlier.

7.36 The Chakravarty Committee has recognised the need for exploring new financial instruments which could provide alternative avenues for short-term investments for which an active secondary market could develop in future. Specifically, the Committee had recommended that treasury bills should be developed as a monetary instrument with flexible rates which would enable banks to better manage their short-term liquidity. Following this, with effect from November 28, 1986 treasury bills of 182 days' maturity are being issued. These bills would be issued on a monthly auction basis, and unlike the 91-days' treasury bills, the rate of discount and the corresponding issue price of these bills would be flexible and determined through the auctions subject to there being a reserve price. However, these bills are not being provided rediscounting facilities with the RBI. The new treasury bills are available for purchase to any resident in India including individuals, firms, companies, corporate bodies and institutions, but State Governments and Provident Funds are precluded from participating in the auctions. These bills are treated as approved investments by banks for SLR purposes and are also eligible as collateral for borrowing under the Reserve Bank's stand-by refinance facility. The RBI has appointed a Working Group to examine the possibilities of enlarging the scope of the money market and to recommend specific measures for evolving other suitable money market instruments. The Working Group's terms of reference inter alia include the pattern of money market interest rates, whether these rates should be administered or market determined. The Working Group has recently submitted its Report to the Reserve Bank.

7.37 The Chakravarty Committee had recommended an upward revision of yields on Government securities coupled with a shortening of maturities to attract funds from the capital market. In recent years, Government has been increasing the yield on Government securities, and the maximum interest rate now is 11.5 per cent. As a further measure, the maximum maturity for floatations of dated securities in the financial year 1986-87 was reduced to 20 years.

7.38 With a view to providing a forum at which co-ordinated views on financial flows in the economy could be formulated to promote development of requisite policies, the Reserve Bank appointed in June 1986, a National Finance and Credit Council. The Council will have the following objectives : (a) to take an overall view of the flow of finance and credit, both short-term and long-term for industry, agriculture and trade; (b) to coordinate policies relating to the flow of short-term and long-term credit; and (c) to consider developments in capital and money markets with a view to enhancing their role and efficiency.

FOREIGN TRADE AND BALANCE OF PAYMENTS

Following the second oil shock of 1979-80, India's balance of payments had deteriorated markedly in the first two years of the Sixth Plan with the trade deficit reaching a peak of 4.7 per cent of GDP in 1980-81. As a result of strong adjustment measures carried out during the Sixth Plan, especially in the form of rapid import substitution in the oil sector, the balance of payments situation improved substantially with the trade deficit declining to 3.1 per cent of GDP in 1984-85 and the current account deficit to 1.6 per cent of GDP. In spite of this very substantial improvement, the Economic Surveys of recent years had predicted a difficult balance of payments situation for the latter half of the decade on account of an expected deceleration in indigenous oil production, protectionist tendencies in international trade, the bunching of repayment obligations on past borrowings from the IMF and other sources, the unfavourable climate for concessional assistance and uncertainties about the inflow of remittances from Indians working abroad.

8.2 These adverse factors made their presence felt in 1985-86 when, according to DGCI&S data, exports (net of crude oil exports) increased by only 5.7 per cent in rupee terms, imports rose by 15.1 per cent and trade deficit increased sharply to Rs. 8747 crores. The increase in foreign exchange reserves, in rupee terms, was less than one-half the increment in the preceding year. In anticipation of the emerging pressures on the balance of payments, the Government undertook a series of corrective measures during the course of 1985-86 and 1986-87 to boost the growth of exports and curb the increase in imports. A wide range of export enhancing initiatives were launched during this period. On the import side the focus was on measures to encourage indigenous production of key bulk import items such as sugar, edible oils and fertilizers. These measures, together with the sharp fall in international prices of crude oil contributed to the healthy increase of 17.3 per cent in exports, in rupee terms, in April—November, 1986 over April—November, 1985 and the curbing of import expansion to only 1.4 per cent over the same period. Excluding crude oil, exports increased by 19.6 per cent. As a result, the trade deficit in April—November, 1986 showed a decline of 18.3 per cent or Rs. 1001 crores as compared to value attained in April—November, 1985.

8.3 These recent trends in the country's external trade account are clearly welcome, but they should not induce any complacency. Full balance of payments data are not available beyond 1984-85 but the available information suggests significant balance of payments pressure in the current year despite the improvement on trade account. Overall foreign exchange reserves, movements in which reflect the net result of all transactions in the external sector of the economy, recorded a decline of Rs. 160 crores by the end of January, 1987 as compared to increases of Rs 577 crores and Rs. 1271 crores in 1985-86 and 1984-85 respectively. This suggests that the improvement on the trade account was offset by negative factors such as the increase in debt service payments and a possible slackening in the flow of remittances from Indians working abroad. However, the overall foreign exchange reserves position continues to be comfortable with holdings equivalent to over four months' import requirements.

Balance of Payments and Foreign Exchange Reserves

8.4 We now have the balance of payments data available for all the years of the Sixth Five Year Plan and key indicators are shown in table 8.1. Following the second oil shock, the balance of payments position became especially difficult during the first two years of the Sixth Plan. The situation started to improve in 1982-83 and the improvement continued in the subsequent years of the Plan. As a percentage of GDP at current market prices, exports posted increase from year to year except during 1983-84 while both imports and the trade deficit recorded continuous decline except during 1984-85. There was a declining trend in net invisibles as a per cent of GDP throughout the Sixth Plan period largely on account of the fact that while gross invisibles receipts increased at a compound rate of 15.2 per cent, payments increased at a much higher rate of 25.5 per cent. The current account deficit rose to a peak of 1.9 per cent of GDP in 1981-82 and then declined subsequently as adjustment measures took hold.

8.5 Balance of payments data for the full fiscal year 1985-86 are not yet available. But the small increase in total foreign exchange reserves in 1985-86 compared with the preceding year and the large trade deficit (DGCI&S trade statistics) during 1985-86 at Rs. 8747 crores as against Rs. 5318 crores in 1984-85 testify to the pressure on India's external payments position during 1985-86. Foreign exchange reserves, including gold and SDRs, increased by Rs. 577 crores in 1985-86, which was less than one half of the increase of Rs. 1271 crores in the preceding year. Excluding capital transactions with the IMF, reserves at the end of 1985-86 were higher by Rs. 904 crores, compared with Rs. 1208 crores rise over previous year (Table 8.2).

In SDR terms, total foreign exchange reserves stood at SDR 5728 million at end-March, 1986 and SDR 6004 million at the end of March, 1985. The country's overall foreign exchange reserves thus declined by SDR 276 million in 1985-86 in contrast with an increase of SDR 696 million during 1984-85.

8.6 The available DGCI&S data on foreign trade, partial information on invisibles and movements in foreign exchange reserves suggest that the balance of payments continued to be under strain in the current financial year. In spite of a 18.3 per cent decline in the trade deficit in the first eight months of the current year, total foreign exchange reserves declined by Rs. 160 crores between end-March, 1986 and end-January, 1987 as against a fall of Rs. 324 crores in the same period of the previous year. Net invisible receipts are not anticipated to increase in 1986-87 in view of the sharp fall in the international prices of crude oil which, in turn, has further dampened economic activity in the oil-based economies of West Asia and private transfers from that area.

8.7 With respect to non-factor services, travel and transfer payments have emerged as important sources of foreign exchange receipts in recent years. In the current financial year earnings from tourism are expected to go up considerably in view of the significant increase in tourist arrivals in the country. Foreign tourist arrivals in India crossed the one million mark in a single calendar year for the first time in 1986. If an integrated approach is adopted through improvement in existing infrastructure, enhancement of the facilities at important tourist spots of particular interest to foreign tourists and devising suitable incentives for those associated with tourism sector, the earnings from this sector can be increased rapidly in the coming years. Current transfer receipts consisting mainly of remittances by expatriates, played an important part in the improvement of the balance of payments in the Sixth Plan period. Future prospects are less encouraging mainly because of the slowdown of economic activity in West Asia. As for net investment income, there has been a steady increase in net payments on account of mounting interest payments on foreign loans and credits in recent years and this trend is likely to continue.

8.8 Capital inflows to deposit accounts from non-resident Indians have continued to provide substantial support to our balance of payments position. The interest rates offered on Non-Resident (External) Rupee Account (NRER) deposits continued to have a premium of 2 per cent over the rates applicable to domestic deposits of comparable maturities. The rates of interest on Foreign Currency Non-Resident Accounts (FCNR) were revised downwards twice in the current financial year, in May and September, 1986, in line with trends in interest rates in international capital markets. The rates of interest prevailing on February 12, 1987 on deposits in NRER and FCNR Accounts are given in table 8.3.

8.9 During 1985-86, accretions to foreign accounts at Rs. 1831.1 crores almost doubled from those of Rs. 950 crores in the preceding year. More than one half of the inflow to these deposits was accounted for by the dollar denominated deposits. The buoyancy in the inflow has continued in the current financial year also and accretions upto December, 1986 have amounted to Rs. 1739.3 crores compared with an inflow of Rs. 1209.3 crores in the same period of the previous year. In this period also the dollar denominated deposits at Rs. 1074.5 crores contributed to more than one-half of the increase. Pound denominated deposits have increased marginally by Rs. 11.3 crores. NRER deposits include accrued interest also. If adjustment is made for the interest included in these deposits, the inflow would work out to be lower. Table 8.4 shows the outstanding amount under these accounts.

8.10 The external value of the Rupee continued to be determined in relation to a weighted basket of currencies of India's major trading partners with Pound sterling as the intervention currency. The exchange rate between Rupee and Pound sterling has been adjusted from time to time in line with changes in exchange rates of currencies in the basket. The latest adjustment was made on February 12, 1987 when the middle rate was fixed at Rs. 19.80 per Pound sterling.

Imports

8.11 According to DGCI&S trade statistics, imports at Rs. 19759.43 crores in 1985-86 showed an increase of 15.1 per cent over the preceding year—a significantly faster growth than the 8.5 per cent increase recorded in 1984-85. In US dollars, however, imports increased at the lower rate of 11.8 per cent in contrast with a decline of 5.7 per cent during the preceding year. Imports during 1985-86 in rupee terms were higher mainly because of increases in the imports of capital goods, iron & steel, medicinal and pharmaceutical products and non-ferrous metals. Imports of petroleum, petroleum products and related material displayed a fall both in volume and value. In contrast with an increase of 15.4 per cent in 1984-85, the unit value of petroleum imports fell by 4.4 per cent during 1985-86 following a softening of crude oil prices in the international market. Non-oil imports recorded substantially higher rate of growth of 25.6 per cent in 1985-86 compared with an increase of 7 per cent in the previous year.

8.12 In the first six months of the current financial year, imports have risen marginally by 1.1 per cent in sharp contrast to an increase of 24.5 per cent in the corresponding period of 1985-86. There was a conspicuous fall in the imports of edible oils, finished fertilizers, sugar and petroleum and petroleum products. While the sharp decline in the value of imported POL products was mainly attributable to the steep fall in the international prices for crude oil, the reductions in imports of edible oils, sugar and fertilizers reflected the success of the Government's policies to encourage import substitution in these areas.

8.13 The imports of capital goods, iron and steel, medicinal and pharmaceutical products, organic and inorganic chemicals and pearls, precious and semi-precious stones recorded significant increases. Non-oil imports, as a whole, went up substantially by 24.9 per cent during April—September, 1986 whilst the value of imports of petroleum, petroleum products and related material fell by 58.1 per cent.

8.14 Table 8.5 shows the commodity composition of imports during 1984-85, 1985-86 and the first six months of 1985-86 and 1986-87. The data, compiled by DGCI&S from customs returns, are likely to be revised as and when additional information is received.

8.15 A graphic presentation of the commodity composition of imports during the last three years is given in chart attached. The share of petroleum imports declined from 31.6 per cent in 1984-85 to 25.3 per cent in 1985-86 which is the lowest since the second oil shock of 1979-80. The fall in the international prices of crude oil in the latter part of 1985-86 partly accounted for the decline. In the first half of 1986-87, the gross imports of petroleum, petroleum products and related material were markedly down by 58.1 per cent over the corresponding period of 1985-86 mainly because of a significant fall of 52.1 per cent in the unit value which, in turn, resulted in import savings of about Rs. 1200 crores during that period. The volume of imports also declined by 12.5 per cent. The share of cereals and cereal preparations declined further to less than half per cent of the total imports during 1985-86 reflecting the comfortable stock position of foodgrains. In fact vigorous efforts were made to export wheat as excess stocks were available for disposal.

8.16 The share of edible oils also declined to 3.1 per cent in 1985-86 from 5.4 per cent in 1984-85 as the value of imports of edible oils fell by 33.3 per cent during the year. This was mainly due to a fall in import volume of 20.8 per cent, reflecting the Government strategy to restrict imports and encourage indigenous production. The decline in imports has continued in the first half of current financial year.

8.17 As the imports of fertilizers and fertilizer raw materials declined by 18.5 per cent, its share in total imports fell from 7.9 per cent in 1984-85 to 5.6 per cent in 1985-86. The decline in the value of imports in 1985-86 was largely due to a 26 per cent fall in import volume. The reduction in fertilizer imports reflected the Government's success in increasing indigenous production. In April—September, 1986 while the imports of crude fertilizers have gone up by 24.1 per cent, those of finished fertilizers have declined by 35.3 per cent.

8.18 Imports of iron and steel went up substantially by 30.8 per cent in 1985-86 to account for 6.2 per cent of the total imports compared with a share of 5.5 per cent in 1984-85. The increase in the unit value of imports by 22.9 per cent was the principal reason for higher import value; the volume of iron and steel imports increased only by 6.4 per cent. During April—September, 1986 also these imports have shown a brisk increase of 47.9 per cent as the domestic production has failed to keep pace with the rising demand, partly on account of power shortage in the steel producing region of the country.

8.19 The value of capital goods imports rose by 16.3 per cent in 1985-86. As a result, the share of capital goods imports increased to 18.7 per cent in 1985-86 from 18.5 per cent in 1984-85. The rising trend has continued during the current financial year also with imports moving up by 46.3 per cent in April—September, 1986 over the corresponding period of the preceding year. Higher imports of capital goods can be attributed to the buoyancy in the climate for industrial investment and the accent on the modernisation and upgradation of technology.

Sources of Imports

8.20 The composition of imports, by source, during the last three years is presented in chart attached. The pattern of imports in these years has remained almost unchanged. A little over one half of the imports came from the OECD countries, about one fifth from the OPEC, one sixth from developing countries (non-OPEC) and around an eighth from Eastern Europe. The decline in the share of OPEC countries continued in 1985-86 primarily because of the fall in the international prices of crude oil. The share of OECD countries rose to 53.4 per cent in 1985-86 from 48.7 per cent in 1984-85 partly because of higher imports of capital goods from these countries. The imports from Eastern Europe were a shade higher by 0.3 per cent in 1985-86 leading to a fall in their share to 10.9 per cent as compared with 12.6 per cent in 1984-85.

8.21 The United States was the single largest source of India's imports in 1985-86 not only within the OECD group but also among all countries. She regained this position by displacing the USSR to the second place. Imports from the USA increased by 22.7 per cent during 1985-86 whereas those from the USSR registered a decline of 6.5 per cent. Among the other important countries in the OECD group, the shares of Belgium, the UK, France and the FRG moved up while those of the Netherlands and Canada declined. The share of developing countries. (non-OPEC) declined during the year to 18 per cent from 19.3 per cent in 1984-85 mainly because of a fall in the share of Asian developing countries.

Exports

8.22 After a record increase of 21.3 per cent in 1984-85, exports in 1985-86 fell by 7.1 per cent. Much of this decline in growth is attributable to the stoppage of crude oil export after April, 1985 following the setting up of the requisite refining capacity within the country. Thus, exports net of crude oil increased by 5.7 per cent in rupee terms compared with an increase of 20.5 per cent registered in 1984-85; the growth in US dollar terms was 2.7 per cent in 1985-86. The slow growth of world trade in 1985 and increasing protectionist barriers erected by the industrial countries created an unfavourable environment for export growth by developing countries including India. The marked fall in the international prices of some of the commodities of export interest to India has also constrained export earnings. The important commodites which contributed to the increase in non-oil exports during 1985-86 included cashew kernels, coffee and coffee substitutes, spices, marine products, raw cotton, rice, iron ore, readymade garments and pearls, precious and semi-precious stones. There was a decline in the exports of oil cakes, tea and mate, tobacco, cotton fabrics, leather and leather manufactures, engineering goods and jute manufactures.

8.23 During the first half of the current financial year, exports on a provisional basis have shown a significant growth of 13.1 per cent compared with a marginal increase of 0.7 per cent in the same period last year. In terms of the US dollar, exports were higher by 10.6 per cent. Non-oil exports rose by 16.1 per cent in rupee terms and 13.6 per cent in US dollar terms. The commodities showing export value growth include coffee and coffee substitutes, tobacco, spices, cashew kernels, oil cakes, raw cotton, marine products, leather and leather manufactures, ready-made garments, gems and jewellery and cotton fabrics. The exports of rice, tea and mate and jute manufactures have fallen. The commodity composition of exports, in recent years, is shown in table 8.6 and the attached chart.

8.24 The share of crude oil in total exports fell sharply to just 1.2 per cent in 1985-86 as its exports tapered off and ceased after April, 1985 due to the commissioning of suitable refining capacity within the country. Only Rs. 135.15 crores worth of crude oil was exported in 1985-86 as against exports of Rs. 1563.16 crores in 1984-85. There will not be any export of crude oil in the near future.

8.25 After a decline of 4.5 per cent in 1984-85, the exports of pearls, precious and semi-precious stones displayed an impressive increase of 24 per cent in 1985-86 and as a result accounted for 13 per cent of the total exports. The increase followed a pick up of demand in the importing countries. The rise in exports has continued in the first half of the current year when these exports registered an increase of 33.5 per cent over April—September, 1985. Government on its part has announced a number of measures to help exporters exploit the export potential particularly in the field of plain and studded jewellery. The details of these measures are listed separately in the section on export promotion measures. For a major breakthrough in exports the Government's efforts need to be supplemented by the trade through higher productivity and better product and design adaptation to the foreign demand by an outward looking attitude.

NOTES : 1. All figures are provisional.

2. Total exports for 1984-85 have since been revised to Rs. 11855.15 crores.

3. Total exports (provisional) amounted to Rs. 6819.14 crores during April—November, 1985 and Rs. 7996.93 crores during April—November, 1986. Commodity-wise details are not available.

8.26 The share of tea exports declined to 5.6 per cent in 1985-86 from 6.5 per cent in the preceding year consequent to a fall in tea exports by 20.2 per cent during the year. The fall in exports was wholly contributed by the decline in the unit value realisation in 1985-86 due to downward trend in the international prices. The decline in exports has spilled over in April—September, 1986 when it fell by 19.2 per cent over April—September, 1985 because of further drop in unit price in the international market and also due to decline in the export of packet teas and tea bags.

8.27 The share of marine products in total exports rose to 3.5 per cent in 1985-86 from 3.3 per cent in the previous year as its exports grew by 1.9 per cent during the year. This increase was mainly contributed by a 3.3 per cent increase in export volume. The unit value was lower by 1.4 per cent. The revival of demand from the importing countries was the primary reason for higher exports during the year. However, during April—September, 1986 the exports registered a higher increase of 11.3 per cent.

8.28 The exports of eight other agro-based commodities taken together (coffee, oil cakes, tobacco, cashew kernels, spices, sugar, raw cotton and rice) went up during 1985-86 and consequently their share in total exports also rose to 11.3 per cent from 10 per cent in 1984-85. Cashew kernel exports moved up by 19.8 per cent on top of an increase of 19.2 per cent in 1984-85. The increase in volume by 15.7 per cent primarily contributed to higher exports of cashew kernels during 1985-86. During April—September, 1986 exports have spurted by 55.7 per cent over the same period of last year. The boom in the exports can be maintained during the remaining part of the year if the industry is provided with raw cashewnuts to keep it fully employed throughout the year, since the domestic production of cashewnuts is not adequate even to fulfil a third of its requirements. There does not appear to be any problem on the demand side. An increase was also recorded in the exports of rice by 14 per cent during 1985-86. The contribution of unit value increase was 15.3 per cent, which more than compensated for the 1.1 per cent fall in export volume. However, the decline of 10.5 per cent in exports was recorded in the first six months of current financial year also.

8.29 Despite a 18.3 per cent fall in volume, export earnings from spices went up by 23.4 per cent in 1985-86. This performance was quite impressive in the backdrop of a 77.1 per cent increase in exports in the previous year. The boom in exports has spilled over in April—September, 1986 with an increase of 152.7 per cent. Uptrend in the international price has benefited our exporters. For a sustained growth in spices exports, it is imperative that productivity is improved considerably, adequate exportable surplus is generated and the country remains competitive in the international market. The downtrend in the exports of oil cakes continued for the second successive year with a fall of 9.8 per cent in 1985-86, essentially because of a slump of 19.8 per cent in export volume. The poor performance of these in recent years has been largely on account of strict regulation of quality of the product imposed by the importing countries, Exports of tobacco were also lower by 17.8 per cent in 1985-86 on account of a decline in the volume of exports. The trend has fortunately reversed itself in April—September, 1986 with exports increasing by 102.7 per cent over the same period of last year partly because of abolition of export duty on unmanufactured tobacco. Coffee exports grew by 12.1 per cent in 1985-86 and the uptrend has continued in the first half of the current financial year. Raw cotton exports moved up by 10.2 per cent in 1985-86 solely because of an increase of 38.4 per cent in unit value. During April—September, 1986 also these exports showed a substantial rise of 82.1 per cent over April—September, 1985 because of comfortable stocks following consecutive good crops in the last two years. The Government has announced a long term policy for cotton exports so as to reduce uncertainty not only with regard to availability of the commodity for exports but also in respect of the assured remunerative prices for the farmers to prevent a decline in area under the crop.

8.30 The exports of readymade garments continued to grow in 1985-86 when it registered an increase of 9.6 per cent to account for 9.2 per cent of the total exports compared with 7.8 per cent in the previous year. Exports of cotton fabrics were lower by 17.5 per cent in 1985-86 due to a 23.5 per cent decline in the volume of exports. The unit value realisation was higher by 7.8 per cent. The reduced import of cotton fabrics by the USSR was the main cause of lower level of exports during 1985-86. Exports have recovered by 25.3 per cent in the first half of the current financial year over April—September, 1985.

8.31 The exports of engineering goods fell by 13.6 per cent in 1985-86 which was lower than the rise of 16 per cent in the preceding year. The level of exports at Rs. 760.3 crores during the year was nowhere near the peak level of Rs. 938.9 crores achieved in 1981-82. In fact, exports recorded a continuous decline in the next two years to Rs. 807.1 crores and Rs. 758.7 crores in 1982-83 and 1983-84 respectively. The lacklustre performance of the engineering exports in recent years has been due to many factors which, inter alia, include strong domestic demand for the industry's products, excessive protection of the domestic industry from outside competition, failure to modernise at a faster pace, high cost of inputs and raw materials, inefficiency and lower productivity, lack of quality consciousness and, above all, the lack of export culture in the industry. Besides, engineering exports have been constrained by adverse international factors, such as slow economic recovery in the western countries, the fall in international prices of oil which has induced OPEC countries to restrict their developmental programmes and the continued debt problems of the developing countries. A number of steps have been taken by the Government to remove some of the disadvantages faced by the industry like making available raw materials at international prices, liberalisation of industrial licensing to expand the capacity for the industry to have the benefits of economies of scale, financial incentives for faster modernisation, procedural simplification, etc. In April—September, 1986 engineering exports have risen by 17.5 per cent over the same period of the preceding year.

8.32 Iron ore exports grew by 20.7 per cent in value and 5.9 per cent in volume in 1985-86 in spite of tough competition from other exporting countries, particularly Australia and Brazil. Consequently its share in total exports increased to 5 per cent from 3.9 per cent in 1984-85. The export of 27 million tonnes in 1985-86 has been the highest level achieved so far in any single year. To maintain the same tempo of exports in the coming years efforts are being made to improve the infrastructure facilities at different ports and to develop new mines.

8.33 Exports of leather and leather manufactures declined by 29.9 per cent in 1985-86 because of slackening of demand in the importing countries and increasing international competition. The rise in prices of raw materials has blunted the competitive edge of our exporters. For sustained exports the requisite raw material would need to be provided at reasonable prices. In April---September, 1986 the exports have, however, increased by 8.7 per cent.

8.34 Exports of projects and services have been quite important in the recent past. These exports broadly comprise three components, viz., construction and civil engineering projects; industrial turnkey projects; and consultancy services. With a large endowment of trained technical manpower, India is in a position to offer total range of services, including process design, engineering, procurement, construction, supervision, commissioning, project management, training, etc., in diverse fields like power generation and transmission system, petro-chemicals, steel plants, textiles, infrastructure, etc. There are about 200 consultancy organisations in the country, both in public and private sector, which can provide consultancy for a very broad range of activities.

8.35 There was a boom in construction project opportunities in the oil producing countries of West Asia after the oil price increase in early seventies. These countries undertook a large construction programme to set up massive infrastructure for faster development. Indian companies were able to secure projects worth about Rs. 5000 crores till 1981-82. Most of these projects were, however, concentrated in a few countries. In the last few years, there has been a decline in construction contracts secured by our companies because of the emergence of intense competition in the Gulf and African countries due to global recession, the long drawnout Iran-Iraq conflict, the fall in oil revenues of OPEC and the foreign exchange problems being faced by many African countries.

8.36 For turnkey projects, the market is more diversified but the total value of contracts secured by Indian companies is very small. Only Rs. 82 crores of turnkey contracts were secured in 1985 compared with Rs. 222 crores secured in 1983. One of the major problems faced by Indian companies has been their inability to offer credit terms in line with those offered by developed countries.

8.37 Similarly, the share of India in consultancy services in the international market is still very small, though our companies have made a beginning in developed countries also. Export earnings on account of technical and managerial services have been around Rs. 50 crores during last few years.

8.38 Projects and services have also been identified as one of the thrust industries having a good export potential. As a part of overall strategy to increase exports, a number of incentives have been announced by the Government to boost projects and consultancy exports which, inter alia, include project assistance of 10 per cent of net foreign exchange earnings from the service portion of the contract, market development assistance, etc.

8.39 Overall export performance during 1985-86 was disappointing not only compared to the export performance in the Sixth Plan period but also with respect to the growth in exports envisaged for the Seventh Plan period at 6.8 per cent per annum in volume terms. Improvement in export performance is essential to achieve the Seventh Plan target for exports and relieve the strain on the country's balance of payments position. With this in view, the Government has taken wide-ranging steps which are detailed separately. The Government's initiatives have started showing results as in the first eight months of the current financial year exports have risen by 17.3 per cent against a negative growth rate of 3.4 per cent in the same period last year. With imports increasing at a smaller rate of 1.4 per cent, the trade deficit in the first eight months of the current year at Rs. 4470 crores was lower by Rs. 1001 crores.

Direction of Exports

8.40 The composition of exports by destination from 1983-84 to 1985-86 is given in attached chart. The destination-wise pattern of exports over these years has remained almost unchanged except for the 'other' category which declined to 4.9 per cent in 1985-86 from 15.7 per cent in the previous year due to stoppage of crude oil exports which were not being booked by destination. About half of the exports have gone to OECD countries in the last two years, a little less than a fifth to Eastern Europe, a seventh to developing countries and less than a twelfth to the OPEC.

8.41 The exports to OECD countries increased from 44.9 per cent in 1984-85 to 51.5 per cent in 1985-86 due to increase in exports by 7.5 per cent in 1985-86. At 18.1 per cent of the total exports going to the USA exceeded the share of exports accounted for by the USSR. Exports to the USA rose by 13 per cent in 1985-86 compared with a 3.1 per cent increase in the case of the USSR. The share of Eastern Europe further increased from 19.1 per cent in 1984-85 to 21.2 per cent in 1985-86 as the exports going to the region showed an increase of 4.2 per cent. Similarly, exports to developing countries (non-OPEC) rose to 14.7 per cent in 1985-86 from 12.3 per cent in the preceding year following a 12.1 per cent increase in exports going to this region. On the other hand, there was a fall in exports going to the OPEC region by 9.7 per cent.

Export Promotion Measures And Developments in Trade Policy

8.42 A multi-pronged strategy has been evolved for promotion of exports to achieve the goals envisaged in Seventh Five Year Plan. The broad strategy has been to identify sectors, industries and products having a good export potential and provide for a policy framework conducive to their export growth. Fourteen broad sectors have been identified for making special thrust in overseas markets. These sectors are : tea, especially in packaged and value added forms; cereals, in particular wheat; processed foods, including fruits and juices, meat and meat products and fresh fruits and vegetables; marine products, especially in value added form; iron ore; leather and leather manufactures, with an emphasis on the latter; handicrafts and jewellery; capital goods and consumer durables; electronic goods and computer software; basic chemicals; fabrics, piece goods and made ups; readymade garments; woollen fabrics and knitwear; and projects and services. Within the above sectors, specific products/product groups have been identified, e.g., in the engineering sector 35 industries have been identified. Similarly, certain countries have been selected in consultation with the export promotion councils, commodity boards and authorities for making special export promotion efforts. An integrated programme for promotion in these areas is also being evolved. For a co-ordinated approach on matters concerning exports and for speedy decision making, institutional arrangements upto the highest level have been established within the Government.

8.43 Efforts have to be made to promote exports of both primary commodities and manufactured products. While for commodities the volume of exports has to be raised, for higher unit value realisations exports in processed and value added forms would be necessary. The major growth, however, has to come from the manufacturing sector. In this sector, the strategy of exporting the available surplus will not suffice. It will be necessary to produce goods that are in demand in the international markets, latest in technology and use of materials, fulfilling the requirements of quality and performance, and at the same time competitive in prices.

8.44 In the light of these factors and after intensive consultations with trade and industry, a series of principles and guidelines have been approved by the Government recently. These include :

— a concessional rate of duty on imports of modern capital goods and machinery for export production or for improving the quality of products for exports, where such capital goods are not produced within the country;

- extension of the scheme of supply of raw materials at international prices as are operating presently for steel, rubber and certain chemicals to other areas including aluminium, where they form a significant part of the cost;
- a liberal approach, on a case by case basis, in making available contemporary technology for the thrust sectors, where necessary linked to export obligations;
- permission, on a case by case basis, in selected areas to large firms to manufacture products which are in the small scale reserved sector, provided 60 per cent of the production is exported and such units are set up in backward districts;
- full remission of excise and other duties borne by the products that are exported subject to certain exceptions;
- exemption from the requirements of licensing of any expansion in capacity exclusively for export production; and
- permission, in principle, to allow use of 5 to 10 per cent of the net foreign exchange earnings by exporters for export promotion under a new blanket permit scheme, to be announced by the Reserve Bank of India.

8.45 Bearing these guidelines in mind and with a view to imparting sustained impetus to the over-riding goal of export promotion, the Government has undertaken a series of initiatives which are summarised below :

Fiscal and Financial Measures

(a) New Cash Compensatory Support Scheme : A new scheme of CCS has been introduced with effect from July 1, 1986. The grant of CCS under the new scheme will be based on six principles. Firstly, the refund of indirect taxes including sales tax, etc. on inputs that are not refundable through the duty drawback mechanism will continue to be the main element for determination of the CCS rates. The incidence of indirect taxes will be worked out not only on the basis of unrebated indirect taxes paid on the inputs directly used in the production of export product at the last stage of production but also at earlier intermediate stages. Secondly, compensation for product/market development will be given in a highly selective manner. Thirdly, compensation for higher incidence of rate of interest on working capital for export production and pre-shipment/post-shipment credits has been taken out of the CCS scheme and will be provided under a separate scheme being operated by the Reserve Bank of India. Fourthly, for fruits and vegetables which are perishable in nature, special element of compensation will be the high cost of transportation within India. Fifthly, for handicraft items, value added by labour will be the main factor for determining CCS rates. And lastly, there would be neutralisation of discriminatory higher freight rates. Under the scheme, approximately 230 items have been granted CCS in the eight product groups viz., engineering goods, chemicals and allied products, plastic goods, agricultural products and processed food items, leather goods, sports goods, textiles and handicrafts. Seven levels of CCS rates namely, 5 per cent, 8 per cent, 10 per cent, 12 per cent, 15 per cent, 18 per cent and 20 per cent have been prescribed. The rates of CCS in respect of all product groups excepting cotton textile items will be valid up to March 31, 1989. The CSS rates for cotton textile items will be valid up to December 31, 1988.

(b) Duty Drawback System : The Government introduced a new simplified procedure of drawback disbursement at all customs houses from February, 1986. Drawback claims are now sanctioned within twenty four hours of presentation and the amount is then transferred to the bank account of the exporter within fifteen days. The drawback rates for various export items have been critically reviewed taking into consideration the budgetary changes and the data furnished by the trade and those collected from various other sources. A new rationalised drawback schedule has been brought into effect from June 1, 1986. Some of the basic features of the rationalisation and simplification effected in the duty drawback system are indicated below :

—Certain thrust industries which have substantial exports or export potential were specially identified and after careful study of the duty suffered on various inputs, considerable improvements over the earlier drawback rates have been effected. In the garment sector, a revised rate of drawback of 10 per cent was announced on March 1, 1986. In leather industry also enhanced rates have now been fixed and include finished leather (revised from 4 per cent to 8 per cent), leather apparels (from 4 per cent to 7 per cent), leather shoes (from 4 per cent to 6 per cent), and leather uppers (4 per cent to 7 per cent).

Some of the other important items where increases have been effected are woollen hand-made carpets, plastic articles, instant coffee, hand-made fabrics, sports goods, lead acid storage batteries, tools of high speed steel and certain categories of chemicals and paints.

—In the 1986 Budget, the facility of MODVAT was made available in respect of 37 specified chapters of the revised Central Excise & Tariff Act whereby the final products get relieved of the input duties levied at various intermediary stages. Such products can be exported in bond and in that event, the duty relief in the form of drawback would be restricted only to basic customs and auxiliary duties suffered, if any, by the inputs. In such category fall the engineering goods, pipes and tubes, dropforged hand tools, tool tips, motor starters, manufactures of metals, etc. Since the excise duty and countervailing duty components have been taken care of through MODVAT, the drawback rates, wherever fixed, are understandably lower compared to the earlier rates.

—The content based approach followed in earlier years has been avoided and revised rates/entries in the drawback schedule will cut down drastically the need for detailed physical or chemical testing before exports. For textiles, articles of plastics and manufactures of metals, this testing would be greatly reduced. This will quicken disbursement of the drawback claims by custom houses in general.

—For a number of new items, all-industry rates have been fixed for the first time. These include hukkah tobacco paste, household articles of plastics, imitation plastic jewellery, copper/brass utensils and some specified drugs.

—In a few areas, residuary entries have been withdrawn but specific important products have been identified in those groups which have potential for export and rates have been fixed for them on a more realistic basis. This rationalisation has brought down the number of enteries in the schedule to a considerable extent.

(c) Deduction in respect of profits for exports under section 80 HHC of the Income Tax Act has been further liberalised to (a) 4 per cent of the net foreign exchange realisation; and (b) 50 per cent of so much of the profits derived from exports of such goods or merchandise as exceeds the amount referred to in clause (a); provided that the deduction under this sub-section shall not exceed the profits derived from the exports of such goods or merchandise.

(d) The rates of interest on pre-shipment and post-shipment credit for exports was reduced in August, 1986 from 12 per cent to a concessional rate of 9.5 per cent for a period below 180 days for all the products.

(e) In pursuance of the computer software policy the EXIM bank has decided to provide, inter alia, foreign currency and rupee term loans as also working capital loans to those entrepreneurs who are in a position to export 3.5 times of the c.i.f. value of their imports of computer hardware and/or software.

(f) All India financial institutions viz., IDBI, ICICI and IFCI have been operating a special scheme for the 100 per cent export oriented units under which incentive is provided to these units in the form of interest rebate of 1.5 per cent on the applicable rate of interest depending on their actual performance in meeting export obligation. The financial institutions have now announced a scheme to provide incentives to industrial concerns for improving their export performance under which a unit with export sales of 25 per cent or above in relation to its total sales of own manufactured goods will be entitled for an interest rebate to the extent of one fifth of its interest payments on rupee loans provided by the institutions. The rebate is subject to the floor interest rate of 10 per cent on the relative loans. The scheme is applicable to all loans granted on or after December 1, 1986.

(g) In order to improve the quality of production and upgradation of technologies import of machinery and equipment not domestically produced has been put on OGL for leather goods manufacture, garment manufacture, diamond cutting and polishing, selected equipment for processing and packaging marine products and modern coffee curing machines. A concessional rate of customs duty is now available in respect of specified items of such machinery and equipment.

(h) Export duty has been abolished on unmanufactured tobacco and excise duty withdrawn in case of branded cigars, cheroots and cigarilloes.

(i) For promoting exports of tea in bags and packets, tea bags have been exempted from excise duty and import duty on filter paper for the manufacture of tea bags has been abolished. Higher rate of CCS is allowed on tea bags, packet tea and instant tea. An excise rebate scheme for export of tea has been introduced. The Tea Development Scheme has been brought on par with the new Deposit Account Scheme introduced in the current year.

(j) The Reserve Bank of India has launched a new forward cover facility to cover exchange risk on export transactions.

(k) To promote exports of projects and consultancy, a scheme to grant 50 per cent subsidy for submission of tenders for overseas projects, subsidy for establishing consultancy offices abroad for a period of five years and 10 per cent of project assistance for consultancy export has been provided. Further, under the Income Tax Act, the deduction admissible in case of profits from project exports has been raised from 25 per cent to 50 per cent.

(l) The new industrial undertakings established in the Free Trade Zones have been allowed to avail the benefit of tax holiday for any five consecutive years falling within a period of 8 years from the year in which the undertaking begins to manufacture or produce.

(m) A textile modernisation fund of Rs. 750 crores has been created for the facilitation of the modernisation of the textile industry.

Measures relating to Industrial Licensing Policy :

(a) In selected areas industrial licensing policy has been liberalised with a view to make industry competitive internationally in regard to scales of production and technology. The policy of broad-banding has been extended to a large number of items particularly in identified thrust areas so as to provide production units with requisite flexibility to adjust their production to the prevailing international demand.

(b) Exemption from the requirement of licensing has been granted since September, 1986 for any expansion of capacity exclusively for export production. Relaxation from the provisions of the MRTP Act has also been made.

(c) A liberal approach would be adopted for constant upgradation of technologies in the key sectors, particularly engineering goods, which would be linked to export obligation, if necessary.

Measures relating to Import—Export Policy :

(a) In 1985-86, a stable framework was provided for export growth by having a three year import-export policy which has been maintained in 1986-87.

(b) In December, 1986 the Government announced a computer software policy to encourage an integrated development of the computer software industry, to promote computer software exports and to popularise the use of computers as a tool for decision making. Salient features of the policy in regard to export and import include the following :

—The foreign exchange requirements of a software company for importing hardware and/or software of computer/computer based system can be met from the Central Government or through non-resident participation or by entitlement as a result of excess exports or through foreign participation or by any other source permitted by the RBI or by a combination of any of these options.

—Permission to import will carry a software export obligation. Export obligation has been fixed separately for each source of import finance as a percentage of the foreign exchange used.

—Export obligation will be fulfilled in a four year period. Cumulative export targets for the second and third years of the export obligation have also been fixed. There is provision for payment of penalty for shortfall in meeting the export obligation.

—30 per cent of excess software earnings made over and above the export obligation can be used by the software exporter for importing new computer systems, software and hardware sub-systems and/or augmenting his existing computer installation and computer spare parts.

(c) For promoting exports of gems and jewellery, the advance licensing scheme was extended in August, 1986 to cover gold for qualified exporters; production of 9,14 and 18 carat gold jewellery has been permitted; and import of sockets and frames for being studded has been allowed. Jewellery complexes are being established in Delhi and Bombay.

(d) Export processing zones at Madras and Falta have become operational.

(e) Parameters of policy for 100 per cent export oriented units for deep sea fishing have been finalised and 46 proposals for such units have been cleared.

(f) Several procedural changes have been made and a review of the Advance Licensing Scheme and the Pass Book Scheme for providing easy access to imports for export production has been undertaken. The Advance Licensing Scheme originally restricted duty free imports only for items included in Annexure I of Appendix 19 but now it is proposed to be extended to all imported inputs, including consumables.

(g) Powers have been delegated to the port officers to a much higher limit for clearance of cases of various categories of licences.

(h) A three year export policy for raw cotton was announced in October, 1986 which envisages a minimum annual export of six lakhs of bales of various types of cotton beginning from current 1986-87 season. The exports would be subject to a minimum price which will be decided by a high powered committee.

(i) On the pattern of gold replenishment scheme, in December, 1986 a new scheme for export of silver jewellery and articles was announced which provides for replenishment of pure silver to the extent of the quantity used in the manufacture of silver jewellery and articles exported.

(j) Cotton garments and textiles have been brought under the Scheme of Contract Registration with a view to provide an element of certainty to exporters in the matter of CCS.

(k) A Fashion Technology Institute for education, research and training in the areas of fashion design for garment manufacture has been decided to be set up in Delhi. It will be operative very soon.

External Assistance

8.46 Gross disbursement of external assistance increased from Rs. 2354 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 2938 crores in 1985-86. It is estimated that during 1986-87 there may be a further increase in such inflows to Rs. 3841 crores. Net assistance (net of debt servicing) received by India also showed an increase from Rs. 1178 crores in 1984-85 to Rs. 1571 crores in 1985-86. Net assistance is estimated to increase by about 43 per cent to Rs. 2241 crores in 1986-87. The details are given in table 8.7.

8.47 A consortium of Governments and institutions interested in extending development assistance to India met in Paris on June 16 and 17, 1986 under the chairmanship of World Bank. There was unanimous agreement at the meeting regarding need for concessional assistance to India. The meeting paid tribute to the quality of India's economic performance and management, and initiatives that have been taken in respect of fiscal, industrial and trade policies to accelerate growth and alleviate poverty. India's success in controlling inflation and her prudent management of debt was commended.

8.48 The total aid pledges indicated at the meeting were of the order of 4.5 billion dollars. While this included an element of increase on account of change in the value of dollar, even in terms of last year's exchange rate the increase was 8 per cent. In SDR terms, the total aid pledged was SDR 3.9 billion as against SDR 3.8 billion last year. Among countries which substantially increased their commitments were West Germany and Japan. The Asian Development Bank and Nordic Investment Bank pledged aid to India for the first time.

8.49 World Bank group lending to India during the Bank fiscal year 1986 (July 1985 to June 1986) was US dollar 2368.3 million as against US dollar 2346.9 million in the previous year. The IBRD lending to India in FY 1986 was US dollar 1743.2 million as against US dollar 1674 million in FY 1985, and the IDA lending in these years was US dollar 625.1 million and US dollar 672.9 million respectively. India's share in total World Bank lending fell from 14.7 per cent in FY 1985 to 13.2 per cent in FY 1986 in the case of IBRD loans and from 22.2 per cent to 19.9 per cent in the case of IDA credits.

8.50 The eighth replenishment of the International Development Association is scheduled to cover the period extending from 1st July, 1987 to 30th June, 1990, corresponding to World Bank fiscal years 1988 to 1990. Negotiations on IDA-8 have covered a number of issues, including the size of replenishment, lending terms, allocations and burden sharing. At the recent meeting of the IDA held on 15th December, 1986 the donors of IDA reached an agreement on the size of IDA-8. For these three years IDA is being provided with lending resources of US dollar 12.4 billion. Other proposals under consideration of the IDA include a reduction in final maturities from 50 years to 40 years for the "least developed countries" and to 35 years for other recipients. India has strongly opposed the hardening of IDA terms and the differentiation between "blend countries" and "least developed countries".

8.51 India has been one of the founder members of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and currently is the fourth largest contributor to its capital stock. Although eligible, India had, until this year, voluntarily refrained from borrowing from the ADB. With the stagnation in the level of fresh commitments of concessional aid and official capital flows from other multilateral sources, it was deemed prudent to diversify the country's access to multilateral capital flows. India, therefore, has now commenced to borrow, to begin with, from ADB's ordinary capital sources. The first loan agreement signed on May 20, 1986 between ICICI and ADB was for a loan of US dollar 100 million. The total quantum of lending from the ADB during the financial year 1986-87 (up to December, 1986) was of the order of US dollar 250 million.

8.52 In view of the deteriorating environment for official and concessional capital flows-bilateral and multilateral-greater recourse had to be made to external commercial borrowings in recent years subject to the maintenance of a safe debt service capability. Approvals for external commercial borrowings were of the order of Rs. 7258 crores in Sixth Plan, Rs. 1700 crores in 1985-86 and Rs. 649 crores during the first six months of 1986-87.

8.53 India's prudent policies with regard to the foreign debt and her record of sound economic management have enabled the country to obtain excellent terms for borrowings in international capital markets. There has been significant improvement in the terms obtained in recent past. This has been brought about mainly by the past record of India's debt service and repayment obligations and increasing appreciation of the economic policies of the Government. The high credit rating that is enjoyed by India could improve further with diversification of sources of borrowings.

8.54 As indicated in the last year's Economic Survey, debt service ratios relating to India's external debts have been rising since 1981-82. It is estimated that the country's debt service in 1985-86 on external debts on Government account, non-Government account, IMF drawals and commercial borrowings including supplier's credit amounted to about 17 per cent of the current receipts.

Outlook

8.55 Looking ahead, it seems clear that the adverse factors exerting pressure on the balance of payments can be expected to persist throughout the rest of the decade and into the 1990s. As pointed out in the last year's Survey, debt service on past borrowing is expected to increase in the years ahead. The flow of remittances from expatriate Indians may not be as buoyant as in the recent past. The recent relief from lower prices for imported oil could prove transitory as international oil prices recover from the trough of mid-1986 and as India's degree of self-sufficiency in petroleum declines further from the peak attained in 1984-85. Thus, for the foreseeable future the balance of payments will demand continuous and careful management.

8.56 The key to a viable balance of payment lies with strong and sustained growth of exports, of both goods and services and efficient import substitution. It is true that the environment for international trade is clouded with protectionist impediments and uncertainities. But the fact that India's exports account for hardly half a per cent of world exports suggest that the possibilities for growth are substantial even in difficult environment. To assure the realisation of this potential it is essential to maintain and even strengthen the thrust of the current policies aimed at improving the relative profitability of exports and systematically removing procedural and infrastructural bottlenecks to exporting. At the same time it has to be realised that the export performance cannot be realistically compartmentalised from the performance of the economy as a whole. Thus, sustained growth of India's manufactured exports can only be predicated on the base of a productive industrial sector, operating in a competitive, cost-conscious environment, with good opportunities for technological upgradation and able to reap available economies of scale. Nor should our export thrust be limited to commodities. Tourism earnings have been buoyant in recent years and should increase further if sufficient infrastructure facilities are available. In a nutshell, for India, export growth is not a luxury. It is a necessary prerequisite for assuring adequate foreign exchange earnings to maintain the tempo of economic development, without sacrificing the country's self-reliance.

8.57 With regard to imports the scope for efficient import substitution in key bulk import items remains substantial. Programmes for effective energy conservation command the highest priority. In the absence of major new discoveries of oil, it does not seem feasible to sustain growth in consumption of petroleum products at around 7 per cent per year, when indigenous production is only growing at about 4 per cent or so. Imports of machinery, raw materials and components are essential for our development. But we must ensure that the structure of customs tariffs and other indirect taxes on the one hand, and import licensing policy on the other, does not encourage unduly import dependent patterns of industrial development or inhibit the growth of efficient indigenous industries. At the same time, we must be careful to guard against the pitfall of setting up high-cost industries with outdated technologies which become a costly drag on the overall performance of the industrial sector as well as the economy as a whole.

PROBLEMS AND PROSPECTS

As we enter the third year of the Seventh Five Year Plan, the overall indicators of economic performance are encouraging. Aggregate economic growth in the first two years of the Plan averages around 5 per cent per year and the momentum of development is being sustained by the steady expansion of resources allocated for development expenditure. In the first three years of the Plan we are likely to fulfill more than 60 per cent of the five-year Central Plan target in real terms, a feat never accomplished in previous five-year plans. Real economic growth has averaged about 5 per cent a year in the last seven years as compared to the previous long term trend growth rate of 3.5 per cent. Clearly, the Indian economy has moved on to a higher growth path.

9.2 Industrial growth has accelerated in recent years and buoyant indicators of investment intentions augur well for future industrial expansion. Approvals for capital issues have reached record levels. Agricultural production has demonstrated commendable resilience in the face of three successive below-average monsoon. During the course of the current year there has also been a notable improvement in the balance of external trade with exports showing healthy growth and a sharp reduction in the increment in imports. Foreign exchange reserves are at a comfortable level. Aided by sweeping reforms in fiscal policy, revenue collections have demonstrated buoyancy with a specially sharp increase in income tax collections. The central objective of poverty alleviation has been furthered by a combination of higher average economic growth and enhancement of the major anti-poverty programmes. The poverty ratio declined from 48 per cent in 1977-78 to 37 per cent in 1984-85. Over the last two years the Government's anti-poverty programmes have been further strengthened.

9.3 The pace of industrial progress has quickened in recent years. According to the new 1980-81 based index of industrial production, which reflects trends in industry more accurately than the old 1970 based index, industrial growth accelerated to over 8.5 per cent in 1984-85 and 1985-86 from an average rate of 6.4 per cent in the preceding three years. Growth in the current year is also likely to be good. This improvement in industrial performance may be attributed in part to the reduction, in recent years, of procedural impediments to industrial expansion and the growing emphasis on capacity creation, technology upgradation, competition and more economic scales of production. The beneficial effects of some of the measures taken in the last two years will be felt in the future when investment intentions and approvals get translated into physical plants and these in turn, into increments in production. To maximize the benefits from removal of procedural hurdles, it is imperative that these measures are fully and vigorously carried out, with their implementation monitored with the help of feedback from the concerned industries.

9.4 The better record of industrial production also reflects the loosening of infrastructural bottlenecks. In the past, such constraints have often plagued the Indian economy. This year, the performance of key infrastructure sectors has been heartening. Electricity generation in April—December, 1986 was more than 10 per cent higher than the corresponding period of 1985. This year's plant load factor (PLF) for thermal power plants at 51.5 per cent is the highest in seven years. Revenue-earning railway freight recorded an increase of nearly 7 per cent in the first nine months of 1986-87 as compared to an annual rate of increase of about 4 per cent in the Sixth Plan period. Coal production in April—December, 1986 was almost 9 per cent higher than in April—December, 1985 and compares with an average growth rate of 7 per cent per year in the Sixth Plan. Despite these welcome improvements, infrastructure, especially power, continues to constrain industrial production, particularly in certain power-scarce regions. Sustained and balanced expansion of generation and transmission capacity in power will remain a pre-requisite for rapid industrial development in the years ahead. In view of the enormous investments involved, it is vital that power capacity is optimally utilized through better maintenance and operation of power plants, judicious expansions and linkages of existing grids, appropriate peak load pricing policies to moderate sharply peaked load profiles and improved availability of inputs to power generation.

9.5 Despite bad weather, foodgrain production in 1986-87 is expected to exceed the level of 150.5 million tonnes achieved in 1985-86. Foodstocks with the public distribution system at 23.6 million tonnes on 1st January, 1987 constitute a valuable insurance against recurrence of bad weather and inflationary pressures. The resilience of our agricultural sector in the face of successive years of bad weather testifies to the soundness of our agricultural policies and programmes, which have emphasized a judicious combination of remunerative prices for the farm sector coupled with ambitious programmes for expanding ready availability of key inputs, such as irrigation, fertilizer, pesticides and high yielding varieties of seeds. The Government's approach to agricultural prices policy has been clearly articulated in the recent discussion paper on the subject. Great strides have been taken in increasing the supply of agricultural inputs.

9.6 The Surveys of preceding years had anticipated a difficult balance of payments situation in the Seventh Plan period, on account of an expected deceleration in indigenous oil production, growing protectionism in industrial countries, the bunching of repayment obligations on past loans from the IMF and other sources, the unfavourable climate for concessional external assistance and uncertainties with respect to the inflow of remittances from Indians working abroad. The trade deficit in 1985-86 was unusually high. In anticipation of emerging pressures, the Government undertook a series of corrective measures in the course of the past two years. On the import side, these steps included systematic policies to enhance indigenous production of sugar, edible oils and fertilizer, commodities whose imports bulked large in 1985-86. Following these measures, the value of imports of these commodities is expected to decline substantially in 1986-87. As for exports, a wide range of export-promoting initiatives were launched during this period. These measures, together with the sharp fall in international prices for petroleum, contributed to a healthy increase of 17.3 per cent in exports, in rupee terms, in April—November, 1986 over the same period of 1985 and the curbing of import expansion to only 1.4 per cent. Excluding crude oil, exports increased by 19.6 per cent. As a result, the trade deficit registered a welcome decline of about Rs. 1,001 crores over this period.

9.7 The last two years have witnessed far-reaching reforms in fiscal policy. The principal objectives of these reforms have been to simplify the tax structure, move to a regime of reasonable tax rates combined with better administration and enforcement to improve compliance and raise revenues, foster a stable and predictable tax policy environment, bring in a more open approach to budget making and make the tax structure more conducive to growth and equity. These reforms in fiscal policy have been widely welcomed. When the programme of fiscal reforms was initiated in the 1985 Budget, there was some apprehension that the direct tax reforms would lead to a decline in revenues. In the event, the rapid increase in tax revenues in the past two years tends to confirm the soundness of the Government's approach. The Centre's collections from major taxes, which had increased by over 22 per cent in 1985-86 (RE), showed a further increase of around 17 per cent in April-December 1986 (provisional). Of particular interest is the buoyancy in direct tax collections, which increased by about 23 per cent in 1985-86 (RE). Income and Corporation taxes (excluding from the oil sector) are estimated to have increased by a further 26 per cent in April--December, 1986.

9.8 Despite this enviable record in raising revenues, the Government's resource position continues to be under heavy pressure because of the rapid increase in expenditure commitments, especially on non-Plan account and substantial shortfalls in surplus generation by public sector undertakings in relation to Plan expectations. The rapid growth in non-Plan expenditures has kept the Centre's budget on revenue account in deficit throughout this decade and this deficit has increased steadily in the past five years. As a result, the Government has had to rely increasingly on domestic borrowings to meet its expenditure commitments and this, in turn, has fuelled a growing bill for interest payments. In 1985-86 (RE), defence, interest payments and major subsidies accounted for 67 per cent of the Centre's total non-Plan expenditures. In the current year the proportion is budgeted to increase to 70 per cent.

9.9 Recognizing the gravity of the problem, the Government has taken a number of steps to control expenditures. These include the initiation of a system of zero-base budgeting; a decision to undertake a review of subsidies to reduce overheads and ensure that benefits flow to the needy; the evolution of a system of commitment budgeting to ensure adequate funding of worthwhile, ongoing schemes and avoid spreading available resources too thinly over too many projects and programmes; and the introduction of a system of quarterly budgeting to divert idle funds from slow moving projects and programmes to those where funds can be used more productively. Careful scrutiny and control of expenditure will command the highest priority in the years ahead, if inflationary pressures are to be kept in check. The underlying approach to expenditure control must continue to emphasize the need to prioritize expenditures carefully. In general, the social returns from spending scarce resources to complete or maintain ongoing projects and programmes will tend to be higher than from wholly new schemes. At the same time it is important to recognize that some ongoing schemes may have outlived their usefulness and should be terminated. The system of zero-base budgeting can greatly facilitate such a systematic pruning of low-priority expenditures.

9.10 According to the Seventh Plan, public sector undertakings were expected to contribute 53 per cent of the financing of the Central Plan. In fact, their contribution was 34 per cent in 1985-86 (RE) and 39 per cent in 1986-87 (BE) resulting in a correspondingly greater requirement for budgetary resources. The nation has invested nearly Rs. 50,000 crores in public enterprises at the Centre. To maintain the momentum of investment and growth and ensure that the Seventh Plan is funded in a non-inflationary manner, it is vital to increase the efficiency of and surplus generation by these undertakings. It is particularly important to ensure that the increase in surpluses comes from improvements in productivity and reduction in real costs rather than from the passing on of the costs of inefficiency to captive buyers through higher prices. To achieve this goal the Government has embarked on a programme for setting specific targets for generation of internal resources of public sector undertakings and reduction of their unit costs of production. It will also be necessary to maintain the buoyancy of tax revenues and to accomplish this, the thrust of improvements in tax administration and enforcement will have to be sustained.

9.11 Success in controlling the growth of Government expenditure and in increasing surplus generation by public sector undertakings is essential not only to bring about better balance in the Government's fiscal position but also to keep inflation in check. The annual rate of increase in the Wholesale Price Index was 6.3 per cent on January 24, 1987 as compared to 5.3 per cent at the same time a year ago. The increase in the Consumer Price Index (for industrial workers) was, however, significantly higher, which is a matter of concern, particularly in the present context of limited manoeuvrability for short-term supply management through imports because of the continued pressure on the balance of payments. Clearly, the burden of checking inflationary pressures rests with fiscal and monetary policies to curb aggregate demand and measures to bring about rapid increase in domestic supply.

9.12 Looking ahead, it seems clear that the adverse factors exerting pressure on the balance of payments can be expected to persist throughout the rest of the decade and into the 1990s. As pointed out in last year's Survey, debt service on past borrowings is expected to increase significantly in the years ahead. The inflow of remittances from expatriate Indians may not be as buoyant as in the recent past. The recent relief from lower prices for imported oil could prove transitory as international oil prices recover from the trough of mid-1986 and as India's degree of self-sufficiency in petroleum declines further from the peak attained in 1984-85. Thus, for the foreseeable future the balance of payments will demand continuous and careful management.

9.13 The key to a viable balance of payments lies with strong and sustained growth of exports, of both goods and services, and efficient import substitution. It is true that the environment for international trade is clouded with protectionist impediments and uncertainties. But the fact that India's exports account for hardly half a per cent of world exports suggests that the possibilities for growth are substantial, even in a difficult environment. To assure the realization of this potential it is essential to maintain and even strengthen the thrust of current policies aimed at improving the relative profitability of exports and systematically removing procedural and infrastructural bottlenecks to exporting. At the same time it has to be realized that export performance cannot be, realistically, compartmentalised from the performance of the economy as a whole. Thus, sustained growth of India's manufactured exports can only be predicated on the base of a productive industrial sector, operating in a competitive, cost-conscious environment, with good opportunities for technological upgradation and able to reap available economies of scale. With regard to imports the scope for efficient import substitution in key bulk import items remains substantial. Programmes for effective energy conservation command the highest priority. In the absence of major new discoveries of oil, it is also essential to reduce the growth rate of consumption of petroleum products through strong energy conservation measures.

9.14 In the drive to modernise technology, induce more economic scales of production and achieve necessary reductions in costs, Indian industry can be expected to face major problems of transition. As barriers to entry are lowered and competition increases, inefficient units will be confronted with painful problems of adjustment and are likely to clamour for the retention of sheltered markets. While industrial policies should certainly try to anticipate and moderate such adjustment costs, they cannot be indefinitely postponed. If the goal of efficient, low-cost industry with rapid growth in industrial output and employment is to be brought closer, there is no soft option to undertaking the necessary changes of industrial practices and reallocations of resources. Such changes will be facilitated by the active participation of financial institutions, including the existing term-lending institutions and the new Board for Industrial and Financial Reconstruction and the existance of a broad-based and healthy capital market.

9.15 The capital market has witnessed remarkable growth in recent years with new issues approvals of Rs. 5,070 crores in April—January, 1986-87, compared with Rs. 2,003 crores and Rs. 3,695 crores in the full financial years of 1984-85 and 1985-86, respectively. But to ensure that the capital market broadens its base and grows steadily, steps will have to be taken to improve its operational efficiency and to guard against malpractices. The progressive transition from discretionary physical controls to rule-based, non-discretionary fiscal and financial instruments will also require more active use of the latter to guide resources to priority industries. Special policy attention will also have to be given to key intermediate goods industries, such as fertilisers, steel, non-ferrous metals, cement, petroleum and natural gas, to assure ready availability of these basic products at reasonable prices.

9.16 Agriculture continues to be the most important sector of the Indian economy. With 75 per cent of India's population still living in rural areas, rapid and broad-based agricultural growth is a necessary prerequisite for maintaining the pace of overall economic development and tackling the deep-seated problems of rural poverty. As previous Surveys have noted, improvements in agricultural yields and output have been uneven across regions and crops. In future, every effort must be made to spread the fruits of technical progress to lagging regions and crops. Past investments have established a substantial potential for enhancing yields in the lagging eastern region of the country. Swift realization of this potential demands vigorous and sustained efforts to improve water management together with improvements in delivery systems for providing other complimentary inputs. It is also essential to strive for technical progress in pulses and oilseeds, crops which have hitherto recorded only modest increases in yields, though the livelihoods of many millions of our poorest farmers depend on adequate returns from these crops.

9.17 The fact that our food stocks are well in excess of desired levels for buffer stocking and food security in a bad monsoon year—and that too, following two below normal monsoons—suggests that a good monsoon could exacerbate the economic and financial costs of high foodstocks, unless measures are vigorously pursued to step up utilization of food in anti-poverty programmes. Our strategy of poverty alleviation rests on the twin planks of rapid and sustained growth in overall output, employment and incomes, coupled with direct anti-poverty programmes for expanding employment and income-earning opportunities for those below the poverty line. Anti-poverty programmes have been strengthened in recent years. It is crucial that any remaining administrative shortcomings of these programmes are rectified and that the overall momentum of development does not falter. In the ultimate analysis, the success or failure of our development efforts hinges on the acid test of how fast we can lift the curse of poverty from our land.

NOTES : 1. Population figures from 1971 to 1980 are based on the latest projections made by the office of the Registrar General of India. Estimates from 1981 onwards are based on the Expert Committee's population projections as approved by the planning Commission.

2. Production figures relate to agricultural year July—June : 1956 figures correspond to the production of 1955-56 and so on for subsequent years.

3. Net production has been taken as 87.5% of the gross production, 12.5% being provided for feed, seed requirements and wastage.

4. Figures in respect of change in stocks with traders and producers are not known. The estimates of net availability above should not, therefore, be taken to be strictly equivalent to consumption.

5. Per capita net availability for 1985 has been calculated taking into consideration the figure of the net imports and change in stocks as on 1-12-1986.

NOTES : Figures shown in this table for some items do not correspond to the similar statistics published by the Reserve Bank of India. The difference is due to adjustments made in the above table in receipts and payments in respect of PL—480 assistance which have been grouped together under External Assistance and imports respectively, and excluded from other heads of accounts. The presentation of balance of payments statistics in the table above also differs from adjusted balance of payments table in issues of the Economic Survey prior to 1966-67. In the table above, interest and service payments on foreign loans and credits (unlike in those issues) are inclusive of payments in respect of loans repayable in rupees.

*The rupee equivalent of all foreign currency transactions up to end May 1966 has been arrived at by appling the pre-devaluation exchange rates and of those during the subsequent period by using the current exchange rates.

PL-480 Title I shown under imports item 1(a) and under external asistance item 10(c) represents the commodity assistance which is payable in rupees. PL-480 convertible currency assistance is included in item 10(a) and imports thereof against in item 1(b).

1. Exclude freight on PL-480 imports initially borne by India but subsequently refunded by the U.S. Authorities.
2. Exclude receipts on account of freight on PL-480 imports initially borne by India but subsequently refunded by the U.S. Authorities and U.S. Embassy expenditure met out of PL-480 Title I Funds and Miscellaneous receipts out of PL-665. These also exclude grants under Colombo Plan, PL-480 Title I, II and III, etc.
3. Receipts by way of drawings on loans extended to private sector under the External Assistance programme including loans out of Cooley Fund and corresponding amortisation payments are excluded from items 7(a)(i) and 7(a)(ii) and included under items 10(a) and 7(c) respectively.

NOTES : 1. Amounts of authorisation and utilisation in donor currencies have been converted into rupees at the pre-devaluation exchange rates upto the end of the Third Plan: at the post devaluation rates for the subsequent years upto 1970-71: at pre-May 1971 rates for 1971-72: at Central rates (which prevailed following the currency realignment of December 1971) for 1972-73. Figures of authorisation from 1973-74 onwards have been arrived at by applying the annual average exchange rate of the rupee with individual donor currencies. Figures of utilisation for 1973-74 have been arrived at by applying the quarterly average exchange rate of the rupee with individual donor currencies to the utilisation during the corresponding quarter: for 1974-75 at average exchange rate for the respective month, and for subsequent years at current rates applicable to the dates of transactions.

2. Loan amounts are net of surrenders, de-obligations and cancellations, etc. In case of PL-480, amounts are net of lapsed agreement.

3. Figures for utilisation are inclusive of suppliers' credits, and non-government loans upto 1977-78 which may not be fully reflected in authorisation figures. Subsequent data are exclusive of suppliers' credits, but inclusive of non-government loans.

4. Constituent items may not add up to totals because of rounding.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of the Bill is to give effect to the financial proposals of the Central Government for the financial year 1987-88. The notes on clauses explain the various provisions contained in the Bill.

NEW DELHI;
The 28*th February,* 1987.

RAJIV GANDHI.

PRESIDENT'S RECOMMENDATION UNDER ARTICLES 117 AND 274 OF THE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

[Copy of letter No. F. 3(1)-B(D)/87, dated the 28th February, 1987 from Shri Rajiv Gandhi, Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, to the Secretary-General, Lok Sabha.]

The President, having been informed of the subject matter of the proposed Bill, recommends under clause (1) of article 117, read with clause (1) of article 274, of the Constitution of India, the introduction of the Finance Bill, 1987, to the Lok Sabha.

2. The Bill will be introduced in the Lok Sabha immediately after the presentation of the Budget on the 28th February, 1987.

Notes on clauses

Clause 2, read with the First Schedule to the Bill, seeks to prescribe the rates at which income-tax is to be levied on income chargeable to tax for the assessment year 1987-88. Further, it lays down the rates at which tax is to be deducted at source during the financial year 1987-88 from incomes subject to such deduction under the Income-tax Act; and the rates at which "advance tax" is to be paid and tax is to be calculated and charged in special cases for the financial year 1987-88.

Rates of income-tax for the assessment year 1987-88:

Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill specifies the rates of income-tax on incomes liable to tax for the assessment year 1987-88. These rates are the same as those specified in Part III of the First Schedule to the Finance Act, 1986 for the purposes of deduction of tax at source from "Salaries" and for computation of "advance tax" payable during the financial year 1986-87.

Rates for deduction of tax at source during the financial year 1987-88 from income other than "Salaries":

Part II of the First Schedule to the Bill specifies the rates at which income-tax is to be deducted at source during the financial year 1987-88 from incomes other than "Salaries" and retirement annuities under section 80E(9) of the Income-tax Act.

During the financial year 1987-88, certain new categories of incomes will be subject to deduction of tax at source. Incomes earned by any person who is resident in India, inter-alia , by way of fees for professional services, royalty, fees for technical services, commission or brokerage paid by persons other than individuals and Hindu undivided families, will now be liable to deduction of tax at source if such incomes exceed certain monetary limits. The rate of deduction of tax on these incomes is proposed at twenty per cent. in the case of any person who is resident and who is not a company. In the case of such incomes accruing to domestic companies, the rate of deduction of tax at source is proposed at twenty-five per cent. In the case of such incomes accruing to any person who is not a resident and who is not a company, the rate of deduction of tax is proposed at thirty per cent. or the income-tax in respect of the income computed at the rates prescribed in Sub-Paragraph I of Paragraph A of Part III of the First Schedule, as if such income had been the total income, whichever is higher.

Income by way of rent will also be subject to deduction of tax at source if such rent is paid by persons other than individuals and Hindu undivided families. The rate of deduction of tax at source on the income earned by any person who is a resident in India or a domestic company is proposed at ten per cent. if such income exceeds thirty-six thousand rupees but does not exceed forty-eight thousand rupees. The rate of deduction of tax in such cases is proposed at twenty per cent. in a case where income by way of rent exceeds forty-eight thousand rupees. In case of a person who is not resident in India and who is not a company, the tax deductible at source will be the tax at these rates or the income-tax as computed at the rates prescribed in Sub-Paragraph I of Paragraph A of Part III of the First Schedule, whichever is higher.

Payments made by any Government or a local authority or a public sector corporation or any company to any person resident in India or a domestic company for supply of goods will be subject to deduction of tax at source at the rate of five per cent. In the case of such income accruing to any person who is not a resident and who is not a company, the rate of deduction of tax is proposed at five per cent. or income-tax computed at the rates prescribed in Sub-Paragraph I of Paragraph A of Part III of the First Schedule as if such income had been the total income, whichever is higher.

In the case of any company which is not a domestic company, the rates of deduction of tax at source in respect of dividends payable by any domestic company or interest or royalty or fees for technical services or interest payable on tax-free security remain unchanged. The rate of deduction of tax in respect of any other income accruing to such a company is proposed to be retained at sixty-five per cent.

Rates for deduction of tax at source from "Salaries" and retirement annuities, computation of "advance tax" and charging of income-tax in special cases during the financial year 1987-88:

Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill specifies the rates at which income-tax is to be deducted at source from "Salaries" and retirement annuities referred to in section 80E(9) of the Income-tax Act and also the rates at which "advance tax" is to be paid and income-tax is to be calculated or charged in special cases for the financial year 1987-88.

The basic rates of income-tax are the same as those specified in Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill for the assessment of income liable to tax for the assessment year 1987-88.

Clause 3 seeks to amend section 2 of the Income-tax Act relating to definitions.

Under the existing provisions of sub-clause (e) of clause (22) of section 2, any payment by way of advance or loan by a company, not being a company in which the public are substantially interested, to a shareholder who has substantial interest in the company, is includible as a dividend.

Sub-clause (a) of this clause seeks to secure that any payment by way of advance or loan to any shareholder or to any concern in which the shareholder is a member or a partner and in which he has a substantial interest shall be includible as dividend.

The expression "concern", for the purposes of this provision, means a Hindu undivided family or a firm or an association of persons or a body of individuals or a company. Further, a person shall be deemed to have a substantial interest in a concern, other than a company, if such person is at any time during the previous year beneficially entitled to not less than twenty per cent. of the income of such concern. In relation to a company, the provisions of clause (32) of section 2 will apply .

Sub-clause (b) seeks to insert a new sub-clause (x) in clause (24) of this section.

The proposed amendment seeks to provide that any sum received by the assessee from his employees as contributions to any fund for the welfare of such employees will be included in the income of the assessee.

Sub-clause (c) seeks to insert two new clauses (29A) and (29B).

New clause (29A) seeks to define "long-term capital asset" to mean a capital asset which is not a short-term capital asset. New clause (29B) seeks to define the expression "long-term capital gain" as a capital gain arising from the transfer of a long-term capital asset.

Sub-clause (d) seeks to insert a new clause (36A) in this section with effect from the 1st day of April, 1987.

The proposed amendment seeks to define "public sector company" to mean any corporation established by or under any Central, State or Provincial Act or a Government company within the meaning of section 617 of the Companies Act, 1956.

Sub-clause (e) seeks to amend clause (42A) of this section.

Under the existing provisions, a "short-term capital asset" means a capital asset held by an assessee for thirty-six months or less, immediately preceding the date of its transfer.

The proposed amendment seeks to provide that in the case of a share held in a company, the share shall be treated as a short-term capital asset if it is held by the assessee for twelve months or less, immediately preceding the date of its transfer.

In case any enhanced compensation is received subsequently, the compensation so received will be charged to tax as capital gains of the year in which such amount is received.

Explanation to this section clarifies, inter alia, that in case of enhanced compensation received, the cost of acquisition and improvement shall be taken to be nil. It also seeks to clarify that if due to the death of the original transferee or for any other reason enhanced compensation is received by any other person, it shall be deemed to be the income of the actual recipient.

Clause 15 seeks to substitute a new section for section 48 relating to mode of computation and deductions.

Under the existing provisions, capital gain is computed by deducting from the consideration received as a result of the transfer of the capital asset, expenditure incurred in connection with such transfer, the cost of acquisition of the asset and the cost of improvement thereto. In addition to the aforesaid deductions, section 80T provides for certain deductions in respect of long-term capital gains arising on transfer of a capital asset by a non-corporate assessee. In case of a corporate assessee, concessional treatment in respect of long-term capital gains is allowed, not by way of deduction, but through lower rates of tax prescribed in section 115.

Statutory deductions or concessions, as the case may be, hitherto available in sections 80T and 115, are being incorporated in section 48 itself. Also, a uniform system of deductions from long-term capital gains arising to non-corporate as well as corporate assessees is being adopted in place of lower rates of tax for corporate assessees as at present.

Since the statutory deductions are being incorporated in section 48 itself, the present sections 80T and 115 are being omitted.

Sub-section (1) of the new section enumerates deductions already available in the existing section for computing the capital gains. It also provides that in the case of long-term capital gains, further deductions as specified in sub-section (2) will be allowed.

Sub-section (2) provides the rates of statutory deduction in respect of long-term capital gains as under:–

	Gains from real estate, bullion, gold or jewellery	Gains from other assets
1. Non-corporate assessees	50%	60%
2. Corporate assessees	10%	30%

The deductions mentioned above will be in addition to the threshold deduction of Rs.10,000 which shall be allocable to all assessees.

The first proviso to sub-section (2) lays down the order of deductions in a case where the long-term capital gains relate to real estate, gold, bullion or jewellery as well as any other asset.

The second proviso provides that in relation to the amount received as enhanced compensation, the initial deduction of ten thousand rupees allowable under sub-section (2) will be reduced by the deduction already allowed under clause (a) of section 80T in the assessment for the assessment year 1987-88 or any earlier assessment year or by the deduction allowed under clause (a) of the new sub-section (2).

Sub-section (3) provides that long-term capital loss where it exceeds Rs.10,000 shall be scaled down by the same percentage of deduction as is applicable to long-term capital gains.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

Clause 16 seeks to amend section 49 of the Income-tax Act relating to determination of cost with reference to certain modes of acquisition.

Under the existing provisions, where the capital asset becomes the property of the assessee on any distribution of assets on the dissolution of a firm, body of individuals or other association of persons, the cost of acquisition of assets is deemed to be the cost for which the previous owner of the property acquired it, subject to certain adjustments relating to improvements, etc.

Under the proposed amendment, the aforesaid provisions will apply only if the dissolution takes place any time before the 1st April, 1987.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988.

Clause 17 seeks to omit section 52 of the Income-tax Act relating to consideration for transfer in cases of understatement.

If the consideration exceeds Rs.2 lakhs, capital gain would be exempted proportionately.

Under the proposed amendment, this benefit which is at present available to individuals only, is being extended to Hindu undivided families also. Further, an Explanation is being inserted to the effect that references to capital gain in certain sections specified in the Explanation shall be construed as references to the amount of capital gain as computed under new section 48(1)(a).

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

Clause 19 seeks to amend section 54 of the Income-tax Act relating to exemption of capital gains on the transfer of a residential house.

Under the proposed amendment of sub-section (1) by sub-clause (a), the exemption is being extended to Hindu undivided families also. The Explanation below sub-section (1), which defines "long-term capital asset" for purposes of this section, is being omitted, as the definition is being shifted to section 2.

Existing sub-section (2) relating to computation of capital gains in the case of enhanced compensation received on compulsory acquisition is being substituted. The enhanced compensation is now proposed to be taxed as the income of the year in which such compensation is received. This has been incorporated in section 45.

The new sub-section (2) provides that where the amount of capital gain is not appropriated or utilised by the assessee for purchase or construction of the new residential house before the date for furnishing the return of income, it shall be deposited by him on or before the due date of furnishing the return of income, in an account with a bank or institution specified in, and utilised in accordance with, any scheme framed by the Central Government in this regard. The amount already utilised for purchase or construction, of the new house together with the amount so deposited shall be deemed to be the amount utilised for the purchase of a new house.

The proviso to sub-section (2) provides that if the amount deposited is not utilised fully for purchase or construction of new house within the period stipulated in sub-section (1), then the amount not so utilised shall be treated as the capital gain of the previous year in which the period of three years from the date of transfer of original asset expires. It further provides that the assessee shall be entitled to withdraw such amount in accordance with the aforesaid scheme. Explanation to the proviso provides that where any amount becomes chargeable to tax by virtue of the proviso, the initial deduction of ten thousand rupees shall not be allowed, nor shall the benefit of exemption under section 53 be admissible.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

Clause 20 seeks to amend section 54B of the Income-tax Act, relating to exemption of capital gains arising from transfer of land used for agricultural purposes.

Under the existing provisions, if an assessee transfers land used for agricultural purposes giving rise to capital gains and purchases any other land used for agricultural purposes, within two years after the date of such transfer, the capital gain is exempt to the extent such gain has been utilised for the aforesaid purchase.

In case only a part of consideration is so invested or deposited, a proportionate part of capital gain will be exempt from tax. Where any long-term capital asset is compulsorily acquired and the compensation awarded is subsequently enhanced, the additional compensation is exempted from tax if it is invested by the assessee in specified assets within six months from the date of receipt of additional compensation.

The deduction will be allowable in the case of individuals, Hindu undivided families and certain categories of associations of persons or bodies of individuals.

The payments in respect of which the deduction will be allowable under the proposed provisions will be any payment by way of instalment or part payment of the amount due under any self-financing or other schemes of any development authorities, housing board or other similar authority; or any instalment or part payment of the amount due to any company or co-operative society. The deduction will also be allowable in respect of repayment of loans borrowed by the assessee from Government or any bank or the Life Insurance Corporation of India and certain categories of institutions engaged in the business of providing long-term finance for construction or purchase of houses in India. Any repayment of a loan borrowed from the employer will also be covered, if the employer happens to be a public company. Stamp duty, registration fee and other expenses for the purposes of transfer shall also be covered.

Payment towards cost of a house property will not, however, include admission fee or cost of share or initial deposit or the cost of land (except where the consideration for the purchase of the house property is a composite amount and the cost of the land cannot be separately ascertained) or the cost of any addition, alteration, etc. Payment towards any expenditure in respect of which a deduction is allowable under the provisions of section 24 will also not be included in payments towards the cost of purchase or construction of a house property.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Sub-clause (d) of clause 7 of the Bill seeks to insert two new sub-sections (5A) and (5B) in section 32AB of the Income-tax Act relating to investment deposit account. Under new sub-section (5A), it is provided that any amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the deposit account shall not be allowed to be withdrawn before the expiry of a period of five years from the date of deposit except for the purposes specified in the scheme to be made under that section. Sub-clause (e) of this clause seeks to amend sub-section (6) of this section so as to provide for a time limit to be specified in the said scheme before which any amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the deposit account should be utilised.

Clauses 19, 20, 21 and 23 seek to amend sections 54, 54B, 54D and 54F of the Income-tax Act to provide that if the amounts of capital gain arising under those sections are not appropriated by the assessee towards the purchase of the new asset within the period specified therein, they are required to be deposited in an account in any such bank or institution as may be specified in, and utilised in accordance with, any scheme which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, frame in this behalf.

Clauses 24 of the Bill seeks to introduce a new section 54G in the Income-tax Act which provides for exemption of capital gains on transfer of assets in cases of shifting of an industrial undertaking from urban area. Sub-section (2) of this new section provides that the amount of capital gain which is not appropriated by the assessee towards the cost and expenses incurred in relation to any of the purposes mentioned in sub-section (1) of that section within one year from the date on which the transfer of the original asset took place or which is not utilised by him for all or any of the purposes aforesaid before the date of furnishing the return of income under section 139 of the Act, is required to be deposited by him before furnishing such return in an account in any such bank or institution as may be specified in, and utilised in accordance with, any scheme which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, frame in this behalf.

Clause 45 of the Bill seeks to insert a new sub-section (2) in section 192 of the Income-tax Act which provides for tax to be deducted at source under the head "Salaries" in a case where the assessee is employed simultaneously under more than one employer or where he has held successively employment under more than one employer. In such cases, the assessee will be required to furnish to the person responsible for making the payment of the tax deducted at source (being one of the employers) such details of the income under the head "Salaries" due or received by him from the other employer or employers, the tax deducted at source therefrom and such other particulars, in such form and verified in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made under the Act. Under a new sub-section (2B) inserted in this section, where an assessee who receives any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" has in addition any income chargeable under any other head of income for the same financial year, he is required to send to the person responsible for making the payment regarding the salary income, the particulars of such other income and of any tax deducted therefrom in such form and verified in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made under the Act.

Clause 50 (b) of the Bill proposes to amend sub-section (2) of section 195 of the Income-tax Act which enables a person responsible for paying to a non-resident any interest, not being interest on securities or other sums, etc., to deduct income-tax thereon at the rates in force. Under the said sub-section (2), if such person considers that the whole of such sum would not be income chargeable in the case of the recipient, he may make an application to the Income-tax Officer to determine, by general or special order, the appropriate proportion of such sum so charged. The amendment seeks to provide that the said determination should be made in the prescribed manner instead of by general or special order, as provided in the section.

Clause 52 (b) of the Bill seeks to insert a new sub-section (2A) in section 197 of the Income-tax Act which provides for the issue of a certificate for deduction at lower rate. The new sub-section (2A) empowers the Central Board of Direct Taxes to make rules specifying the cases in which, and the circumstances, under which, an application may be made for the grant of such certificate and the conditions subject to which such certificate may be granted, and for providing for all other matters connected therewith.

Clause 56 of the Bill seeks to amend section 203 of the Act which provides for the issue of tax-deduction certificate by the person who deducts the tax payable under the Act. The amendment seeks to provide that the certificate shall be issued within such period as may be prescribed by the rules from the time of credit or payment of the same or from the issue of a cheque or warrant for payment of any dividend to a shareholder instead of issue of a certificate at the time of the credit or payment of the sum or at the time of the issue of a cheque or warrant for the payment of any dividend to a shareholder as at present.

Clause 57 of the Bill seeks to insert a new section 203A which provides for the allotment of tax-deduction account number. Sub-section (1) of the new section requires every person deducting tax in accordance with the provisions of the Act to apply for the allotment of a tax-deduction account number within such time as may be prescribed by rules made under the Act. Such rules may also provide the documents relating to certain transactions in which such number shall be quoted.

Clause 58 of the Bill seeks to substitute a new section 206 in the Income-tax Act which requires persons deducting the tax under the Act to furnish the prescribed returns. This section provides that the person who deducts tax shall prepare within the time prescribed under the rules, after the end of each financial year and deliver or cause to be delivered to the income-tax authority prescribed by rules, such returns in such form and verified in such manner and setting forth such particulars as may be prescribed by rules made under the Act.

Clause 61 seeks to insert new section 245BA in the Income-tax Act. Sub-section (5) of this section provides for the functioning of the Benches of the Settlement Commission, in the case of illness, etc., of the Members constituting a Bench subject to such rules as may be made under the Act. Clause 81 of the Bill seeks to insert on the same lines a new section 22BA in the Wealth-tax Act.

Clause 96 of the Bill seeks to insert a new clause (xvib) in section 37 of the Central Excises Act to empower the Central Government to make rules to provide for the credit of sums of money with respect to raw materials used in the manufacture of excisable goods.

Clause 106 of the Bill empowers the Central Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, to make rules for carrying out the purposes of Chapter V of the Bill relating to levy of Foreign Exchange Conservation (Travel) Tax. Sub-clause (2) of this clause enumerates the matters with respect to which the Central Government may make rules. These matters relate, inter alia, to the collection of Foreign Exchange Conservation (Travel) Tax, the authorities by whom adjudication of penalties or other functions under the Chapter shall be discharged, the manner in which such tax or penalties due under the Chapter shall be payable, the procedure for adjudication of penalties, appeals against orders made under the Chapter, the manner in which and the time within which such appeals may be preferred and the fees payable therefor, the refunds and other particulars which may be required to be furnished for the purposes of the Chapter and any other matter which is required to be provided for by rules under the Chapter.

The matters in respect of which schemes or rules may be made in accordance with the aforesaid provisions are matters of procedure and detail, and it is not practicable to provide for them in the Bill itself.

The delegation of legislative powers is, therefore, of a normal character.

2. Subject to certain exceptions, which have been indicated while dealing with the relevant provisions, the Bill follows the principle that changes in the rates of tax, as also in the provisions of the tax laws should ordinarily be made operative prospectively in relation to current incomes and not in relation to income of past years. The substance of the main provisions in the Bill relating to direct taxes is explained in the following paragraphs :–

INCOME-TAX

I. Rates of income-tax in respect of incomes liable to tax for the assessment year 1987-88.

3. In respect of incomes of all categories of taxpayers (corporate as well as non-corporate) liable to tax for the assessment year 1987-88, the rates of income-tax have been specified in Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates are the same as those laid down in Part III of the First Schedule to the Finance Act, 1986 for the purposes of computation of "advance tax", deduction of tax at source from 'salaries' and retirement annuities payable to partners of registered firms engaged in specified professions, and computation of tax payable in certain cases during the financial year 1987-88.

II. Rates for deduction of tax at source during the financial year 1987-88 from income other than "Salaries" and retirement annuities

4. The rates for deduction of income-tax at source during the financial year 1987-88 from incomes, other than "salaries" and retirement annuities under section 80E(9) of the Income-tax Act payable to partners of a registered firm engaged in certain professions, have been specified in Part II of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates apply to income by way of interest on securities, other categories of interests, dividends, insurance commission, winnings from lotteries, crossword puzzles and horse races and income of non-residents (including non-resident Indians) other than salary income.

5. During the financial year 1987-88, certain new categories of incomes will be subject to deduction of tax at source. Incomes earned by any person who is resident in India, inter-alia, by way of fees for professional services, royalty, fees for technical services, commission or brokerage paid by persons other than individuals and Hindu undivided families, will now be liable to deduction of tax at source if such incomes exceed certain monetary limits. The rate of deduction of tax on these incomes is proposed at twenty per cent in the case of any person who is resident and who is not a company. In the case of such incomes accruing to domestic companies, the rate of deduction of tax at source is proposed at twenty-five per cent. In the case of such incomes accruing to any person who is not a resident and who is not a company, the rate of deduction of tax is proposed at thirty per cent. or the income-tax in respect of the income computed at the rates prescribed in Sub-Paragraph I of Paragraph A of Part III of First Schedule, as if such income had been the total income, whichever is higher.

6. Income by way of rent will also be subject to deduction of tax at source if such rent is paid by persons other than individuals and Hindu undivided families. The rate of deduction of tax at source on the income earned by any person who is resident in India or a domestic company is proposed at ten per cent. if such income exceeds thirty-six thousand rupees but does not exceed forty-eight thousand rupees. The rate of deduction of tax is proposed at twenty per cent. in a case where income by way of rent exceeds forty-eight thousand rupees. In the case of a person who is not a resident in India and who is not a company, the tax deductible at source will be the tax at these rates or the income-tax as computed at the rates prescribed in Sub-Paragraph I of Paragraph A of Part III of the First Schedule, whichever is higher.

7. Payments made by any Government or a local authority or a public sector corporation or any company to any person resident in india or a domestic company for supply of goods will be subject to deduction of tax at source at the rate of five per cent. In the case of such income accruing to any person who is not a resident in India and who is not a company, the rate of deduction of tax is proposed at five per cent. or income-tax computed at the rates prescribed in Sub-Paragraph I of Paragraph A of Part III of the First Schedule as if such income had been the total income, which is higher.

8. In the case of any company which is not a domestic company, the rates of deduction of tax at source in respect of dividends payable by any domestic company or interest or royalty or fees for technical services or interest payable on tax-free security remain unchanged. The rate of deduction of tax in respect of any other income accruing to such a company is proposed to be retained at sixty-five per cent.

III. Rates for deduction of tax at source from "Salaries", computation of "advance tax" and charging of income-tax in special cases during the financial year 1987-88.

9. The rates for deduction of tax at source from "Salaries" in the case of individuals during the financial year 1987-88 and also for computation of "advance tax" payable during that year in the case of all categories of taxpayers have been specified in Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates are also applicable for deduction of tax at source during the financial year 1987-88 from retirement annuity payable to partners of registered firms engaged in certain professios (such as chartered accountants, solicitors, lawyers, etc.) and for charging income-tax during the financial year 1987-88 on current incomes in cases where accelerated assessments have to be made, e.g. provisional assessment of shipping profits arising in India to non-residents, assessment of persons leaving for good during the financial year 1987-88, assessment of persons who are likely to transfer property to avoid tax, where an order has to be passed in a case of search and seizure for calculating the amount of tax on the estimated undisclosed income etc.

Individuals, Hindu undivided families, unregistered firms, etc., co-operative societies, registered firms and local authorities.

10. In the case of individuals, Hindu undivided families, unregistered firms, etc., the rates of income-tax have been specified in Paragraph A of Part III of the First Schedule of the Bill. In the case of co-operative societies, registered firms and local authorities, the rates of income-tax have respectively been specified in Paragraph B, Paragraph C and Paragraph D of Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates are the same as those specified in the corresponding Paragraphs of Part I of the First Schedule.

Companies

11. In the case of companies, the rates of income-tax have been specified in Paragraph E of Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates are the same as specified in the corresponding Paragraph of Part I of the First Schedule.

Partially integrated taxation of non-agricultural income with income derived from agriculture.

12. As in the past, the Finance Bill provides that in the case of individuals, Hindu undivided families, unregistered firms, other associations of persons, etc., the net agricultural income will be taken into account for computation of "advance tax" and charging of income-tax. These provisions are broadly on the same lines as those in earlier years.

[Clause 2 and the First Schedule]

WELFARE MEASURES

Exemption of compensation received by public sector employees on voluntary retirement.

13. Under section 10(10B) of the Income-tax Act, any compensation received by a workman at the time of his retrenchment is exempt upto the amount calculated in accordance with section 25F of the Industrial Disputes Act or Rs. 50,000, whichever is less. This limit is, however, not applicable in respect of compensation received under certain schemes approved by the Central Government.

A number of public sector undertakings have formulated voluntary retirement schemes for their employees. With a view to extending relief to such employees, the Bill seeks to provide exemption in respect of any payment received by them at the time of their voluntary retirement in accordance with any scheme which the Central Government may approve having regard to the economic viability of the public sector company and other relevant circumstances. This exemption will be available to any employee whether a workman or an executive.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April,1987 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1987-88 and subsequent years.

[Clause 4(a)]

Modification of provisions relating to deduction in respect of donations to certain funds etc .

14. Under section 80G of the Income-tax Act, a taxpayer is entitled to a deduction in the computation of his taxable income of a sum equal to 50 per cent of the donation made to certain funds, institutions, etc. The amount of the donations so qualifying for deduction is limited to ten per cent. of the gross total income of the donor, subject to a monetary limit of Rs. 5 lakhs.

Under the proposed amendment, donations to any Regimental Fund or non-public Fund established by the armed forces of the Union for the welfare of the past and present members of such forces or their dependants shall also qualify for deduction subject to the limits and conditions laid down in section 80G.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years

[Clause 35]

Enhancing deduction in the case of totally blind or physically handicapped persons.

15. Under the existing provisions of section 80U of the Income -tax Act, a resident individual who is totally blind or suffers from any of the specified permanent physical disabilities, is allowed a deduction of Rs. 10,000 in the computation of his total income.

With a view to providing relief to these categories of persons, the Bill seeks to enhance the deduction from Rs. 10,000 to Rs. 15,000.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

Allowance of the statutory liability only if discharged by the due date.

16. Section 2(24) of the Income-tax Act defines "income". It is proposed to amend the definition by providing that any sum received by any taxpayer from his employees as contribution to any fund for the welfare of such employees will be included in the taxpayer's income. Where such income is not chargeable to tax as income under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession", it will be assessable under the head "Income from other sources".

It is also proposed to amend sections 36(1) and 57 of the Income-tax Act, to provide that deductions in respect of any sum received by the taxpayer as contribution from his employees towards any welfare fund of such employees will be allowed only if such sum is credited by the taxpayer to the employee's account in the relevant fund on or before the due date. For the purposes of these sections, "due date" will mean the date by which the assessee is required as an employer to credit such contribution to the employee's account in the relevant fund under the provisions of any law or term of contract of service or otherwise.

Under the existing provisions of section 43B of the Income-tax Act, any statutory liability outstanding as on the last day of the previous year, is not deductible for the purposes of computation of income. It is proposed to insert two provisos in this section. The first proviso seeks to provide that the section shall not apply in respect of the payment of any tax or duty under any law if the sum is actually paid on or before the date on which the return of income is due to be furnished under section 139(1) for the previous year in which the liability to pay such sum was incurred. The second proviso seeks to provide that no deduction shall be allowed in regard to any sum payable by the taxpayer as an employer by way of contribution to any provident fund or superannuation fund or gratuity fund or any other fund for the welfare of the employees unless such sum has actually been paid during the previous year on or before the due date. The due date for the purposes of this proviso will mean the date by which the assessee is required as an employer to credit such contribution to the employee's account in the relevant fund under the provisions of any law or term of contract of service or otherwise.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. {Clauses 3,9,10,26 and 27}

INCENTIVES FOR GROWTH AND MODERNISATION

Measures for raising resources for the public sector.

17. In pursuance of the announcement made in the Budget speech for 1986-87, a series of public sector bonds have been floated which are intended to yield tax- free return to the holders of such bonds. The Finance Bill by inserting a new item in sub-clause (iv) of clause 15 of section 10 seeks to provide that interest payable by public sector companies on certain specified bonds and debentures will not form part of the taxpayer's total income subject to the conditions which the Central Government may specify by notification, including the condition that the holder of such bonds or debentures registers his name and holding with that company.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1987 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1987-88 and subsequent years. [Clause 4 (b)]

Tax incentives for investment in shares.

18. Under the existing provisions of section 2(42A) of the Income-tax Act, "short term capital" asset means a capital asset held by a taxpayer for a period of 36 months or less, immediately preceding the date of its transfer.

With a view to providing tax incentive for investment in shares of certain new companies, the proposed amendment seeks to provide that in the case of a share held in a company, the share shall be treated as a short-term capital asset if it is held by the assessee for 12 months or less immediately preceding the date of its transfer.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. (Clause 3(a)]

Tax incentive for investment in certain new shares.

19. Under the existing provisions of section 80CC of the Income-tax Act, deduction is allowable, within limits, in respect of acquisition of certain shares offered for subscription to the public before 1st April, 1987.

With a view to providing tax incentive for investment in such shares, it is proposed to extend the concession by three years by providing that the deduction will be allowable, subject to the satisfaction of other conditions, in respect of the shares offered for subscription before 1st April, 1990. Further, the condition in respect of the holding period as mentioned in section 80CC (5) is proposed to be reduced from five years to three years.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1987. [Clause 33]

Exclusion of computers as also of office machines and apparatus used for transmission and reception of messages from the Eleventh Schedule.

20. The Explanation below item 22 of the Eleventh Schedule to the Income-tax Act defines "office machines and apparatus" to include all machines and apparatus used in offices for data processing.

In order to provide fiscal support to industrial undertakings engaged in manufacturing computers, it is proposed to make a clarificatory amendment in the above Explanation to exclude computers from the expression " data processing " so that the benefits of the provisions of section 32AB and other sections may be made available to the manufacturers of computers. It is also proposed to exclude office machines and apparatus used for transmission and receiption of messages from the non-priority list of articles or things as contained in this item of the Eleventh Schedule.

The proposed amendement will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years [Clause 75]

Additional Income-tax on Undistributed Profits of closely held companies withdrawn.

21. Under the existing provisions of sections 104 to 109 of the Income-tax Act, certain closely held companies are liable to pay additional income-tax in the event of their failure to distribute specified percentage of their distributable profits, as dividends.

With the reduction of rates of taxation as per the Finance Act, 1985, these provisions have lost much of their relevance. Hence they are being omitted. However, appropriate amendments are being made in the definition of dividend in section 2(22) (e) to extend its application to payments made to any shareholder or to any concern in which a shareholder has substantial interest. These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will ,accordingly, apply in relation to the assessement year 1988-89 and subsequent years. [Clauses 41 and 3(a)]

INCENTIVES FOR SAVINGS

Modifications of the provisions relating to deduction in respect of certain payments.

22. Under the existing provisions of section 80C of the Income-tax Act, deduction is allowed at the specified rates to a taxpayer being an individual or a Hindu undivided family as also to certain categories of association of persons or bodies of individuals, in computing the total income, in respect of any amount of payment made as life insurance premia or contribution to provident fund, etc.

The Bill seeks to make an amendment to provide that any payment made by the taxpayer towards the cost of purchase or construction of a new residential house property will also qualify for deduction under section 80C (1). The deduction will be allowable in respect of payments made upto ten thousand rupees during the previous year subject to the monetary limits mentioned in section 80C (4).

The payments in respect of which deduction will be allowable will be any payment by way of instalment or part payment of the amount due under any self-financing or other schemes of any development authority, housing board, etc. The deduction will also be allowable in respect of repayment of loans borrowed by the taxpayer from the Government or any bank or the Life Insurance Corporation of India and certain other categories of institutions engaged in the business of providing long-term finance for construction or purchase of houses in India. Any repayment of loan borrowed from the employer will also be covered, if the employer happens to be a public company. Stamp duty, registration fee and other expenses incurred for the purposes of transfer shall also be covered. Payment towards cost of house property, however, will not include admission fee or cost of share or initial deposit or the cost of land (except where the consideration for purchase of house property is a composite amount and the cost of land cannot be separately ascertained) or the cost of any addition or alteration. Payments towards any expenditure in respect of which a deduction is allowable under the provisions of section 24 of the Income-tax Act will also not be included in payments towards the cost of purchase or construction of a house property. Where the house property in respect of which a deduction has been allowed under the new provisions, is transferred by the taxpayer at any time before the expiry of five years from the end of the financial year in which possession of such property is obtained by him, no deduction under these provisions shall be allowable in respect of the previous year in which the transfer is made and the aggregate amount of deductions allowed in the earlier years shall be chargeable to tax under the head "income from other sources" of the previous year in which such transfer takes place.

These amendements will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. [Clause 32]

New provisions relating to the National Savings Scheme to strengthen the saving incentives.

23. The Finance Bill seeks to insert a new section 80CCA relating to deduction in respect of deposits made in accordance with the National Savings Scheme.

Under the new provisions, deduction shall be allowed in the case of a taxpayer, being an individual, a Hindu undivided family and certain categories of associations of persons or bodies of individuals in relation to the deposits made under the National Savings Scheme. The deduction shall be restricted to fifty per cent. of so much of the amount deposited as does not exceed twenty thousand rupees.

The new provisions also provide that in case any withdrawals (together with the interest accrued thereon) are made under the National Savings Scheme an amount equal to fifty per cent of the amount in respect of which deduction has been allowed, shall be deemed to be the income of the taxpayer for the previous year in which such withdrawal is made. Interest on the deposits made under the National Savings Scheme will be taxable only in the year of withdrawal and to the extent of fifty percent thereof.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. [Clause 34]

INCENTIVES FOR EARNING FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Clarificatory amendment to extend tax holiday to the units in free trade zones engaged in developing software as also in processing or assembling.

24. Under the existing provisions of section 10 A of the Income-tax Act, any profits and gains of an industrial undertaking engaged in the manufacture or production of articles or things in a free trade zone are exempt from tax for a certain number of years.

With a view to providing further incentives for earning foreign exchange, it is proposed to clarify that manufacture for the above purposes will include the activities of processing and assembling. It will further include recording of programmes on any disc, tape, perforated media or other information storage device.

The amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1981 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1981-82 and subsequent years. [Clause 5]

Modifications of provisions relating to deduction in respect of royalties etc. from certain foreign enterprises.

25. Under section 80-0 of the Income-tax Act, where the income of an Indian company includes any sum received as royalty, commission, fees or any similar payment from the Government of a foreign State or a foreign enterprise, a deduction equal to fifty per cent. of the income so received or receivable is allowed subject to the condition that such amount is received or receivable in convertible foreign exchange in India or if received or receivable outside India is brought into India in accordance with the law in force in this regard. Explanation (ii) however, provides that if any amount of income is used outside India in the manner approved by the Reserve Bank of India, such amount will be deemed to have been brought into India.

Since the provisions of the section are intended to provide incentive for earning foreign exchange, the proposed amendment seeks to provide that the deduction will be allowed only if the amount has been brought into India within a period of six months from the end of the relevant previous year or within such extended period as may be allowed by the Commissioner of Income-tax after taking into account the difficulties of the assesee in not getting the amount remitted to India within the stipulated period. The amendment also seeks to clarify that " foreign enterprise" will mean a person who is a non-resident.

As a consequential amendment the provisions of section 155 (12) are proposed to be omitted.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

[Clauses 36 and 44]

Modification of provisions in respect of remuneration received for services rendered outside India.

26. Under the existing provisions of section 80RRA of the Income-tax Act, a deduction of an amount equal to fifty per cent. of any remuneration received by an individual who is a citizen of India is allowed, if such remuneration is received by him in foreign exchange from any employer for any service rendered by him outside India.

With a view to providing an incentive for bringing foreign exchange into India, the proposed amendment seeks to provide that a deduction of fifty per cent of the remuneration received by the taxpayer or seventy-five per cent of such remuneration as is brought into India by or on behalf of the taxpayer in accordance with the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1973, whichever is higher, will be allowable.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

[Clause 37]

SIMPLIFICATION AND RATIONALISATION OF PROVISIONS

Enlarging the meaning of "owner of house property ".

27. Under the existing provisions of section 22 of the Income-tax Act, any income from house property is chargeable to tax only in the hands of the legal owner. As per section 27 of the Income-tax Act, certain persons who are not otherwise legal owners are deemed to be the owners for the purposes of these provisions.

Under the Transfer of Property Act, the transfer of ownership can be effected only by means of a registered instrument. However, in the recent times various other devices are sought to be employed for transferring one's ownership in property. As a result, there are situations in which the actual owner, say, of an apartment in a multi-storeyed building, or a holder of a power of attorney is not the legal owner of a property. In some cases, pending resolution of disputes, the legal as well as the beneficial owners are assessed to tax in respect of the same income.

As a measure of rationalisation, the Bill seeks to enlarge further the meaning of the expression " owner of house property", given in clause (iii) of section 27 by providing that a person who comes to have control over the property by virtue of such transactions as are referred to in clause (f) of section 269 UA will also be deemed to be the owner of the property. The amendment also seeks to enlarge the applicability of this clause to a member of company or other association of persons.

Corresponding amendments have also been proposed in regard to the definition of " transfer" in section 2 (47) of the Income-tax Act, section 2 (m) of the Wealth-tax Act defining "net wealth" and section 2(xii) of the Gift-tax Act defining "gift".

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

New provisions for computation of taxable income from activities connected with exploration of mineral oils.

28. The computation of the taxable income of a taxpayer engaged in the business of providing services and facilities in connection with, or supplying plant and machinery on hire, used or to be used in the exploration for, and exploitation of, mineral oils involves a number of complications.

As a measure of simplification, the Bill seeks to insert a new section 44BB in the Income-tax Act providing for determination of income of such taxpayers at ten percent of the aggregate of certain amounts. The amounts in respect of which the provisions will apply would be the amounts paid or payable to the taxpayer or to any person on his behalf whether in or out of India, on account of the provision of such services or facilities or supplying plant and machinery for the aforesaid purposes. This amount will also include the amounts received or due to be received in India on account of such services or facilities or supply of plant and machinery.

The aforesaid amendment will not, however, apply to any income to which the provisions of sections 42, 44D, 115A or 293A of the Income-tax Act apply.

The proposed amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1983 and will, accordingly apply in relation to the assessment year 1983-84 and subsequent years.

[Clause 11]

Provisions for simplifying the computation of income in respect of foreign airlines

29. Under the existing provisions of the Income-tax Act, the income of a non-resident engaged in the business of operation of aircraft is computed after allowing deduction for all expenses and statutory deductions. This involves complications in the determination of the income accruing or arising in India to such a person.

With a view to simplifying the provisions relating to computation of taxable income of a non-resident, the Bill proposes to insert a new section 44BBA to provide that the income from such business shall be computed at a flat rate of five per cent of the amount received or receivable by or on behalf of the taxpayer for carriage of passengers, livestock, mail or goods from any place in India and the amount received or deemed to be received in India on account of such carriage from any place outside India.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

[Clause 12]

RATIONALISATION OF PROVISIONS RELATING TO CAPITAL GAINS

New scheme for deposits in respect of exemption from capital gains.

30. Under the existing provisions of sections 54, 54B, 54D and 54F long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of any immovable property used for residence, land used for agricultural purposes, compulsory acquisition of lands and buildings and other capital assets are exempt from income-tax if such gains are reinvested in a new asset coresponding to the old within the time allowed for the purpose. The original assessment needs rectification whenever the taxpayer fails to acquire the corresponding new asset.

With a view to dispensing with such rectification of assessment, the Bill seeks to provide for new scheme for deposit of amounts meant for reinvestment in the new asset. Under the proposed amendment, where the amount of capital gains or the net consideration, as the case may be, is not appropriated or utilised by the taxpayer for acquisition of the new asset before the date for furnishing the return of income, it shall be deposited by him on or before the due date of furnishing the return of income, in an account with a bank or institution and utilised in accordance with a scheme framed by the Central Government in this regard. The amount already utilised together with the amounts of deposit shall be deemed to be the amount utilised for the acquisition of the new asset. If the amount deposited is not utilised fully for acquiring the new asset within the period stipulated, the capital gain relatable to the unutilised shall be treated as the capital gain of the previous year in which the period specified in these provisions expires. In such cases, the threshold deduction of ten thousand rupees as well as the deduction under section 53 will not be admissible. Further, the taxpayer shall be entitled to withdraw such amount in accordance with this scheme. This scheme will be applicable in relation to the proposed new section 54G also.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

[Clauses 19, 20, 21,23 and 24]

Modifications in the provisions relating to computation of capital gains.

31. Under the existing provisions of section 48 of the Income-tax Act, computation of capital gains resulting from the transfer of a capital asset is made by deducting the cost of acquisition, the cost of improvement and the expenditure incurred in connection with transfer, from the consideration received on such transfer. In addition to the aforesaid deductions, section 8OT provides for certain deductions in respect of long-term capital gains in the case of non-corporate taxpayers. In the case of corporate taxpayers, concessional treatment in respect of long-term capital gains is allowed, not by way of deduction, but through lower rates of tax prescribed in section 115.

The Bill seeks to incorporate in section 48 itself the statutory deductions or concessions, as the case may be, hitherto available in sections 8OT and 115. Also a uniform scheme of deductions from long-term capital gains arising to non-corporate as well as corporate taxpayers is being adopted in place of lower rates of tax for corporate taxpayers as at present. Since the statutory deductions are being incorporated in section 48 itself, the present sections 8OT and 115 are being omitted.

The proposed scheme provides for 100% deduction in all cases where the long-term capital gain does not exceed Rs 10,000. Where it exceeds Rs. 10,000, the rates of deduction are as under :–

Status of Assessee	Rates of deduction in respect of long term capital gains relating to buildings or lands or any rights therein, gold, buillion or jewellery.	Rates of deduction in respect of long-term capital gains relating to other capital assets.
Company	Rs. 10,000 + 10% of balance.	Rs. 10,000 +30% of balance.
Any other assessee	Rs. 10,000 + 50% of balance.	Rs. 10,000 + 60% of balance.

In cases of compulsory acquisition, the threshold deduction will be restricted to a total amount of Rs. 10,000/- in relation to the initial compensation as well as additional compensation received in subsequent years.

The Bill also proposes to omit section 52 of the Income-tax Act.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

[Clauses 15, 17, 38 and 42]

Rationalisation of provisions relating to set-off and carry forward of long-term capital losses.

32. Under the existing provisions of sections 70,71, 72 and 74 of the Income-tax Act, long-term capital losses are allowed to be set-off only against long-term capital gains. It is so because the long-term capital gains suffer tax at a lower rate and set-off of losses under this head cannot be allowed against income which is liable to be taxed at a higher rate. The long-term capital losses have to be carried forward separately and they can be set-off only against long-term capital gains in the succeeding four years.

With a view to simplifying the aforesaid provisions and also to ensure uniform treatment of capital losses and capital gains, the Bill seeks to provide for scaling down of long-term capital losses (in the same manner as deductions are allowed out of long-term capital gains) for the purposes of set-off and carry forward. The losses scaled down in this manner will be deemed as business losses.

The Bill also seeks to provide for transitory provisions with regard to carry forward of capital losses in relation to the assessment year 1987-88 and earlier assessment years.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. [Clauses 15,28,29,30&31]

Exemptions available to 'Individuals' to be extended to 'Hindu undivided families'.

33. Under the existing provisions, the following exemptions are available only to an individual:-

(a) On transfer of a residential house, full exemption of capital gains is allowable if consideration for transfer of such an asset does not exceed rupees two lakhs. If the consideration exceeds Rs.2 lakhs the exemption is allowed proportionately. (Section 53]

(b) On transfer of a residential house and if capital gains are re-invested in a residential house, one year before or two years after the date of transfer – full exemption is allowable if entire amount of capital gains is re-invested and proportionate exemption will be allowable if part of the capital gains are re-invested. [Section 54]

(c) On transfer of any long-term capital asset other than residential house and if the consideration is re-invested in residential house – full exemption is allowable if net consideration is fully re-invested and proportionate exemption will be allowable if part of the net consideration is re-invested. [Section 54F]

The Finance Bill seeks to extend the above exemptions to Hindu undivided families also.

These amendments will take effect from the 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. [Clauses 18, 19 and 23]

Exemption of capital gains on shifting of industrial undertakings from Urban Areas.

34. Under the existing provisions of section 280ZA of the Income-tax Act, any company owning an industrial undertaking situated in an urban area, is entitled for a tax credit certificate with reference to the amount of the tax payable on capital gains arising from the transfer of its machinery, plant etc. to any other area. These provisions have not proved to be very effective.

With a view to promoting decongestion of urban areas and balanced regional growth, the Bill seeks to exempt capital gains arising on tranfer of long-term capital assets in the nature of machinery, plant, building or land used for the purposes of the business of the industrial undertaking situated in an urban area in connection with the shifting of such industrial undertaking from an urban area to a non-urban area. Accordingly, capital gains arising in such cases will be exempt to the extent they are utilised within a period of one year before or three years after the date of transfer, for the purchase of new machinery or plant or acquiring land and building etc. for the purpose of the business in the area to which the undertaking is shifted or incurs expenses on shifting the original asset and transferring the establishment of the undertaking to such area and incurs expenses as may be specified.

As a consequential measure, section 280ZA of the Income-tax Act is proposed to be omitted.

These amendments will take effect from 1st of April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. Clauses 24 and 72]

Exemption of capital gains on transfer of shares to public sector undertakings.

35. As per the new section 54H capital gains arising on transfer of a capital asset being 'shares in a company' will be exempt from income-tax if the capital asset is transferred to such public sector companies as the Central Government may, in this behalf, notify.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

[Clause 24].

MEASURES AGAINST TAX AVOIDANCE

Capital gains on transfer of goodwill and of firms' assets to partners and vice-versa to be taxable.

36. As per the existing provisions of section 45 of the Income-tax Act, profits or gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset are chargeable to income-tax as capital gains in the year in which the transfer takes place.

With a view to preventing misuse of entities such as partnership firms, etc., as escape routes for avoiding capital gains tax, the Bill by inserting a new sub-section (3) in section 45 seeks to provide for charging to tax of the profits or gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset by a partner to a firm or by a member to an association of persons or body of individuals, or vice-versa. In view of the practical difficulties in evaluating the consideration for tranfer in such cases, the Bill seeks to provide certain deeming provisions as well. Thus, in a case of transfer of a capital asset by a partner to a firm, or by a member to an association of persons or a body of individudals, the amount recorded in the books of account of the firm, association or body as the value of the capital asset, shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration as a result of such transfer. In the case of transfer by way of distribution of capital assets by a firm, an association of persons or a body of individuals, the fair-market value of the asset as on the date of tranfser shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration as a result of such transfer. Consequential amendments to sections 47 and 49 have also been proposed.

The profits and gains arising on transfer of goodwill cannot be charged to tax because of the judicial pronouncement that goodwill being a self-generated asset, there is no cost of acquisition and accordingly, no capital gain arises on transfer thereof. To remove this legal difficulty, the Bill by amending section 45 of the Income-tax Act seeks to provide that where goodwill is self-generated, the cost of acquisition will be deemed to be nil and where it has been purchased, the cost will be taken to be the actual price paid for it. The cost of improvement also in relation to goodwill will be taken to be 'nil '.

These amendments will take effect from the 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years.

.(Clauses 13,14,16 and 25)

New provisions to levy minimum tax on "Book profits" of certain companies.

37. Under the existing provisions of the Income-tax Act, certain deductions are allowed in the computation of profits and gains of business or profession. Various deductions are also allowed under Chapter VIA of the Income-tax Act in computing total income. As a result of these concessions, certain companies making huge profits, are managing their affairs in such a way as to avoid payment of income-tax.

With a view to making the tax system more progessive, a new Chpater XIIB is proposed to be inserted in the Income-tax Act.

Under the proposed amendment, in the case of any company whose total income as computed under the other provisions of the Income-tax Act in respect of any previous year is less than 30 per cent of its book profit, the total income of such taxpayer chargeable to tax shall be deemed to be the amount equal to 30 per cent of such book profit.

For the purposes of the aforesaid provisions, "book profit" means the net profit as shown in the profit and loss account in the relevant previous year prepared in accordance with the provisions of Parts II and III of the Sixth Schedule to the Companies Act, 1956, subject to adjustments in respect of any amount of income-tax paid or payable, any amount carried to any reserve set. aside to meet any provision, or provision for loss of subsidiary companies or any amount set apart for declaration of dividends which are taken into the profit and loss account prepared in accordance with the Sixth Schedule as above.

However, the expenditure relating to incomes as well as the receipts relatng to incomes to which the provisions of Chapter III of the Income-tax Act apply, will be excluded from the computation of the "book profit". Thirty per cent of such "book profit" shall be treated as total income of the company to which the provisions of this new Chapter (section 115J) apply. It has also been provided that the aforesaid provisions shall not affect determination of the amount to be carried forward to the subsequent years under the provisions of sections 32(2), 32A(3), 72, 73, 74, 74A and 80J relating to unabsorbed depreciation, unabsorbed investment allowance, unabsorbed loss and unabsorbed deduction relating to tax holiday.

As a consequential amendment, Chapter VIB of the Income-tax Act relating to restriction on certain deductions in the case of companies, is proposed to be omitted.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. .(Clauses 40 and 43)

Enlargement of the area of tax deduction at source to identify new assessees and early collection of tax

38. Under the existing provisions of sections 192 to 194D of the Income-tax Act, every person responsible for paying certain types of income is liable to deduct at the time of payment income-tax at the rate in force for the financial year in which the payment is made. These provisions do not cover various types of income. With a view to identify new assessees, and to ensure early collection of tax, the Bill by inserting a new section 194E proposes to widen the area of tax deduction at source by enumerating the following types of payments made in a financial year which also will be subjected to deduction of tax at source.-

(a) Fees for professional services exceeding Rs.5,000,
(b) Royalty exceeding Rs.5,000,
(c) Fees for technical services exceeding Rs.5,000,
(d) Rent exceeding Rs.36,000,
(e) Commission (other than insurance commission) or brokerage exceeding Rs.5,000,
(f) Payment for goods suplied to the Government or local authorities or public undertakings exceeding Rs.1,00,,000.

These provisions will not apply in relation to payments made by individuals or Hindu undivided familes.

These amendments will take effect from 1st June, 1987.

Modification of the scope of deduction of tax at source from Salaries.

39. Under the existing provisions of section 192 of the Income-tax Act, tax has to be deducted at source by any person responsible for paying any income chargeable under the head "Salaries".

With a view to preventing tax evasion and ensuring collection at the earliest point of time, the Bill by inserting a new sub-section (2) seeks to provide for deduction of tax at source by an employer (as the taxpayer may choose) from the aggregate salary of an employee who is or has been in receipt of salary from more than one employer in the same year.

Under the existing provisions of section 89(1), an employee who receives salary in arrears or in advance, has to make an application to the Income-tax Officer for relief from the incidence of tax at a higher rate. This procedure results in higher deduction and subsequent refund of tax. In order to avoid this, the Bill by inserting a new sub-section (2A) in section 192, provides that in respect of salary payments of employees of Government or public sector undertakings, deduction of tax at source be made after allowing relief under section 89(1).

Under the existing provisions of section 192 the person making payment of salary cannot take into account other incomes of the employee for the purposes of deduction of tax at source. The Bill by inserting a new sub- section (2B) enables a taxpayer having salary income in addition to other incomes to furnish in the prescribed manner the details of total income to his employer who shall deduct out of salary payment the tax due on total income subject to the prescribed conditions.

Modifications of the provisions relating to tax deduction at source.

40. Alongwith the strengthening of provisions relating to deduction of tax at source, the Bill seeks to bring about certain modifications to rationalise the provisions.

Section 194 of the Income-tax Act provides for deducition of tax at source out of payments of 'dividends' made by an Indian company. As per the existing provisions, no tax is required to be deducted at source if the dividend payments in a year do not exceed Rs.1,000. This limit is proposed to be raised to Rs.2,500 by an amendment to section 194. Section 194A provides for deduction of tax at source from payments of "interest" (other than interest on securities) made by any person other than individual or Hindu undivided family if such payments exceed Rs.1,000 in a year. The proposed amendment to section 194A provides that no tax need be deducted at source unless the payments of 'interest' exceed Rs.2,500 in a year. Under the provisions of section 194D any person making payment of 'insurance commission' is required to deduct tax at source. The proposed amendment to section 194D provides for tax deduction at source only if payments of 'insurance commission' exceed Rs.5,000 in a year.

The existing provisions require deduction of tax at source from interest at the time of payment or credit to the account of payee. In order to prevent postponement of liability relating to deduction of tax at source and to avoid litigation, it is proposed to provide by amending section 194A, that tax will be deducted at source either on accrual of interest at the end of the accouting year or at the time of credit to the account of payee or at the time of payment, whichever event occurs at the earliest. In the same manner, as per the proposed amendment of section 195, deduction of tax at source from payments to non-residents, will have to be made at the time of payment or at the time of giving credit to the account of the non-resident, whichever is earlier. For this purpose, any sum credited to 'suspense account' or 'interest payable account' shall be deemed to be a credit for the purpose of tax-deduction at source.

As per the proposed amendment to section 197, enabling powers will be conferred on the CBDT to make rules for prescribing procedure in relation to the issue of certificates by the assessing officers for authorising non-deduction of tax at source or for deduction at a lower rate.

The Bill seeks to combine the provisions relating to furnishing of annual returns in respect of tax deduction at source in section 206. Consequently, sections 285 and 286 are proposed to be omitted.

As a clarificatory measure, the Bill by inserting a new section 195A, seeks to incorporate the method of calculation of tax deductible at source in cases where payments are made tax-free.

Amendment of provisions relating to issue of certificate for tax deduction.

41. Under the provisions of section 203 of the Income-tax Act, any person responsible for deduction of tax is required at the time of credit or payment of the amount or at the time of issue of warrant of the sum, to issue a certificate that the tax has been deducted and specifying the amount deducted and any other particulars, as may be prescribed. A person responsible for deduction of tax has to deposit the amount of tax deducted at source within a certain period of time from the date on which the said amount has been deducted. As the certificate for tax deduction has to be issued at the time of credit or payment of the amount, in most of the cases, it cannot be ascertained that the amount deducted at source has been credited to the Government account.

With a view to remov-ing this lacuna, it is proposed to provide that the certificate for deduction of tax shall be issued within such time limit as may be prescribed.

New provisions relating to allotment of Tax-deduction Account Number.

42. As per the existing provisions of sections 192 to 194D as also the proposed new section 194E, any person responsible for paying the specified types of income shall, at the time of payment, deduct income-tax on the amount payable at the rates in force for the financial year in which the payment is made.

With a view to have better monitoring of deduction of tax at source and its deposit in the Government account, the Bill seeks to insert a new section 203A in the Income-tax Act. This new section provides that every person deducting tax at source in respect of any payment made by him who has not been allotted tax-deduction account number (TAN) shall apply to the Income-tax authority for the allotment of a TAN. The TAN so allotted shall be quoted in all challans for payment of any tax deducted at source, in all ceritificates for tax deducted, in all the prescribed returns filed by persons paying salary and interest to residents and in all other documents pertaining to such transactions which the Central Board of Direct Taxes may prescribe in the rules.

Under the existing provisions of section 206, persons paying salary are to furnish the prescribed returns in respect of tax deducted at source. The Bill seeks to substitute a new section for section 206 enabling the Central Board of Direct Taxes to prescribe the form, the time limit and procedure for submission of such returns.

Further, the Bill seeks to insert a new section 272BB in the Income-tax Act which deals with the penalty for failure to comply with the provisions of section 203A relating to the allotment of tax deduction account number to the person responsible for deduction of tax at source. The new section provides for a penalty of a sum which may extend upto five thousand rupees.

The Bill also seeks to amend section 273B of the Income-tax Act to include a reference to the new section 272BB so as to shift the burden of proving a reasonable cause for failure to comply with the provisions of section 203A on the person concerned.

Clarificatory amendment of definition of "aerated waters" for the purposes of inclusion in the Eleventh Schedule.

43. Under item 5 of the Eleventh Schedule to the Income-tax Act, "aerated waters in the manufacture of which blended flavouring concentrates in any form are used" are one of the non-priority articles or things to which benefits of the provisions of section 32AB and other sections of the Act would not be applicable.

It has been found that certain taxpayers manufacturing aerated waters in which synthetic essence is being used, are claiming the above benefits on the ground that the synthetic essence cannot be included in the expression "blended flavouring concentrates in any form".

As this was never the legislative intent, with a view to counter-acting the tax avoidance and placing the matter beyond doubt, the proposed amendment seeks to provide that the blended flavouring concentrate appearing in item 5 would include synthetic essence in any form.

The amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1988-89 and subsequent years. (Clause 75)

Modification in the nomenclature for exemption of income on certain deposits with Post Office.

44. Under the existing provision of clause (15) of section 10 of the Income-tax Act, one of the items eligible for exemption within the permissible limits is the interest on deposits in Post Office Savings Banks and bonus in respect of deposits under the Post Office Savings Bank (Cumulative Time Deposits) Rules, 1959. Similarly, interest on deposits in a Public Account of certain specific nature made under the Post Office Saving Bank Rules, 1965 is exempt upto permissible limits.

The Post Office Savings Bank (Cumulative Time Deposits) Rules, 1959 and the Post Office Saving Bank Rules, 1965 were substituted by the Post Office (Cumulative Time Deposits) Rules, 1981 and the Post Office Saving Account Rules, 1981 respectively. It is, therefore, proposed to substitute references to those rules currently applicable for the references to the rules which are no longer in force, so that the interest on deposits made in the Post Office Saving Bank under these rules continues to qualify for exemption from income-tax.

The proposed amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1983 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1983-84 and subsequent years. [Clause 4(b)]

Modification of provisions relating to exemption of allowances received by the Members of Parliament.

45. Under the existing provisions of section 10(17) of the Income-tax Act, daily allowance received by Members of Parliament and Members of any State Legislature or committee thereof is exempt from tax. In addition, in the case of Members of Parliament, all other allowances, not exceeding twelve hundred and fifty rupees per month, as may be notified, are exempt from tax.

It is proposed to amend the provisions of clause (17) of section 10 to provide that in the case of Members of Parliament, any allowance received under the Members of Parliament (Constituency Allowance) Rules, 1986 shall be exempt. This deduction is not subject to any notification or any monetary limits.

The proposed amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1986 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1986-87 and subsequent years. (Clause 4)

Modification of provisions relating to Investment Deposit Account.

46. As per the existing provisions of section 32AB, a taxpayer is entitled to deduction at twenty per cent of his profits from eligible business or profession subject to certain conditions.

With a view to encouraging investments in the industrial undertakings, the Bill by amending section 32AB(1) seeks to provide that the deduction shall be allowed in respect of the profits and gains of eligible business or profession computed before loss, if any, brought forward from the earlier years is set off. As a measure of rationalisation, it has further been provided that in a case where the eligible business or profession is carried on by a firm or an association of persons or a body of individuals, no deduction shall be allowable in the case of its partner or member.

The existing provision of section 32AB(3) provides that the profits of eligible business or profession in respect of which the deduction is allowed is to be computed in accordance with the requirements of Parts II and III of the Sixth Schedule to the Companies Act, 1956 as increased by an amount equal to the depreciation, if any, debited in the profit and loss account. The amount so arrived at is to be reduced by the amount equal to the depreciation computed in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act.

The proposed amendment to section 32AB(3) seeks to clarify that the profit of eligible business will be the amount before taking into account the amounts of depreciation, income-tax or surtax paid or payable, the amount carried to any reserve etc. if they are debited to the profit and loss account; and as reduced by any amount withdrawn from reserves or provisions taking into account provisions and amounts set apart for dividends. The amount so arrived at shall be reduced by the amount equal to the depreciation computed in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act.

The Bill by inserting new sub-section (5A) seeks to provide that the amounts deposited with the Development Bank in accordance with the scheme shall not be permitted to be withdrawn before the expiry of a period of five years from the date of deposit, except in the case of - (a) closure of business, (b) death of the taxpayer, (c) partition of a Hindu undivided family, (d) dissolution of the firm, (e) liquidation of the company and (f) in such other circumstances as may be specified in the scheme.

The proposed sub-section (5B) seeks to clarify that where any expenditure in respect of which a deduction is allowed is met wholly or partly by utilizing the amounts standing to the credit of the taxpayer in the deposit account in respect of which a deduction is allowed under section 32AB(1), then such expenditure shall be reduced by the amounts so utilised under the other provisions of the Act.

By amending section 32AB(6), it has been provided that the amount standing to the credit of the taxpayer in the deposit account may be utilized in accordance with and within the time-limit provided in the scheme.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1987 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1987-88 and subsequent years. [Clause 7]

Discontinuance of provisions relating to Tea Development Account.

47. Under the existing provisions of section 33AB of the Income-tax Act, an assessee carrying on business of growing and manufacturing tea in India, is entitled to a deduction of twenty per cent of profits of such business subject to prescribed conditions relating to deposit in the Tea development account. Under section 32AB of the Act, a similar scheme, namely Investment deposit account applies to all the taxpayers carrying on business or profession of growing and manufacturing tea in India.

With a view to simplifyng the Act, it is proposed that the provisions of section 33 AB will apply only in relation to the income earned by the tea companies, in the previous years relevant to the assessment years 1986-87 and 1987-88.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1988. [Clause 8]

Modification of the provisions relating to settlement of cases.

48. Chapter XIX-A of the Income-tax Act consisting of sections 245A to 245M deals with the entire scheme of settlement of cases. It provides for constitution of Settlement Commission (section 245B), the procedure relating to application for settlement (section 245C), the procedure to be followed by the Settlement Commission on receipt of application for settlement (section 245D), the powers of Settlement Commission with regard to various procedural matters (sections 245E to 245H) and other related provisions.

The Bill secures by inserting sub-section (5) in the new section 245BA, the functioning of the Bench in certain situations where the Chairman or one of the other Members of the Commission is unable to discharge his functions.

With a view to ensuring that the Commission is not used as an escape route by tax evaders, the Bill seeks to amend a number of provisions including the amendment to section 245C providing that a taxpayer shall furnish the return of income which he is or was required to furnish under any of the provisions of the Act before an application can be made to the Commission. Further, proviso to section 245H (1), has been inserted to preclude the Commission from granting immunity from prosecution in cases where prosecution has been launched prior to the date of receipt of application for settlement. By inserting new sub-section (IA), it has also been provided that an immunity granted by the Commission to any person shall stand withdrawn on failure of such person to pay taxes etc. within the time allowed as per the order of settlement or on failure of such a person to comply with any other condition subject to which the immunity is granted.

As a measure of rationalisation, by an amendment to section 245E, the Bill seeks to empower the Settlement Commission to reopen past assessments upto a period of 10 years as against 8 years under the existing provisons.

The other amendments seek to strengthen the functioning of the Commission.

Corresponding amendments in Chapter VA (section 22A to 22M) of the Wealth-tax Act, dealing with 'settlement of cases' in respect of wealth-tax have also been proposed.

These amendments will take effect from 1st June, 1987. (Clauses 59 to 69 and 79 to 89]

Bar of suits in Civil Court to set aside or modify any order passed.

49. Under the existing provisions of section 293 of the Income-tax Act, no suit shall lie in any civil court to set aside or modify any assessment order made under the Act. Similar provisions are contained in section 43 of the Wealth-tax Act and section 42 of the Gift-tax Act. This has been interpreted to mean that the bar of suits in civil courts is confined to assessment order only and not to other orders under the Income-tax Act. Since the Income-tax Act is a self-contained code, the above interpretation is not in conformity with the legislative intent.

The Bill, therefore, proposes to amend section 293 of the Income-tax Act to provide that no suit shall lie in any civil court to set aside or modify any order made under the Act. Similar amendments have been proposed in the corresponding provisions in the Wealth-tax Act and Gift-tax Act.

Modifications in the provisions relating to waiver of interest under the Wealth-tax Act.

50. Under the existing provisions of sections 31(2A) of the Wealth-tax Act, the Board is empowered to reduce or waive the amount of interest payable for non-payment or late payment of wealth-tax. This is done on the recommendations made by the Commissioner subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions. The Board is empowered to waive the amount of interest only if such an amount is outstanding. This has put a defaulter in a better position than a person who has managed to pay the interest even though it caused him considerable hardship.

In order to mitigate hardship caused in such cases, the Bill by amending seection 31(2A) ensures that the provision would apply also in those cases where the interest has been paid, subject to the satisfaction of the other conditions. This amendment shall take effect retrospectively from 1st October, 1984.

It is further proposed by amending section 31(2A) to delegate this power of the Board to reduce or waive interest to the Commissioner. This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1987. [Clause 90]

प्रस्तावना - टिप्पणी

इस वर्ष बजट अनुमान भारत के नियन्त्रक एवं महालेखा परीक्षक के परामर्श से राष्ट्रपति द्वारा निर्धारित संशोधित लेखा वर्गीकरणों के अन्तर्गत, जो वर्ष 1987-88 से प्रभावी है, तैयार किये गये हैं । नये वर्गीकरण में ऊर्जा, वैज्ञानिक अनुसंधान और पर्यावरण जैसे वर्तमान महत्व के क्षेत्रों पर बल दिया गया है और इसके अन्तर्गत आयोजनाओं में लेखाओं में मुख्य शीर्षों और विकास शीर्षों के बीच परस्पर सादृश्य स्थापित किया गया है । इसका तात्पर्य न केवल व्यय को पुनः समूहबद्ध करना है प्रत्युत राजस्व और पूंजी के बीच कतिपय लेन-देनों का पुनः वर्गीकरण करना भी है । उदाहरणस्वरुप रक्षा सेवाओं के कुछ लेन-देनों को राजस्व से पूंजी में अन्तरित कर दिया गया है जबकि आयातित उर्वरकों पर आर्थिक सहायता को पूंजी से राजस्व में अन्तरित किया गया है । वर्ष 1986-87 से संबधित लेन-देनों को यथासंभव सीमातक नये वर्गीकरण के अनुरुप समूहबद्ध किया गया है ।

आलेख भाग को निम्न प्रकार से विभाजित किया गया है:

(i) संशोधित अनुमान, 1986-87, बजट अनुमानों और संशोधित अनुमानों के बीच भिन्नताओं की संक्षिप्त व्यारव्या प्रस्तुत करने के लिए,

(ii) बजट अनुमान, 1987-88, चालू वर्ष के बजट संशोधित अनुमानों के संदर्भ में आगामी वर्ष के प्रावधानों को स्पष्ट करने के लिए,

(iii) आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय, केन्द्रीय सरकार का आयोजना भिन्न व्यय संक्षिप्त रुप में प्रस्तुत करने के लिए, और

(iv) आयोजनागत परिव्यय, वार्षिक योजना, 1987-88 के परिव्यय की व्यारव्या करने के लिए ।

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

This volume replaces the expenditure portion of the Explanatory Memorandum and the Plan Budget document presented in the earlier years with a view to focussing attention on the total expenditure of Central Government, both Non-Plan and Plan, and promote a better appreciation of the various areas of public spending.

The Budget estimates have been compiled this year under the revised accounting classification, effective from the year 1987-88, prescribed by the President on the advice of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. The new classification emphasises current areas of concern like energy, scientific research and environment, and brings about one to one correspondence between major heads in the Accounts and heads of development in the Plans. This has meant not only regrouping of expenditures but also reclassification of certain transactions between revenue and capital. For example, while certain transactions of defence services have been transferred from revenue to capital, subsidy on imported fertilisers has been transferred from capital to revenue. To the extent possible, transactions relating to 1986-87 have been regrouped to correspond to the new classification.

The expenditures of commercial departments have been taken net of their receipts so that increase in the volume of transactions does not inflate the figures on both sides. Similarly, short-term loans and advances given to the States and recovered during the same year have been netted. Certain transactions which do not involve cash outgo and are matched by receipts e.g. subscription to International Monetary Fund have been excluded so that focus is on real items of expenditure.

The write up portion is divided into --

(i) Revised Estimates, 1986-87 to give brief explanations for variations between the Budget Estimates and the Revised Estimates, Non-plan and Plan;

(ii) Budget Estimates, 1987-88 to explain the provisions for next year with reference to the Revised Estimates for the current year, Non-plan;

(iii) Non-Plan Expenditure 1987-88, to give a bird's eye view of the non-plan expenditure of Central Government; and

(iv) Plan outlays 1987-88, to describe the outlays for the Annual Plan, 1987-88.

The Statements that follow are self explanatory and have been referred to in the write-up at the appropriate places. A number of new statements have been added this year. These statements analyse expenditure both by Ministries/Departments to facilitate control over expenditure, as well as by broad categories to help analyse expenditure and improve resource allocation.

संशोधित अनुमान, 1986-87

The estimates of budgetary expenditure in this document exclude the transactions of Railways and Telecommunications except to the extent of Plan investments made from the General Budget. The Annual Financial Statement presented separately under Article 112 of the Constitution, however, incorporates the expenditure of all the Central Government Ministries/Departments.

The Demands for Grants presented separately under Article 113 of the Constitution seek the approval of Parliament for "gross" amounts of expenditure without taking into account "recoveries" taken in reduction of expenditure in the accounts. Amounts of these recoveries are also shown in the respective Demands for Grants. The expenditure under each major head of account is shown in the Annual Financial Statement after taking into account these recoveries. A further netting of some receipts is done in this document, as explained above, to facilitate proper appreciation of various items of expenditure. Annexure 1 to this document shows the "net" expenditure under each major head of account. Annexure 2 reconciles the totals of Annexure 1 and the expenditure totals in the Annual Financial Statement.

REVISED ESTIMATES, 1986-87

Revised Estimates of expenditure from the Budget show an increase of Rs7445 crores over the Budget Estimates, of which Rs.5508 crores are on Non-plan account and Rs.1937 crores on Plan. The main items of increase are:-

(In crores of Rupees)

	Budget 1986-87	Revised 1986-87	Increase
Non-Plan
1. Interest	8750	9550	800
2. Defence	8728	10194	1466
3. Food subsidy	1750	2000	250
4. Loans to FCI for buffer-stocks	-	1200	1200
5. Export promotion	555	788	233
6. Postal deficit (net)	220	331	111
7. Police	657	868	211
8. Pensions	769	961	192
9. Power	49	134	85
10. Expenditure of UTs without Legislature	433	609	176
11 Technical credits	60	300	240
12. Others	9917	10461	544
Total Non-Plan	31888	37396	5508

यह वृद्धि निम्नलिखित कारणों से हुई है:-

1. ब्याजः बाजार ऋणों, छोटी बचतों, भविष्य निधि, आदि पर अधिक ब्याज की अदायगियां ।

2. रक्षाः रक्षा सेवाओं का आधुनिकीकरण और चौथे वेतन आयोग की सिफारिशों का कार्यान्वयन ।

3. खाद्य संबंधी आर्थिक सहायताः लेखाओं को अन्तिम रुप देने पर बकाया राशि की अदायगी ।

4. बफर स्टाक के लिए ऋणः गेंहू और चावल के बड़े भंडार बनाए रखने के लिए भारतीय खाद्य निगम को उदार ऋणों की अदायगी करने के लिए, जिनका वित्तपोषण पहले बैंक उधारों द्वारा किया जाता था ।

5. निर्यात संवर्धनः नकद प्रतिपूर्ति सहायता की स्कीम का विस्तार करने के लिए, जो कि पहली जुलाई, 1986 से प्रभावी हुई ।

7. पुलिसः वेतन आयोग की सिफारिशों का कार्यान्वयन और अतिरिक्त बटालियन बनाने के कारण ।

8. पेंशनः पेंशन नियमों को उदार बनाना और चौथे वेतन आयोग की सिफारिशों का कार्यान्वयन करने के कारण ।

9. विद्युतः मुख्यतः दिल्ली विद्युत प्रदाय संस्थान द्वारा बदरपुर ताप विद्युत केन्द्र की बकाया राशियों की अदायगी न करने के कारण । बजट में 130 करोड़ रुपए का अनुमान लगाया गया था जबकि वसूली 60 करोड़ रुपए की हुई । नवम्बर, 1986 के अन्त में संचयी बकाया राशि 44.0 करोड़ रुपए की थी ।

10. बिना विधान मंडल वाले संघ शासित क्षेत्रों का व्ययः यह वृद्धि मुख्य रुप से चौथे वेतन आयोग की सिफारिशों को क्रियान्वित करने के कारण हुई जिनको दिल्ली में अधिगृहीत भूमि के निपटान से हुई प्राप्तियों द्वारा अंशतः प्रतिसंतुलित कर दिया गया ।

11. तकनीकी ऋणः यह वृद्धि मुख्य रुप से तेल के मूल्यों में आई गिरावट के फलस्वरुप सोवियत संघ द्वारा इस सुविधा का उपयोग करने के कारण हुई है जिसके परिणामस्वरुप रुपया साधनों को जुटाने में कमी आई ।

The increases are due to the following reasons:-

1. Interest: Due to larger interest payments on market loans, external loans, small savings, provident funds, etc.

2. Defence: Due to modernisation of Defence services and implementation of the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission.

3. Food subsidy: Due to payment of arrears on finalisation of accounts.

4. Loans for buffer stock: For payment of soft loans to Food Corporation of India to maintain buffer stocks of wheat and rice which were earlier financed by bank credit.

5. Export promotion: Due to enlargement of the scheme of Cash Compensatory Support effective from 1st July, 1986.

6. Postal deficit: Due to increase in expenditure on staff on account of implementation of the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission and of larger volume of traffic handled partly offset by revision of rates for postal articles. The expenditure has gone up from Rs.770 crores to Rs.894 crores while receipts have gone up from Rs.550 crores to Rs.563 crores.

7. Police: Due to implementation of recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission and raising of additional battalions.

8. Pensions: Due to liberalisation of pension rules and on account of implementation of recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission.

9. Power: Mainly due to non-payment of dues of Badarpur Thermal Power Station by Delhi Electric Supply Undertaking. Against the Budget assumption of Rs.130 crores, the anticipated realisation is Rs.60 crores. The cumulative arrears at the end of November, 1986 were Rs.440 crores.

10. Expenditure of UTs without legislature: The increase is mainly due to the implementation of the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission and non-realisation of recoveries assumed at the time of Budget due to delay in development and disposal of land in Delhi.

11. Technical credits: The increase is mainly due to larger disbursements to USSR in terms of trade and payment agreements, following decline in oil prices resulting in temporary shortfall of rupee resources to finance imports from India.

Increase in other heads is mainly due to implementation of the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission.

1. दूरसंचार सेवाएं: इस के अन्तर्गत वृद्धि बढ़े हुए आयोजना परिव्यय और चौथे वेतन आयोग की सिफारिशों के परिणामस्वरुप आन्तरिक संसाधनों में आई कमी के कारण है ।

2. पेट्रोलियम और प्राकृतिक गैस: इसके अन्तर्गत वृद्धि मुख्यतः एच.बी.जे. पाइपलाइन हेतु भारतीय गैस प्राधिकरण लि. में निवेश करने अथवा उसे ऋण देने के कारण हुई है ।

3. खानें: इसके अन्तर्गत वृद्धि भारत एल्युमिनियम कम्पनी लि. में निवेश के कारण हुई है ।

4. वस्त्रोद्योग: इसके अन्तर्गत वृद्धि पटसन आधुनिकीकरण निधि की स्थापना हेतु व्यवस्था करने के कारण हुई है ।

5. परमाणु ऊर्जा: इसके अन्तर्गत वृद्धि मुख्य रुप से भारी पानी परियोजनाओं और भाभा परमाणु अनुसंधान केन्द्र हेतु बढ़ाये गये परिव्यय के कारण हुई है ।

6. रेलवे: अतिरिक्त राशि का कारण नई परिसम्पत्तियों पर अधिक खर्च होना है, जिसकी वित्त व्यवस्था केन्द्रीय पूंजी में से की जाती है और उस सीमा तक अनुमान है कि सामान्य राजस्व में रखे रेलवे के सी.आर.एफ. में बकाया में वृद्धि होगी ।

1986-87 के संशोधित अनुमानों की तुलना में इन अनुमानों में 2615 करोड़ रुपए की वृद्धि हुई है, जिसमें से 1870 करोड़ रुपए आयोजना-भिन्न और 745 करोड़ रुपए की वृद्धि आयोजना के अन्तर्गत हुई है । जिन मदों के अंतर्गत वृद्धि हुई है वे मुख्य रुप से निम्नलिखित हैं:-

1. Telecommunication Services: The increase is due to increased Plan outlay and shortfall in internal resources due to impact of Fourth Pay Commission's recommendations.

2. Petroleum and Natural Gas: The increase is due to investment in and loans to Gas Authority of India Limited, mainly for Hazira - Bijaipur -Jagdishpur Pipe Line.

3. Mines: The increase is due to investment in Bharat Aluminium Company Limited.

4. Textiles: The increase is due to provision for setting up Jute Modernisation Fund.

5. Atomic Energy: The increase is mainly due to increased outlay for Heavy Water Projects and Bhabha Atomic Research Centre.

6. Railways: The additional amount is due to more expenditure on new assets which are financed from Government Capital and to that extent the balance in the Depreciation Reserve Fund of Railways lodged with the General Revenues is estimated to show an increase.

BUDGET ESTIMATES 1987-88

The estimates show an increase of Rs.2615 crores over RE 1986-87: Rs.1870 crores increase is under Non-Plan and Rs.745 crores under Plan. The main items of increase under Non-Plan are as follows:-

The increases are mainly due to the following reasons:

1. Interest: Due mainly to further increase in the payment of interest on account of market loans, external loans and small savings, provident funds, etc.

2. Defence: Due to modernisation of Defence services.

3. Export Promotion: The increase is on account of payment under Cash Compensatory Support Scheme.

4. Police: Due to raising of additional battalions for the Border Security Force and Central Reserve Police.

5. Pensions: Due to implementation of the recommendations of the Fourth Pay Commission relating to pensioners (including Defence pensioners).

6. Grants to States: Due to larger payment of grants under Article 275(1) of the Constitution.

7. Lump provision for DA: Provision is for dearness alllowance that may be sanctioned next year.

8. Others: The fall in other expenditure is mainly due to absence of provision for loans for financing buffer stock of foodgrains, decline in postal deficit, reduced requirements under technical credits, larger recoveries from Delhi Development Authority

आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय शब्द का प्रयोग सरकार के ऐसे सारे व्यय के बारे में किया जाता है, जो आयोजना में शामिल नहीं होता । इसमें विकासात्मक और गैर-विकासात्मक दोनों प्रकार का व्यय शामिल है । व्यय का कुछ भाग अनिवार्य देनदारियों से सम्बन्धित होता है, जैसे ब्याज सम्बन्धी अदायगियां, पेंशन प्रभार और राज्यों को साविधिक अन्तरण । व्यय का अन्य भाग राज्य के दायित्वों के सम्बन्ध में होता है अर्थात रक्षा और आन्तरिक सुरक्षा । इसके अलावा, केन्द्र की कुछ विशेष जिम्मेदारियां हैं, जैसे विदेश कार्य, और करेंसी तथा टकसाल, और अन्य विकासशील देशों के साथ सहयोग । पिछली आयोजनाओं की अवधि में निर्मित परिसम्पत्तियों के अनुरक्षण पर किया जाने वाला व्यय भी आयोजना भिन्न माना जाता है । इसी प्रकार, किसी एक आयोजना की अवधि में प्राप्त स्तरों पर जारी सेवाओं और गतिविधियों पर होने वाला व्यय अगली आयोजना में आयोजना-भिन्न के रूप में शामिल किया जाता है, जैसे शिक्षा और स्वास्थ्य सम्बन्धी सुविधाएं, पहले से चालू अनुसंधान परियोजनाएं और बिजली घरों का प्रचालन व्यय । इस प्रकार, जैसे जैसे अधिक आयोजनाएं पूरी होती जाती हैं, वैसे ही निर्मित सुविधाओं तथा सेवाओं के अनुरक्षण और प्रचालन पर होने वाले खर्च की बहुत बड़ी राशि, आयोजना के वित्त पोषण के वास्ते लिए गए उधारों पर ब्याज के अलावा, आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय में बढ़ती जाती है ।

1987-88 के बजट में शामिल की गई आयोजना भिन्न व्यय की महत्वपूर्ण मदों की जानकारी निम्नलिखित पैराग्राफों में दी गई है ।

1. ब्याज सम्बन्धी अदायगियां (10650 करोड़ रुपए)

2. रक्षा (12512 करोड़ रुपए)

NON-PLAN EXPENDITURE 1987-88

Non-Plan expenditure is a generic term used to cover all expenditure of Government not included in the Plan. It includes both developmental and non- developmental expenditure. Part of the expenditure is obligatory in nature e.g. interest payments, pensionary charges and statutory transfers to States. Part of the expenditure is an essential obligation of a State e.g. Defence and internal security . Then, there are special responsibilities of the Centre like external affairs, and currency and mint, and cooperation with other developing countries. Expenditure on maintaining the assets created in previous Plans is also treated as Non-plan expenditure. Similarly, expenditure on continuing services and activities at levels already reached in a Plan period is shifted to Non-plan in the next Plan e.g. educational and health facilities, continuing research projects and operating expenses of power stations. Thus, as more Plans are completed a large amount of expenditure on operation and maintenance of facilities and services created gets added to Non-plan expenditure, besides the interest on borrowings to finance the Plan.

Important items of Non-plan expenditure included in the Budget for 1987-88 are indicated in the following paragraphs.

The components are Army (Rs. 6359.47 crores), Navy (Rs. 595.50 crores), Air Force (Rs. 1578.06 crores), Ordnance factories (Rs. 1.00 crores) and capital outlay on all the above services (Rs. 3977.97 crores)

The fertilizers are sold at issue prices fixed from time to time.

The difference between the retention price so fixed less distribution margin and the statutorily controlled consumer's price is allowed as

(ख) आयातित उर्वरक (160 करोड़ रुपए) :- चूंकि देशी उत्पादन उर्वरकों की मांग को पूरा करने के लिए पर्याप्त नहीं है, इसलिए कमी को पूरा करने के लिए आयात किया जाता है। मुख्यतः, उर्वरकों की तीन किस्में अर्थात यूरिया, डी अमोनिया फास्फेट और म्यूरिस्ट आफ पोटाश आयात की जाती है।

चालू-प्रतिधारण मूल्यों और निर्गम मूल्यों के आधार पर, यूरिया उर्वरक के प्रति बोरे (50 किलोग्राम) पर आर्थिक सहायता की औसत दर 62.55 रुपए बैठती है।

327.84 करोड़ रुपए के बजट परिव्यय के मुकाबले 1986-87 के लिए संशोधित परिव्यय 260.53 करोड़ रुपए का रखा गया है। संशोधित अनुमानों में कमी का कारण यह है : (i) विभिन्न पत्तन न्यासों को ऋण (ii) दीप स्तम्भों का विकास (iii) भागीरथी हुगली नदी पर सुधार संबंधी कार्य और (iv) अन्य स्कीमें। बजटीय समर्थन के अतिरिक्त व्यय का कुछ भाग पत्तनों के आन्तरिक साधनों द्वारा पूरा किए जाने की संभावना है। 1987-88 के लिए 375.50 करोड़ रुपए का परिव्यय रखा गया है। यह वृद्धि मुख्यतः बम्बई के निकट न्हावा शेवा पत्तन के विकास से संबधित परियोजना के लिए बढ़ी हुई व्यवस्था के कारण हुई है। इस परिव्यय में शामिल की गई दीपस्तम्भों के विकास के लिए 5.00 करोड़ रुपए की व्यवस्था 2.03 करोड़ रुपए के संशोधित अनुमानों के मुकाबले में की गई है ताकि दीपस्तम्भों के विकास और अन्य सामुद्रिक सहायता की बढ़ती हुई मांग को पूरा किया जा सके। बजटीय समर्थन के अतिरिक्त, ऐसी सम्भावना है कि पत्तनों की आवश्यकता उनके आन्तरिक साधनों द्वारा पूरी की जाएगी।

नागर विमाननः नागर विमानन क्षेत्र के 295.00 करोड़ रुपए के अनुमोदित परिव्यय के मुकाबले, 1986-87 के संशोधित परिव्यय में 416.10 करोड़ रुपए रखे गए है। संशोधित परिव्यय में वृद्धि का मुख्य कारण हेलीकोप्टर कारपोरेशन आफ इण्डिया के लिए वार्षिक आयोजना परिव्यय का शामिल किया जाना है। ऐसा संशोधित अनुमान की स्टेज पर किया गया है, जिसके लिए 1986-87 की वास्तविक वार्षिक आयोजना में कोई व्यवस्था नहीं की गई थी और इसका एक यह भी कारण है कि इंडियन एअर लाइन्स द्वारा अपनी विभिन्न आयोजना स्कीमों के लिए 63.25 करोड़ रुपए का अतिरिक्त व्यय करना है और अन्तर्राष्ट्रीय एअरपोर्ट प्राधिकरण द्वारा 1.73 करोड़ रुपए का व्यय और वायदूत द्वारा 1.80 करोड़ रुपए का व्यय किया जाना है तथापि यह वृद्धि आंशिक रूप से एअर इंडिया के परिव्यय में

Ports and Lighthouses: The policy thrust in the port sector envisages (i) Development of infrastructure to match the type and size of vesels as also the volume and types of cargo being handed at these ports, (ii) Modernisation of port facilities; (iii) Expansion of facilities for the container cargo; (iv) Deepening of draft at the selected major ports to receive larger vessels; (v) Improvement in productivity of labour and equipment for efficient port operations, (vi) Augmentation of dredging capacity, and (vii) Development of selected minor ports to play a complementary role to major Ports. In the context of the above thrust areas, the Seventh Plan accords priority to (i) Completion of essential on-going schemes, (ii) replacement of obsolete cargo handling equipments and floating crafts; (iii) Modernisation and improvement of port facilities including container handling; (iv) Addition to the capacity in the context of projected traffic and cargo mix.

The revised outlay for 1986-87 is Rs. 260.53 crores against the budget outlay of Rs. 327.84 crores. The shortfall in the revised estimates is in loans to various Port Trust, (ii) development of Lighthouses, (iii) corrective works on Bhagirathi Hooghly River and (iv) other schemes. Besides the budgetary support, a part of the expenditure is expected to be met from the Internal Resources of the Ports. The outlay for 1987-88 has been kept at Rs. 375.50 crores. The increase is mainly on acount of increased provision for the project of development of Nhava-Sheva Port, near Bombay. The provision for the development of Lighthouses of Rs. 5.00 crores included in this outlay is as against the Revised Estimates provision of Rs. 2.03 crores for meeting increased requirement for development of Lighthouse and other navigational aids. In addition to the budgetary support, the Ports are expected to meet theirr equirements from their Internal Resources.

Shipping: In the shipping sector, the Seventh Plan envisages (i) Modernisation of fleet to take advantage of improved ship designs and fuel efficient engines, (ii) replacement of overaged fleet on a selective basis so that demands of trade are taken care of, (iii) Diversification of fleet by acquisition of cellular, container and specialised carriers, (iv) Addition to fleet on selective basis keeping in view the long term objective of achieving self-sufficiency in tankers and to carry at least 50 per cent of the dry bulk cargo and 40 per cent of liner trade, apart from meeting coastal shipping requirements in full. For development and expansion of Indian Shipping Industry, the approved outlay of Rs. 172.86 crores has been revised to Rs. 401.52 crores in Revised Estimate 1986-87. The outlay for 1987-88 has kept at Rs. 113.10 crores.

Civil Aviation: Against the approved outlay of Rs. 295.00 crores for the Civil Aviation Sector, the Revised Outlay for 1986-87 is Rs. 416.10 crores. The increase in the Revised Outlay is mainly on account of inclusion of an annual Plan outlay for the Helicopter Corporation of India Limited, at the Revised Estimates stage, for which there was no provision in the original Annual Plan 1986-87 and also due to excess expenditure to the extent of Rs. 63.25 crores by Indian Airlines for their various plan schemes and Rs. 1.73 crores by International Airports Authority of India and Rs. 1.80 crores by Vayudoot. However, this excess expenditure has been partly off-set by a

i) ऐसा पहली बार हुआ है जबकि मल निकासी और जल निकासी क्षेत्र में भारी निवेश किया गया है और अधिकांश नगरों में मास्टर वेस्ट वाटर मैनेजमेन्ट नहीं है ।

ii) प्रदूषण निवारण परियोजना से संबंधित गैर-इन्जीनियरी पहलू पर पूर्ण रूप से विचार करना । तथापि , इन समस्याओं को 1987-88 में हल कर लिया जाएगा और तदनुसार 1987-88 में की गई बजट व्यवस्था को बढ़ाकर 74.95 करोड़ रुपए कर दिया गया है । चूंकि यह समयबद्ध कार्यक्रम है, कई स्कीमों पर 1987-88 में कार्रवाई की जाएगी ।

राष्ट्रीय बंजर भूमि विकास कार्यक्रम एक अन्य बड़ी योजना है । राष्ट्रीय बंजरभूमि विकास बोर्ड की 1985 में स्थापना की गई थी जिसका उद्देश्य वनों की कटाई की प्रवृति को रोकना है, जिसके कारण काफी बड़ी पारिस्थितिकी और आर्थिक समस्याएं सामने आती हैं । इस बोर्ड के द्वारा ईंधन, लकड़ी और पशु आहार के लिए वन लगाने का वृहत्त कार्यक्रम आरम्भ करना है । स्वैच्छिक एजेंसियों, सहकारी संस्थानों और स्कूलों के माध्यम से इन कार्यक्रमों में लोगों का योगदान प्राप्त करने के लिए नए उपायों के अतिरिक्त बोर्ड द्वारा कई नई योजनाएं आरम्भ की गई हैं ।

Amajor programme for the provention and control of pollution of river Ganga was launched in early 1985 and a Central ganga Authority was constituted. इंजीनियरी संगठन के माध्यम से जलपूर्ति और सफाई कार्यक्रमों को तैयार करने और उनका क्रियान्वयन करने के लिए तकनीकी मार्गदर्शन भी प्रदान करता है ।

(क) पहली अप्रैल, 1980 की स्थिति के आधार पर पहले से पता लगाए गए वे समस्याग्रस्त गांव जिन्हें छठी पंचवर्षीय आयोजनावधि में पेय जल पूर्ति सुविधा उपलब्ध नहीं की जा सकी थी,

(ख) मौजूदा मानदण्ड के आधार पर जिन गांवों का समस्याग्रस्त गांवों के रुप में 31.3.1985 तक पता लगाया गया हो, जिसमें सर्वोच्च प्राथमिकता 'गिनी-कीड़ों से प्रभावित गांवों' को दी जाएगी ।

द्वितीय प्राथमिकताः

तृतीय प्राथमिकताः

1986-87 के संबंध में इस प्रयोजन के लिए 329.70 करोड़ रुपए के परिव्यय की व्यवस्था की गई है । वर्ष 1987-88 के लिए 392.34 करोड़ रुपए का परिव्यय रखा गया है ।

identified problem villages. The Central Government also provides technical guidance for formulation and implementation of water supply and sanitation programmes through Central Public Health and Environmental Engineering Organisation.

Safe drinking water is a basic need and supply of drinking water to all problem villages has been included in the 20-Point Programme. During the Sixth Plan, about 1.92 lakhs problem villages have been covered, many of them atleast with one source of drinking water. The Government of India, being a signatory to the U.N. resolution on International Drinking Water Supply and Sanitation Decade, is committed to provide water supply to the entire rural population by March, 1991. Provision has been made for the Centrally Sponsored Accelerated Rural Water Supply Scheme for the year 1987-88. It is expected that with this outlay, it will be possible to cover more villages, which include spill-over as well as subsequently identified problem villages and partially covered problem villages.

The problem villages are identified on the basis of certain criteria and generally cover villages without reasonable excess to potable water supply or villages with unsafe source of water. A new set of guidelines, indicating the following order of priority for coverage of the problem villages under this scheme, has been issued:-

Priority I

(a) Problem villages aleady identified as on 1.4.1980 but could not be provided with drinking water supply facilities within Sixth Five Year Plan period.

(b) Villages subsequently identified as problem villages as on 31.3.1985 based on the existing criteria, giving the highest priority to "guinea-worm affected villages.".

(c) Adequate coverage of partially covered identified problem village/habitations. Under this priority, coverage of habitations, especially of Scheduled Castes/ Scheduled Tribes, should be given the first preference.

Priority II

New problem villages/habitations identified with the following criteria: villages/habitations without a water source within a distance of 0.5 km. or within a depth of 15 meter or an elevation of 15 meter in hilly areas.

Priority III

Other villages: The villages falling under priority 1(a), 1(b) & 1(c) will be taken up concurrently, whereas the villages under priorities II and III will be taken up seriatim after earlier priorities have been covered.

An outlay of Rs.329.70 crores has been provided for this purpose for the year 1986-87. The outlay for 1987-88 is Rs.392.34 crores.

Housing: The outlay of Rs.41.14 crores envisages expenditure on construction of various types of residential accommodation for Central Government Employees at

खर्च की परिकल्पना की गई है । इसमें आवास तथा नगर विकास निगम (हुडको) के लिए व्यवस्था भी शामिल है। प्रस्तावित राष्ट्रीय आवास बैंक की स्थापना के लिए बजट में कुछ राशि आवंटित की गई है ।

Delhi, Bombay, Madras, Calcutta, Nagpur, Cochin, Simla, Bangalore, Srinagar, Hyderabad, Ghaziabad and Faridabad. It also includes provision for the Housing and Urban Development Corporation (HUDCO). An allocation has been included for setting up of the proposed National Housing Bank.

नगर विकास: आयोजना परिव्यय 23.67 करोड़ रुपए निर्धारित है जिसमें छोटे तथा मध्यम दर्जे के कस्बों के समन्वित विकास के लिए 16.00 करोड़ रुपए, राष्ट्रीय राजधानी क्षेत्र के लिए 6.00 करोड़ रुपए, प्रस्तावित नगर विकास वित्त निगम में निवेश के लिए 0.50 करोड़ रुपए और शहरी बुनियादी सुविधाओं के लिए 0.60 करोड़ रुपए शामिल हैं ।

Urban Development: The outlay of Rs.23.67 crores includes Rs.16.00 crores for the Integrated Development of Small and Medium Towns, Rs.6.00 crores for the National Capital Region, Rs.0.50 crores for investment in the proposed Urban Development Finance Corporation and Rs.0.60 crores for Urban Basic Services.

सूचना और प्रचार : 1986-87 के संशोधित परिव्यय में कमी होने का मुख्य कारण यह है कि सातवीं पंचवर्षीय आयोजना में शामिल अधिकांश नई स्कीमों को 1986-87 के दौरान आरम्भ नहीं किया जा सका था क्योंकि जिन गतिविधियों की प्रासंगिकता समाप्त हो गई थी उनका पता लगाने के लिए इस क्षेत्र में मीडिया यूनिटों की गतिविधियों की पुनरीक्षा आरम्भ की गई थी । यह पुनरीक्षा पूरी कर ली गई है और कुछ मीडिया यूनिटों के बारे में लिए गए निर्णयों पर पूरी कार्रवाई की जा चुकी है जबकि बकाया मीडिया यूनिटों के संबंध में कार्रवाई आरम्भ की गई है । 1987-88 के लिए आयोजना परिव्यय की राशि 14 करोड़ रुपए है । इस परिव्यय में राष्ट्रीय फिल्म विकास निगम के लिए 3.50 करोड़ रुपए शामिल है जिसका वित्तपोषण पूर्णतः निगम के आन्तरिक साधनों से किया जाएगा ।

Information and Publicity : The shortfall in the revised outlay for 1986-87 is due to the fact that most of the new schemes included in the Seventh Five year Plan could not be taken up for implementation during 1986-87 as a review of the activities of the Media Units in this sector was undertaken to identify activities which had lost their relevance. The review has been completed and final implementation on the various decisions has been taken in respect of certain Media Units while in the remaining Media Units action has been initiated. The outlay for 1987-88 is Rs 14.00 crores which includes an outlay of Rs. 3.50 crores for the National Film Development Corporation which will be financed entirely from their internal resources.

प्रसारण :- 1986-87 के ध्वनि प्रसारण के संबंध में संशोधित परिव्यय में मामूली कमी हुई है । 1987-88 के संबंध में परिव्यय के लिए 160 करोड़ रुपए की काफी बड़ी राशि निर्धारित की गई है जिसमें से 45 करोड़ रुपए आकाशवाणी और दूरदर्शन वाणिज्यिक राजस्व निधि से पूरे किए जाएंगे । अगले वर्ष के परिव्यय में प्रसारण सुविधा से वंचित क्षेत्रों में नए प्रसारण केन्द्रों की स्थापना करने, उत्तर तथा उत्तर-पश्चिमी क्षेत्रों में प्रसारण सुविधाओं को बढ़ाने, एफ.एम.ट्रांसमीटरों की स्थापना करने,राष्ट्रीय महत्व के कार्यक्रमों के प्रसारण के लिए नागपुर में राष्ट्रीय चैनल की स्थापना करने, खामपुर, बंगलौर और गोरखपुर में ट्रांसमीटरों की स्थापना करके विदेश सेवाओं को सुदृढ़ करने, बहुत से स्थानीय रेडियो स्टेशनों की स्थापना करने, सहायक केन्द्रों का दर्जा बढ़ा कर उन्हें कार्यक्रम निर्माण करने वाले केन्द्रों में परिवर्तित करने, रात के समय होने वाली संकुचन (शरिंकेज) पर नियंत्रण रखने के लिए कुछ चुने हुए ट्रांसमीटरों की शक्ति बढ़ाने , कुछ केन्द्रों में जहां प्रसारण सुविधा उपलब्ध नहीं है सूक्ष्म तरंग सेवा आरम्भ करने और पुराने ट्रांसमीटरों के स्थान पर ज्यादा शक्ति के अथवा एफ.एम. सेवा प्रदान करने वाले ट्रांसमीटर लगाने के लिए व्यवस्था शामिल है ।

Broadcasting : There is only a small short-fall in the revised outlay for 1986-87 for Sound Broadcasting. The outlay for 1987-88 has been kept at a substantially higher level of Rs. 160 crores of which Rs. 45 crores would be met from Akashvani and Doordarshan Commercial Revenues Fund. The outlay for next year includes provision for setting up of new broadcasting stations in uncovered areas, augmentation of broadcasting facilities in the North and North Western Region, setting up of FM transmitters, National channel at Nagpur for Broadcasting programmes of national importance, strengthening of external services by setting up transmitters at Khampur,Bangalore and Gorakhpur, setting up a number of local radio stations, upgradation of auxiliary centres into programme originating stations, upgradation of power of some selected transmitters to over-come night time shrinkage, starting new short-wave service at some stations where this service is not available at present and replacement of old transmitters with increased power or by FM service.

1987-88 के लिए दूरदर्शन के संबंध में 150 करोड़ रुपए की राशि निर्धारित की गई है , जिसमें से 55 करोड़ रुपए आकाशवाणी और दूरदर्शन वाणिज्यिक राजस्व निधि से पूरे किए जाएंगे । यह वृद्धि नई परियोजना के लिए दी गई स्वीकृति के कारण हुई है, यह परियोजना है: दिल्ली में केन्द्रीय प्रोडेक्शन यूनिट जिसमें दो दूरदर्शन स्टुडियो हैं जो आधुनिक उपस्करों से सुसज्जित होंगे और इन्हें इसी वर्ष में चालू किया जाएगा, तथा सातवीं आयोजना परियोजनाओं के कार्य को आगे बढ़ाना । बंगलौर, गुवाहाटी और लखनऊ में रंगीन दूरदर्शन स्टूडियो चालू करने, दिल्ली में 235 मीटर ऊंचे आर.सी.सी.टावर का निर्माण करने, डिबरूगढ़, तूरा, इम्फाल और एजवाल में उच्च शक्ति वाले ट्रांसमीटरों को चालू करना तथा उत्तर पूर्व में सिल्चर और कोहिमा में प्रोग्राम प्रोडेक्शन सुविधाएं उपलब्ध कराना एवम् उत्तर-पूर्व क्षेत्रीय सेवा आदि को आरम्भ करने के लिए व्यवस्था की गई है ।

The outlay for Doordarshan for 1987-88 has been kept at Rs.150 crores, of which Rs. 55 crores will be met from Akashvani and Doordarshan Commercial Revenues Fund. Step up is due to sanction of a new project viz. Central production Unit at Delhi comprising of two TV studios equipped with modern equipped with modern equipment to be commissioned during the year and acceleration of work of on the 7th plan projects. Provision has been made for commissioning of colour TV studios at Bangalore, Guwahati and Lucknow, 235 Mt. RCC tower at Delhi, commissioning of high power transmitters at Dibrugarh, Tura, Imphal and Aizwal and programme production facilities at Silchar and Kohima in the North East, commencement of North East regional service etc.
